Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 10.—President Alexander Millerand has lost his fight to a finish against the Left majority in Parliament. Tonight the Elysée announced that his resignation would be read to the Senate and Chamber of Deputies tomorrow afternoon.

On Friday a new President of the Republic will be elected by the chambers in national congress at Versailles. Two candidates are announced—M. Doumergue, President of the Senate, and M. Painlevé, President of the Chamber. M. Painlevé's chances appear to be the better.

Thus draws to a close the most bitter and most sensational struggle in the history of French politics since Léon Gambetta half a century ago battled with Marshal MacMahon to prevent the restoration of the monarchy. The basis of the campaign against M. Millerand was his effort to make the President of France an active leader of the country rather than the traditional figurehead. In that effort he was backed by Premier Poincaré, who was defeated in the elections of May 11, and as a result the victorious Left demanded his head.

The political guillotine, well oiled in advance, fell today amid cheering on the one side and unconcealed bitterness on the other side.

Vote in Both Houses Adverse.

Faced by M. Millerand's demand for a public debate on the constitutionality of their action, the Left refused that debate, refused to reply to his argument that he had the right to remain in office until the end of his term, refused to do anything but vote.

The vote in the Chamber on a technical motion which was sufficient to convey the Deputies' intentions was 329 against M. Millerand and 214 for him. Three hours before a similar vote in the Senate gave the result 154 against the President to 144 for him. It was after M. François-Marsal, the emergency Premier, had reported these votes to President Millerand that he announced his resignation.

In a word, the argument of M. Millerand's friends was that to oust him on political grounds would be a violation of the Constitution, which laid down a term of seven years for the President. The argument of M. Herriot's friends was that the Constitution placed the President in a position of political independence as an impartial arbiter among all parties and that he had violated the Constitution in taking part for Premier Poincaré.

Hours before 3 o'clock, when the session began, the neighborhoods of the Petit Luxembourg and the Palais Bourbon were black with crowds. The crowd on the river bank around the Chamber of Deputies was much larger, for it was popularly realized that the telling battle would be in the lower house.

As Premier François-Marsal and his Cabinet filed into the Chamber the Right rose to give the customary ovation to a new Premier. The Left remained silently seated. The air was electric as M. François-Marsal rose to read the message from the President.

When he had done so he made a statement on behalf of the Government in which he said that the Cabinet had no program to offer, having been constituted solely to enable both houses of Parliament to act as judges "in the conflict of constitutional order engaged in outside Parliament, but of which Parliament is the sole judge." He added that the vote about to be taken affected the future of the Republican régime in the highest degree.

The President of the Chamber, M. Painlevé, then announced that he had several interpellations and asked the Chamber when it desired to debate them.

As the Premier had announced that he was ready to accept the issue, Edouard Herriot, the titular leader of the Left, of which Aristide Briand is the real chief, filed a motion which read:

> The Chamber, resolved not to enter into relations with a Cabinet which by its composition is the negation of the rights of Parliament, refuses the unconstitutional debate to which it is invited and decides to adjourn all discussion until the day when a Government conforming to the sovereign will of the country presents itself before it.

The reading of this motion brought prolonged cheers from the Left and violent protests from the Right. It was at once made clear that MM. Herriot and Briand would not debate the constitutionality of the situation, but had determined to use to the limit the force of their majority.

Amid the demands of the Left for an immediate vote former Minister Reibel, selected to lead the debate for President Millerand, got the floor. Taunting the majority with being afraid of facing the

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Co.

BERLIN, June 10.—A possible connection is seen here between the blowing up yesterday of the Moscow-Riga Express and increased activity among the Russian monarchists. A report that several noted Soviet personages were said to have been on the train lends color to the belief that Russians aiming to restore the Czardom may have had a hand in the wreck.

Tonight a Russian monarchist meeting is scheduled here when action will be taken on the recent proclamation of Grand Duke Nicholas, declaring himself leader of the Russian monarchist movement. At this meeting funds will be collected and sent to the Grand Duke for furthering the monarchistic plans.

MAYOR ABANDONS PARK MUSIC CENTRE

Says New Site Has Been Selected Between 6th and 7th Avenues Below 59th Street.

GIFTS TO AID IN PURCHASE

Wealthy Men Who Will Contribute, Declares Hylan, Have Been Disgusted by His Critics.

Mayor Hylan has abandoned the plan to construct a music and art centre in Central Park.

He announced this last night at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel at a dinner given in his honor by Philip Berolsheimer, City Chamberlain. He said that a tentative site had been selected just below Fifty-ninth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, and that men of wealth "disgusted at the criticism of professional critickers" had offered to contribute toward its purchase.

The reason given by the Mayor for the change of front on a plan that he advocated in the face of widespread opposition was that it would take too long for the law to be amended to permit of the erection of the centre in the park. Rather than deprive the people indefinitely, he said, of the advantages the centre would give he favored the abandonment of the project and endorsed the new proposal.

The dinner, a truly sumptuous affair, is said to have cost between $8,000 and $9,000. It was the personal tribute of Mr. Berolsheimer who has been the guiding spirit in the Mayor's program of public concerts. It was attended by the Mayor's official family and by others intimately associated with the City Administration.

Mayor Gets a Gold Medal.

The Mayor's announcement came at the close of the affair and just after the Mayor had been presented with the gold medal of the Guilmant Organ School and had been robed in an academic cap and gown.

"There was a time," Mayor Hylan said, "when good music was a particular pleasure to be enjoyed only by those able to pay for costly entertainment. With a clearer recognition by public officials of the potency of good music in civic harmony and progress came the expansion of musical activities as a governmental function and a wider participation in its benefits by the masses of the people.

"It was found that public moneys expended for this purpose accomplished a twofold purpose. Recreation and entertainment were brought within the reach of all classes of the people, particularly the poor, and the oppressive rigors of daily life, apt to breed discontent that might seek an outlet in undesirable forms, were lightened by good music's contribution to the spiritual needs.

"The second purpose attained was in the nature of a distinct social advance through the creation of a feeling of fellowship among all those attending the musical concerts. A better social understanding was had, for voices blended in community singing, moved by the same musical appeal, remained equally harmonious when the different social paths were again trod.

"Now, there is another matter of which I feel that I should speak. You all know of the great criticism brought about by the professional criticisers. There was a great demand for a music and art centre, and the Chamberlain undertook that work, and of course we looked about for a suitable location, and we selected it north of Fifty-ninth Street in Central Park on the rocks.

"After that criticism, brought about

"Put Lodge Out!" "Put Wisconsin Out!" Punctuate Address —Mellon Gets Ovation.

LEAGUE'S COURT IS UPHELD

And Coolidge Declared Right in All Clashes With Congress—Third of Seats Empty.

By ELMER DAVIS.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 10.—It was Coolidge, Coolidge all the way in the opening session of the Republican National Convention this morning. The keynote speech by Representative Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland centred around a panegyric of the President and a denunciation of his enemies, especially those of his own household, which was echoed with terrific enthusiasm by the galleries and with moderate enthusiasm by the delegates.

The attendance was one of the scantiest seen at the opening of a national convention in modern times; the keynote speech was addressed to some 5,000 spectators and 4,000 empty seats, and this despite the fact that several hundred persons who had no tickets had "crashed the gate." But such crowd as it was was all for Coolidge and all against his enemies.

A visitor from Mars getting his only impression of contemporary American politics from Mr. Burton's speech would have gathered that the enemies of the Lord were the Republican Congressional leaders in the first place, La Follette and the nominally Republican radicals in the second place, and the Democrats a bad third.

And the crowd saw it that way, too. It rose up and roared approval when Mr. Burton said of the President:

"In the midst of temptations stronger than those by which the angels fell he has gone calmly and steadily on his way, unaffected by the lure of expediency or the promise of success."

It howled and cheered when he denounced third party movements, and said that "the word Republican is not a cloak for individual vagaries," and men stood up in the galleries shouting, "Put Wisconsin out."

It howled approval again when he demanded "a Republican majority in the next Congress made up of members tried and true, who will stand united." Men stood up in the galleries then shouting, "Down with Lodge!" "Put Lodge out!" They waited till the tumult had died down to shout again, "Put Lodge out," when comparative silence gave them a better chance to be heard.

Congressmen Conceal Emotions.

The speakers from the platform, equipped with all the paraphernalia of microphones and amplifiers, were not more audible than the enthusiasts upstairs who took their chance to shout "Put Lodge out"—Lodge who dominated the Republican Convention of four years ago, in every respect except the nomination of Calvin Coolidge.

The delegates, of course, had to stand up when the crowd stood up. Some of them cheered when the crowd cheered, and others went through the motions of cheering.

But when Mr. Burton said that most people "look to President Coolidge rather than to Congress for leadership," and the audience ratified his assertion with roaring cheers, fully half of the delegates who are going to have to vote for the renomination of Coolidge on Thursday stood up in silence, with sickly smirks on their faces.

Henry Cabot Lodge stood up, too, and smiled, with a fair approximation to his usual self-possession. But if Mr. Burton's tribute to the President provoked more than one-half of 1 per cent. of the enthusiasm among the great bulk of the delegates, that they provoked in the gallery, the delegates are very good at concealing their emotions.

The delegates, however, had already

Committee on Resolutions submits the party platform, if ready.

Adjournment until Thursday morning.

DELEGATES APPROVE ATTACK ON CONGRESS

Reaction to Burton's Keynote Speech Shows Rank and File Back Coolidge's Course.

SENATORS FEEL RESENTFUL

Ovation to Mellon Is Declared Another Evidence That Party Disapproves Congress.

[The text of Chairman Burton's speech is published on Page 6.]

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Enthusiastic approval of Representative Theodore E. Burton's praise of President Coolidge and his condemnation of those Republican members of Congress who have thwarted the President was expressed after the convention session today by a great majority of the delegates. The popularity of the President's decision to separate himself from Congress in his appeal for the votes of the people was as evident from the discussion in the hotel lobbies as it was from the applause which greeted Mr. Burton's attack on Congress in his "keynote" speech before the convention.

The rank and file of the Republican Party, as represented in the convention and seemingly throughout the country, is for the President and against the Congress leaders. An undercurrent of resentment was evident on the part of the Senators and Representatives whose opposition to the President was criticized by Mr. Burton. For the most part, these did not care to express themselves publicly against either Mr. Burton or the President, but they declared privately the "keynote" speech, which, presumably, will furnish the basis for the campaign to elect President Coolidge, would make it difficult for the party leaders in many States to appeal to the voters to support the President and at the same time to ask for the re-election of Republican Senators and Representatives who have been stigmatized almost as traitors to the party and as actual political foes of President Coolidge.

Criticism of the speech also came from another source, the radicals of the convention, represented mostly by delegates from Wisconsin and the Dakotas, who were dissatisfied with what they regarded as only mild condemnation of the corruption disclosed by the investigations at Washington.

The great mass of the delegates, however, accepted the speech not only as the basis of the campaign to elect the President, but as furnishing the basis of the platform to be adopted by the convention.

With Coolidge Against Congress.

They also expressed pleasure at the spontaneity of the enthusiastic reception given to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, and declared the ovation for him furnished another clear indication that the majority were with him and President Coolidge and against Congress on the question of tax reduction. The majority of the delegates unquestionably regarded that part of Mr. Burton's speech which dealt with the relations between Congress and the President as an appeal for the restoration of responsible party government.

Comments by delegates and Republicans of prominence follow:

William H. Crocker, National Committeeman from California—I thought it was a splendid speech. The convention's reception of Mr. Burton's remarks about the President and Congress indicated the feeling of the delegates on party loyalty and their sentiment toward President Coolidge and the real Republican Party. This also was demonstrated by the enthusiastic reception received by Secretary Mellon. It was a real tribute to two men without theatrical attributes or desire to play to the grand stand who have shown their honesty, courage and sincerity of purpose.

Elliott Rogers of Kennebunk, Maine—I think the most gratifying thing was the reception to Mr. Mellon. It showed Congress how the people felt.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York—It was a wonderful speech. It put forward the achievements of the Administration in a splendid manner. We don't need any platform other than that speech. It was especially well received by the convention.

Nathaniel A. Elsberg of New York—I think it was an admirable speech and

Platform Drafters Hotly Debate Anti-Klan Plank

CLEVELAND, Wednesday, June 11.—Heated argument over the inclusion of a Ku Klux Klan plank in the platform broke out in the Platform Drafting Committee soon after midnight this morning. Members debated in loud voices the advisability of touching the subject at all, taking a middle of the road stand, or opposing the Klan openly.

The majority of the committee was said to be opposed to taking an open stand against the Klan. One suggestion which was received consideration was that the platform declare for religious freedom as guaranteed by the Constitution.

"Such a declaration will make votes for us," one member shouted.

"Why imitate the Klan," another member rejoined. "Let's either make a straight out declaration or leave the subject alone."

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Wednesday, June 11.—A subcommittee of sixteen of the Resolutions Committee, appointed by Chairman Warren to prepare the final draft of the Republican platform was still in session at 1:30 o'clock this morning (2:30 o'clock, New York time), with no prospect of completing its work until daybreak.

It is hoped that the final form of the platform can be laid before the whole Resolutions Committee this forenoon and be presented to the convention shortly after noon. The subcommittee began its deliberations when the Resolutions Committee adjourned at 6 o'clock last evening after hearing advocates favoring a clear declaration for the Administration's World Court proposal and those favoring and opposing other vital issues before the convention.

The sixteen platform-makers are Representative W. S. Vare of Pennsylvania, Senator Gooding of Idaho, Senator Watson of Indiana, Speaker Gillette of Massachusetts, William Heyburn of Kentucky, William E. Greenough of Rhode Island, Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York, R. B. Creager of Texas, Senator Smoot of Utah, E. J. Adams of Oregon, Henry W. Anderson of Virginia, Governor Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, Lewis H. Smith of California, Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois, Bert C. Culp of Kansas and Chairman Warren, ex-officio.

The open hearing of the full committee showed clearly that the greatest interest centred in the World Court, the League of Nations, farm legislation and strict enforcement of the prohibition law. No opposition was registered to the President's proposal on the World Court.

Indications are that the platform, most of which has been drafted, will be entirely on lines desired by the President and that the declarations will be so phrased as to satisfy the conservative element in the Republican Party without making any strong effort to catch the radical vote, looking to La Follette and the third party.

Harmony marked the open hearing and the executive session, except for the infection of the third-party movement. Governor Blaine of Wisconsin read the La Follette attack on the party adopted by the State delegation yesterday, and Representative Cooper offered the radical platform for consideration of the committee in executive session. The first was greeted with applause and hisses, while the latter was formally received by the Drafting Committee without comment.

When Governor Blaine started to address the Resolutions Committee he was listened to without interruption until he read that part of the delegation's resolutions which assailed Fall and Daugherty, and then some of the audience applauded.

Next came the last paragraph, which commended Senator La Follette and singled him out as the leader of the new order. As Governor Blaine finished and left the centre of the room to take his seat hisses were heard. These became louder and Chairman Warren immediately rapped for order.

E. J. Adams of Oregon, a member of the Resolutions Committee and secretary to Senator Stanfield, jumped to his feet and in a loud voice shouted:

"I move that this resolution be sent back to the delegation and that no record be made of its being presented."

Chairman Warren informed Mr. Adams that the committee was sitting to hear arguments and receive protests and that his motion was out of order. Senator Smoot supported this contention and the incident ended, but it served to accentuate the plans of the Radicals to pave the way for a third party.

After the committee went into executive session later on in the night a minor platform, representing the ideas of Senator La Follette, was presented by Representative Cooper. The report was

Demand Soldier for Coolidge's Running Mate; World War Veterans Endorse General Harbord

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Major Gen. J. G. Harbord, former Assistant Chief of Staff and now President of the Radio Corporation of America, was endorsed tonight for the nomination for Vice President by approximately 100 ex-service men who are delegates or alternates to the convention. Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, sponsored the Harbord boom and succeeded in having the General made the unanimous choice of the World War veterans after they had also approved the candidacies of Charles G. Dawes and General Frank T. Hines.

A. Piatt Andrew was chosen Chairman of the meeting after Hanford MacNider, formerly National Commander of the American Legion and a delegate from Iowa, had declined the place. Mr. MacNider commented upon the fact that practically all of those present were members of the Legion and cautioned against any attempt to make it appear a Legion movement.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania declared the ex-service men should extend their political activities and make their influence felt in politics throughout the country.

Governor Mabey of Utah, who proposed General Hines, declared there was no danger in naming a man who had been a soldier for Vice President or any other executive position. "No man who ever heard the whistle of a machine gun bullet will ever be for war," he added.

Colonel Ralph D. Cole of Findlay, Ohio, spoke for Mr. Dawes, a native of this State.

The opposition of Colonel Cole killed a proposal to appoint a committee to urge William M. Butler to bring about the nomination of a candidate for second place to represent the former soldiers.

"It is up to the convention, not Mr. Butler, to pick the candidate for Vice President," Colonel Cole said.

Several speakers, among them General Henry Reilly of Chicago, declared they would bolt the Republican ticket if the convention should refuse to nominate General Harbord or some other soldier just because he was a soldier. The decision to back General Harbord caused a marked revival of his boom, although the attendance at the meeting did not represent more than 75 actual votes in the convention.

BUTLER IS BEATEN IN RULES COMMITTEE

Delegates Stage a Small Revolt and Elect Daugherty's Counsel, Paul Howland, Chairman.

WOMEN WIN LONG FIGHT

Equal Representation Is Approved, With Only Three Members Voting Against It.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—The women of the Republican Party won their long fight for equal representation on the National Committee today when the Rules Committee, with only three members dissenting, voted to report favorably on the proposition to the National Convention.

William M. Butler, selected by President Coolidge to be the new Chairman of the National Committee, took personal charge of the fight for the women and spent more than an hour with the Rules Committee before the decision was made. This did not serve to calm the emotions of some of the old-timers, who feel that Mr. Butler is taking over too much power before actually being selected National Chairman.

The Old Guard did not surrender to the dominance of the Coolidge-Butler machine without dealing its prestige a blow, however, by electing Paul Howland, who was chief of counsel for former Attorney General Daugherty at the Brookhart inquiry at Washington, as Chairman of the Rules Committee in defiance of the edict of Mr. Butler that another should hold that post.

There has been trouble brewing among the old-time leaders and among a lot of the delegates also, because announcement has been made in advance of the men Mr. Butler had selected as heads of various committees. In making his decisions Mr. Butler did not consult the Old Guard leaders, and announcements were made before most of the delegates who were to form the committees had arrived in Cleveland.

It is the understanding here that Mr. Butler had first decided on ex-Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey as Chairman of the Rules Committee. At any rate, a telegram was sent to Mr. Frelinghuysen asking him how he stood on the "equal representation" plan and offering him the Chairmanship of the committee if he was in favor of the proposal. Mr. Frelinghuysen accepted.

Hitch in the Butler Program.

This action stirred up a row which promised to result in a fight of some proportions not only on Mr. Frelinghuysen but on the 50-50 plan as well. Certain leaders who are working with President Coolidge and Mr. Butler, despite their dislike of some of the methods adopted, are said to have advised Mr. Butler that he was going too far and that a serious break in the party ranks was certain to follow.

In any event it later was announced that Senator Ernst of Kentucky, who has always held the reputation of being "regular" and on kindly relations with the old crowd, would be Chairman of the Rules Committee and not former Senator Frelinghuysen.

That was the way the situation stood when the Rules Committee began its session at 3 o'clock this afternoon behind closed doors, and then the delegates took a hand in affairs. They found themselves facing a situation where they were expected to do certain things, among them elect Senator Ernst their Chairman and pass the 50-50

BORAH SENDS WORD HE WILL NOT RUN

Telegram Asks Idaho Leader to Withdraw His Name if Presented for Vice President.

DEFINITELY OUT OF RACE

Politicians in Washington Divided Between Kenyon and Capper as Likeliest Candidates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Senator Borah declared himself out of the race for the Vice Presidential nomination this afternoon. There were no "ifs" or "buts" about it.

Senator Borah wired John W. Hart, National Committeeman from Idaho, that, in the event his name was presented, to "promptly withdraw same and positively decline for me."

Senator Borah's refusal to permit his name to go before the convention occasioned no surprise among his friends in Washington. They have known all along that he did not want the place and would at the proper moment make his position clear.

Senator Borah's telegram follows:

Washington, June 10, 1924.

John W. Hart, Cleveland, Ohio:

If my name is presented to the convention, please ask delegation to promptly withdraw same and positively decline for me. Make no mistake about this.

WILLIAM E. BORAH.

With Senator Borah eliminated, the talk in Washington switched to Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa. Democrats generally and Republicans of the Radical and Progressive schools seemed to be of the opinion that Judge Kenyon would follow the example of Senator Borah and decline to stand for the honor.

The Progressives cited the fact that Judge Kenyon, when in the Senate, stood more often with La Follette than he did with the Administration leaders. For instance, it was Senator Kenyon who was the principal critic of Newberry on the Republican side, and he was one of the leaders in the fight to unseat the Michigan Senator. Again, he was an outstanding leader in the movement to regulate "big business," in particular the packers and coal producers. Incidentally, he was for the soldiers' bonus and was opposed to the repeal of the excess profits section of the income-tax law.

Some Senators expressed surprise that Mr. Capper's name had not been brought forward as a candidate for Vice President. Some months ago Senator Capper was suggested and the Coolidge managers in South Dakota put the Kansas Senator's name on the preference ballot. Senator Johnson, however, carried South Dakota and the prestige of the endorsement was as a result denied Mr. Capper.

Friends of Senator Capper point out that he has been regular in the tariff fight and has not figured as a critic of the Administration in either the Teapot Dome or Daugherty fights. It is recalled that he was absent from the Senate when the Borah motion to exonerate Senator Wheeler was passed. On the other hand, Senator Capper has favored practically all of the so-called farm relief measures and from beginning to end fought and voted for the bonus.

No Agreement Is Reached on Coolidge's Running Mate

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Wednesday, June 11.—The conference on the selection of a Vice Presidential candidate adjourned between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning (2 to 3 o'clock New York time). No agreement was reached.

Immediately after the adjournment several of the conferees, headed by Secretary Slemp, called on William M. Butler, President Coolidge's personal representative.

The conference will be resumed after breakfast this morning.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—The opening session of the Republican National Convention has been followed by a more pronounced realization among party workers here that President Coolidge is the actual as well as the titular leader of his party. To many he appears to be the party itself.

His leadership was demonstrated today during the delivery of Representative Theodore E. Burton's speech as Temporary Chairman at the initial session. His reiteration, as the spokesman of the President, of the policies which a Republican Congress had mangled or rejected brought a hearty response from the delegates. They were especially enthusiastic over Mr. Burton's assertion that as between Congress and the President the people were with the President.

But in spite of his dominating position over the convention the President declines to express his will with reference to the choice of a candidate for Vice President. The Vice Presidential situation remains in a state of complexity in spite of intensive efforts today and tonight to bring about an agreement as to who the nominee for second place shall be.

A series of conferences between leading Administration men was begun early this evening. It was in the nature of one continuous conference. This gathering of party leaders is still in progress and may extend far into the hours of the morning.

No positive conclusion has yet been reached, but the conferees now have under consideration, with a view to the selection of one of them, the names of the following:

Herbert Hoover of California, Secretary of Commerce.

Herbert Hadley of Missouri, former Governor of that State and now President of Washington University at St. Louis.

Major Gen. James G. Harbord, credited to Kansas, former commander of the Second Division in the A. E. F. and Chief of the Service of Supply in France during the World War, and now President of the Radio Corporation of America.

Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

Four Candidates Eliminated.

The only definite outcome of the conference was negative in the sense that certain prominent Republicans, previously under consideration for the Vice Presidential nomination, were regarded as eliminated. They are:

William S. Kenyon of Iowa, former Senator and now a Federal Circuit Judge.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, former Governor of his State.

Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, former Senator.

Other names than those of Hoover, Hadley, Harbord and Curtis were under consideration and may be brought forward again if those at the top of the list are all eliminated. These include Hubert Work of Colorado, Secretary of the Interior, and Representative Everett Sanders of Indiana. The continuous conference or series of conferences took place and are still under way in the rooms of Secretary Weeks in the Cleveland Hotel.

In addition to Secretary Weeks the most prominent participants are Secretaries Mellon, Work and Wilbur and Postmaster General New, C. Bascom Slemp, Secretary to the President; Senators Wadsworth of New York and Reed of Pennsylvania, David Mulvane, National Committeeman from Kansas; Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, leader of the House of Representatives, and Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

British Insurance Firms Cut Year's Dues From Policies of Japanese Quake Victims

LONDON, June 10.—"We are able," says The London Times' financial editor, "to announce a decision of an unprecedented character on the part of the British fire insurance companies in respect to the damage caused by the great earthquake in Japan of Sept. 1.

"The companies which definitely excluded from their policies in most precise terms all risk of loss or damage by earthquake have not seen their way to pay any claims in respect of risk which was so clearly excepted. The wording of the provision excluding risk of earthquakes was, it is understood, submitted to and approved by the Japanese authorities before its issue.

"Were they to have paid the claims in respect of such damage, the wording of the policy conditions would have been set at nought and a precedent would be created which might well have proved disastrous to the conduct of insurance on sound lines.

"At the same time the British insurance companies, wishing to give a clear sign of their good-will toward those who were insured against the ordinary risk of fire and of sympathy for those who suffered losses, have decided to return to the insurees a full year's premium. This payment will, in the aggregate, represent a very substantial sum. The form which the return of the premiums will take will probably be that of willingness to cancel the payments due on the policies affected."

Convention's First Session Develops Anti-Congress Demonstration

had a definite preference for a Vice President. All confessed that they did not know the President's mind in this connection. They asserted that the President so far as they knew, was keeping strictly to his declared intention to let the convention make a free choice.

There were two striking features of the conference. One was that Secretary Hoover was regarded by most of the conferees as the man who appeared to possess more than any other all the qualifications essential in a candidate for Vice President. Mr. Hoover may be considered the favorite of the President's friends in their exchange of views in Secretary Weeks's rooms.

Secretary Slemp was asked by some of the conferees if he would give an "inkling" as to whom the President wanted for his running mate. Mr. Slemp declined to answer. He was then asked to express his own preference. Mr. Slemp declined again.

The other striking feature was the enthusiastic response to the proposal of General Harbord's name. Senators Wadsworth and Reed, while they did not put him forward as their one choice, spoke of him as a man and a business administrator in glowing terms. What they said of his character, his ability, his accomplishments and qualifications he possessed of appealing to the electorate, especially to veterans of the World War, was described as impressive.

In the consideration of former Governor Hadley's name, the matter of his health was brought up, but the conferees were told that Mr. Hadley's physician, now in Cleveland as a delegate to the Republican Convention, had pronounced him physically fit in every way.

Secretary Work was not present when his name was brought forward. He was spoken of in most favorable terms.

Recalls Conference in 1920.

This series of conferences served to recall the situation that prevailed during the Republican Convention at Chicago four years ago. At that time a deadlock was produced in the effort to select a candidate for President. When the deadlock became hard and fast a group of leading Republicans met in a smoke-filled room in the Blackstone Hotel and in the small hours of a warm June morning reached an agreement which resulted in the nomination of Warren G. Harding.

The conference now in progress in Secretary Weeks's rooms in the Cleveland Hotel approximates that historic meeting at Chicago, although the award which the conferees here in Cleveland are seeking to make is not so great. The Cleveland conference differs also from that at Chicago in the notable absence of most of the Republican chiefs who brought about Mr. Harding's nomination for President. Their very absence emphasizes the new deal which President Coolidge has decreed for the management of Republican Party affairs.

The reasons for calling the Cleveland conference were made known by one of those who participated. According to this explanation it was regarded as desirable to take up and consider the name of every man who might be available for the Vice Presidential nomination, with the object of sounding out opinion as to what man was so wise and sound in character and principle that wavering delegations or delegancy were presented, make a good President and have in addition the qualities of a good campaigner and a good candidate.

The elimination of Judge Kenyon from further consideration as a possible Vice Presidential nominee was due mainly to opposition to his reputation for radical views and disposition to break away from party alignment. It was urged that sentiment against Judge Kenyon had developed among delegates to such an extent that it was doubtful if he could be nominated.

Former Senator Beveridge received little support for the reason, it was said, that factional differences in the Republican Party in Indiana would make it unwise to put him forward. The same reason was urged in connection with Representative Sanders of Indiana, although he was also subject to criticism by Representative Longworth as a man of outstanding ability as a legislator and as possessing qualities of leadership. An objection raised against Mr. Sanders individually was that he had angered many Indiana Republican regulars by critical references to them. Besides, it was said with references to both Mr. Beveridge and Mr. Sanders, the Indiana Republican Convention had endorsed Senator Watson.

Tell of Harbord's Ability.

The conferees received an enthusiastic account from Senator Reed and Colonel Roosevelt of a meeting of delegates who served in the World War which resulted in a decision to put General Harbord forward as the candidate of ex-service men for second place.

They told how General Harbord had received an overwhelming number of votes over General Hines and General Dawes, whose names were considered at the veterans' meeting. The conferees were told also that service men who attended the meeting were not canvassing State delegations in General Harbord's interest.

Senator Reed told of his association with General Harbord in Europe last year. He said that one of the most finished speeches he had ever heard had been delivered by General Harbord at services in Belleau Wood. He pointed out that General Harbord possessed the speech-making ability of an accomplished campaigner or orator. Attention was also called to the literary ability shown by General Harbord in his report on the Armenian mandate proposal.

As for other desirable qualifications of General Harbord it was pointed out that he was a Western man, born in Illinois and reared in Kansas; that he had made his way through the Kansas Agricultural College, that he had been a telegrapher and carried a union card, and that enlisting in the army as a private he had risen to the rank of Major General in the regular service.

Most of those who attended the series of conferences told their fellow conferees that they had been unable to find that sentiment of the convention had been developed to any extent for any particular men mentioned as Vice Presidential possibilities. Senator Wadsworth said that he had been unable to find preference for any particular man in the New York delegation.

The exchange of views indicated that Secretary Hoover appeared to have a shade the better of anybody else so far as sentiment had been expressed, but it had not been shown in sufficient volume to give him a strong lead.

The Illinois delegation decided definitely tonight to drop the fight for the nomination of former Governor Lowden as Vice President. A subcommittee headed by John G. Oglesby, Delegate at Large, sent a telegram to Mr. Lowden last night asking again for a statement. The reply came today, and in it Mr. Lowden reiterated his former assertion that he was not a candidate and would refuse the nomination if it were made by the convention. The Illinois delegates accepted this as the final word. Mr. Oglesby made a short statement, in which he said that he would get up in the convention and announce that Mr. Lowden would not accept if any one placed Mr. Lowden's name before the convention.

Coolidge Starts House-Cleaning.

Political history is being made here in Cleveland. Whatever the ultimate reaction of the electorate, the convention itself, under the guidance of the President, is to establish a new alignment of the Republican Party. The process of change made progress in the convention's initial session today. No doubt remains that President Coolidge, through the medium of his spokesmen here, is engaged in the process of cleaning the Republican house.

The President demands a return to party solidarity, which connotes party loyalty. At first glance this knowledge would seem to indicate that the demand is aimed at the La Follettes, Brookharts and other insurgents. But today it is emphasized that the house cleaning is to be applied to others who, claiming to be "regular," have been taking their own course in important party matters without regard to the wishes of the Coolidge Administration.

If Senator Lodge and other Senators and Representatives who failed to support President Coolidge's policies as expressed in measures before Congress believed that the mild-mannered man in the White House would take their recalcitrancy lying down they were disillusioned today.

The disillusionment came through the "keynote" speech of Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio. That speech had a bearing more important than its indication of the trend of party policy in the political campaign. The principles on which the party will go to the country will be expressed more formally in the platform to be adopted by the convention tomorrow. What was of major importance in Mr. Burton's address was that his was the voice of Calvin Coolidge.

Senate Recalcitrants Rebuked.

There was a plea for party solidarity in Mr. Burton's address, but emphasis was given to that plea by the rebuke he delivered to those Republican regulars in Congress who recently entered upon a semi-orgy of repudiating the measures which the President advocated. The cheers with which that rebuke was endorsed by an overwhelming majority of the delegates showed where the President stood with his party. Those bursts of approval must have sounded like a knell to those "regular" Congressional opponents of Mr. Coolidge who sat in the convention hall. They seemed to mark the end of Senatorial opposition on public servants make no political distinction either in the officials whom they approach or the lawyers whom they hire," with obvious reference to William G. McAdoo, this somewhat dolorous convention emitted its first and last ripple of laughter.

In his discussion of the Winter's scandals in Washington Mr. Burton took the position already familiar from the expressions of President Coolidge. Here, too, it was a pure Coolidge speech.

"Our highest duty in the midst of all these rumors of iniquity is to punish the guilty, but at the same time condemn exaggeration and protect the innocent. It is an infamous crime to destroy the confidence of the American people in the Government under which they live."

And, after denunciation of "indiscriminate scandal-mongering, he added:

"This is no reflection upon any investigator who in good faith is seeking to expose crime or any other dereliction among public servants. The guilty individual, whether he be high or low, Democrat or Republican, must suffer the severest punishment. Upon this proposition the Republican party stands firm as a rock."

One man shared the honors of the day with the absent President. After the keynote speech was over, when the necessary formalities of organization were being finished off as fast as possible and the spectators were already beginning to troop out for a long overdue lunch, Mr. Burton sauntered back, and the formal adoption of motions for the appointment of various other committees, that "the chair recognizes Andrew Mellon, a delegate from Pennsylvania, for the purpose of making a motion to appoint the Resolutions Committee."

Then everybody stood up and cheered again—a demonstration which to all appearances was spontaneous and which was as prolonged and uproarious as really spontaneous demonstrations are, as the Secretary of the Treasury moved forward and went up through the little trapdoor to the speakers' platform. He made no effort to make the crowd hear him, but turned over his formal motion to a reading clerk, who produced it in a fine lyric tenor. But the crowd had had a chance to see Mr. Mellon out in the open and it gave him a tremendous ovation, which showed that among the spectators of this convention, at least, Mr. Mellon is as popular as the Congressional leaders are not.

It was all a Coolidge keynote. In the various issues on which the President has clashed with his own party leaders in Congress Mr. Burton spoke out for the President's side of the question without compromise. Though praising the revenue bill just passed, he admitted that it "abounded in defects," and devoted much of his speech to an appeal for the reduction of high surtaxes as provided in the Mellon plan, though that special scheme for tax revision was not mentioned.

When he came to immigration he said that "it is to be regretted that the request of the President for time for further negotiation with Japan was refused." He treated the bonus veto as the President's veto as a closed issue, which is now law and "must be willingly accepted."

Faint Praise for the League.

And when he came to the World Court, which, he observed, was not only essentially an American idea but a Republican idea, he passed to the various Senatorial proposals and demanded flat adherence to the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge position.

"It is not for us," he said, "to assert that the League is a wicked institution, and in any provisions set forth in the protocol for the Court itself remove it from any domination on the part of that body."

As for the League, he damned it with faint praise; but as one who had originally favored going into it with reservations, he said that he could discuss it dispassionately, and laid most of what he regarded as its shortcomings to the association of the League Covenant with the Treaty of Versailles.

"We welcome whatever of good may be accomplished by the League," he said, "and we recognize that in humanitarian and non-political matters it has accomplished beneficent results. Still some of these activities we have taken part and will no doubt in the future. But this does not mean that we should assume membership. So long as the League remains a political body, inevitably dominated by the larger nations of Europe, poisoned with the infection of age-long animosities, membership is not for us."

Mention of President Harding, whose large, flag-draped portrait hung behind the platform, was, of course, much less copious, and in one instance at least was downright apologetic.

In speaking of the death of Mr. Harding, "whose untiring labors made him a martyr to service and brought an early death quite as sad as that of any soldier who perishes with all his armor on," Mr. Burton took occasion to add:

"If ever he made those mistakes which mortals must make, it was because of the kindness of his heart, because of a noble mind which thought no ill of friend or foe, but reposed trust in every one."

Mr. Burton spoke for an hour and a half, and until he came to the topic of the President's personal record it would be inaccurate to report that he caused much excitement. He went into two questions—scientific tax revision and relief for the farmers—at considerable length, and a great part of his speech sounded very much like a lecture on the fundamentals of economics delivered to a bored and somnolent college audience.

Part of this effect, to be sure, may have been due to the multiplication of devices which permit a keynote speech to be heard by means of radio all over the country, but unfortunately bring incidental injury to its effect on the audience to which it is immediately addressed. For directly in front of the speakers' stand are the microphones which must catch the speakers' words for the amplifiers, which carry them all over the hall, and the radio which sends them all over the country. Unless he talks directly into the amplifiers he is apt to be heard indistinctly or not at all.

So Mr. Burton had to spend most of his hour and a half leaning on his elbows over the speakers' desk, a tall, stoop-shouldered speaker reading his speech with shell-rimmed glasses from small sheets of typewritten paper.

In this part of his address he rarely raised his voice or wandered far from the stand. When he did become sufficiently interested about something to speak with more vigor and turn to address himself to different parts of the audience, he was apt to miss the microphones, so that, on the whole, he was not audible when he spoke most loudly.

But the effect of this part of the speech depended, of course, very largely on the receptivity of his audience, and this audience today was interested in nothing but the merits of Calvin Coolidge and, to a mild degree, in prohibition.

A demand for "law enforcement," interpreted, of course, as meaning enforcement of the Volstead act, brought some applause, and there was actual cheering for the first time when he said that "hasty changes in existing laws or regulations cannot be approved; if that were the case, all our policies would be like the shifting sands of the sea, which are scattered by wind and wave."

By no means everybody in the galleries applauded this, and a still smaller percentage of delegates did, but those who did applaud were so vigorous about it that they sounded like a mob.

Seats Were One-Third Empty.

Mr. Burton is probably the best-known citizen of Cleveland, outside of Tris Speaker and Tyrus T. Herrick, but he would have made no great commotion in his home town today without Calvin Coolidge as a theme. This opening session apparently created little excitement in Cleveland, and still less among the delegates. Cleveland is fortunate in having an ideal convention hall, as much better than Chicago's much-used and more abused Coliseum as the Coliseum is better than a vacant lot.

As Cleveland has never had a convention before, it had been supposed that at the first session at least a city of nearly a million people would have no trouble in filling an auditorium which, outside of delegates and convention staff, seats only about 12,000.

When the convention opened with the spectators' seats a third empty, a good many people supposed that this mishap was due only to the unprecedented occurrence of opening on time. By 11:30 it might have been supposed everybody would be on hand. But when the keynote speech, the only real business of the day, began at 11:30, half an hour after the convention had started, there were hardly more people in the hall than there had been when Sousa and his band opened the proceedings with the "Star Spangled Banner." Cleveland comes on time if it comes at all. As for the 30,000 people who were to stand outside the convention hall, they came to the number of only a few hundred, and these were finally allowed to pass in.

Yet, as shows go, it ought to have been satisfactory. A hall in which everybody cannot only have a comfortable seat, but can hear and see, is not always found in convention cities; Cleveland is in perhaps better luck than it knows. Before the proceedings began the crowd was entertained by one of the trick lights of this highly modern auditorium—a sudden switching off of the ordinary illumination which left the stage brightly lighted and the rest of the hall in dusk, then the switching on of red and purple lights under the ceiling skylights, to make the Scotch plaid effect of which Cleveland is justly proud, though somewhat illogically in a city which is so largely Slavic and Magyar.

The only decorations in the hall were flag-draped portraits of Presidents Lincoln, Roosevelt and Harding behind the stage—Harding in the centre and larger than the other two. When the "Star-Spangled Banner" was played to open the session a large flag was let down from the flies and covered the three portraits until the business of the day began.

Face Both Ways for Picture.

At the very beginning of the session occurred an episode which, in view of the later demonstration by Republicans of hostility to Republican leaders, seemed ominously symbolic.

John R. Adams, soon to retire as Chairman of the National Committee, announced that the flashlight picture of the convention would be taken and asked that the delegates be seated and turn toward the rear of the hall. With proper docility the delegates got themselves seated and then discovered that their seats were so close together that they couldn't turn toward the rear of the hall. Some of them followed orders and stayed seated, thus getting only the backs of their heads in the picture, and some of them followed inclination and stood up to get their faces on record. Then, as later, the Republicans were facing both ways.

Mr. Adams finished his last chance to develop his favorite theme of Europe sinking under the burden of its own misdeeds, as contrasted with America, "alone among the nations of the world united, stable, happy, prosperous and free."

But after all there was business to be done, and he got it done very promptly and gave Cleveland a chance to rise up and cheer one of its own favorite sons.

Mr. Burton repaid the crowd for his welcome by devoting his opening efforts to flattering remarks about the city and the State.

"I greet this vast throng," he began, "gallery above gallery."

There was in fact only one gallery, and that was half empty, but after all a man may be excused a little exaggeration in his home town. He assured the delegates that Cleveland was glad to see them, and then had to go on to an apologetic explanation that the downtown parts of the city, which are all that delegates have seen, are not the show places of Cleveland.

"We are in the midst of the bustle and smoke and dust," he said, "of a busy industrial community, but the pure air of heaven is around and above us, and a friendly spirit is everywhere."

His speech began, naturally, with a tribute to the various Ohio Presidents, which was received in silence except when he referred to another Clevelander, James A. Garfield, who drew the tribute of a Shakespeare quotation from Mr. Burton and some mild applause from the crowd.

There was some more applause for his tribute to the ladies, whom he assured that "the finer grades, the keen discrimination of women are needed in the body politic."

But there was little to get excited about in his prolonged review of the achievements of the Republican Administration, frequently interlarded with such words as "it is to be regretted," "perhaps this was not wholly satisfactory," and so on.

Discusses Nation's Economics.

Nor was there room for popular enthusiasm, though much for the approval of conservative economists, in his long analysis of the bases of agrarian prosperity. Diversification of crops was about the only remedy Mr. Burton could see for the ills of the farmers.

"Any artificial stimulus to prices which are depressed by irresistible causes can only postpone the evil day and add to the distress."

Quite as searching, but somewhat more congenial to the temper of the crowd was his discussion of the need for economy of expenditure and accompanying tax reduction.

"The recent revenue law is not the last word," he said. "To secure these most desirable objects of economy an active campaign of education must be conducted similar to that in the free silver contest of 1896."

The applause that greeted this was a foreshadowing of the enthusiasm later to be shown for the appearance of Mr. Mellon, who has been conducting a campaign of education, so far unsuccessful, among members of his own party.

More applause for the declaration that in dealing with natural resources "no hundred-year franchises should be given," obviously aimed at Henry Ford and Muscle Shoals; no applause at all for a hastily spoken remark about the conservation of oil. No applause, for that matter, for the declaration that toward the desirable end of relieving the President from unnecessary burdens "there could be no more practical step than to diminish the demands upon his time for the settlement of questions of patronage."

But the whole house cheered when Mr. Burton, after deploring the occasional evidences of moral decay, solemnly asserted that "the heart of the American people is sound."

Yet on the whole, it would have been a dull speech and dully received but for the chapters dealing with the personality and record of President Coolidge. On that theme Mr. Burton dropped once more into poetry, the higher form of expression reserved in this speech to Cleveland's favorite son, the late Assistant President and Garfield the home town boy.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the greatest quoter of poetry among contemporary American orators, who hurled the Washington conference two years ago under an avalanche of Byron and Browning, sat listening while the amateur Burton quoted poetry and the galleries shouted:

"Put Lodge out."

Perhaps he was thinking four years back; perhaps he was thinking four years ahead.

BACK COOLIDGE, SAYS BURTON

had their own chance to cheer. When Mr. Burton had discussed corruption in the Government and the Senatorial investigations, just before coming to his treatment of the President's own record, he had said that "there is no criminal whom any investigation could expose who is more false to decency and honor than the man who would besmirch the name of honest citizens or distort the truth for partisan advantage or personal exploitation," the delegates found a sentiment of which they could and did approve vociferously.

And a moment later, when he said that "those who seek to bring malign influence on public servants make no political distinction either in the officials whom they approach or the lawyers whom they hire," with obvious reference to William G. McAdoo, this somewhat dolorous convention emitted its first and last ripple of laughter.

Band and Glee Club Seek to Cheer the Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 10.—With a promptitude that was admirable, John T. Adams, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, called the Republican National Convention to order at exactly 11 o'clock this morning.

As Mr. Adams, who will be succeeded Thursday or Friday by William M. Butler, stepped to the speakers' platform there was the first outburst of applause from the crowd in the hall which lasted long enough to drown the noise of the pounding of his gavel and his announcement, "I call the convention to order."

John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster and composer, also drew applause as he stepped to the side of Mr. Adams. Mr. Sousa raised his baton and the band began the national anthem. As all rose in their seats, the battery of lights masked behind the glass ceiling changed to a red, white and blue color combination.

Pausing for a moment, Mr. Sousa signaled again and the band swung into "The Stars and Stripes Forever," one of the most popular of the Sousa marches. As the band played a large American flag in the rear of the stage was lifted, unveiling portraits of Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Warren G. Harding, which had been hung against the background of another large American flag.

Mr. Adams then presented the Rev. William F. Anderson, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to deliver the invocation. Bishop Anderson formerly lived in Cincinnati, but was recently transferred to Boston.

Bishop Anderson's Prayer.

Bishop Anderson's prayer follows:

"Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth or ever Thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, Thou art God. We acknowledge Thee to be the creator and ruler over all worlds.

"We render hearty thanks for our inheritance as citizens of a free republic. We are grateful that our nation was born in a period of lofty idealism; that in the early days of our national struggles Thou didst raise up men of far vision, of skilled wisdom, of unselfish spirit, of noble character to guide our ship of state through many troublous waters, and that from those humble beginnings we have, by Thy blessing, become a nation whose influence and power are acknowledged and felt throughout all the earth. Do Thou then impress us with a deep sense of our manifest destiny and obligations.

"Once and again within the past year Thou didst bring us, a people, face to face with the stern reality of eternal worlds. Thou didst call us to stand with eyes tear-dimmed in the presence of our fallen chieftains laid low by the hand of death.

"When in Thy unsearchable wisdom it pleased Thee to summon our Chief Executive into the unseen world Thy hand was still over us for good. We give Thee thanks that in that hour of crisis our ship of state was steadied by the strong arm of Thy servant whose training and trust had been wrought out in the fear of God and who seeks to know and to do that which is pleasing in God's sight.

"We earnestly pray for Thy abundant grace and blessing upon our President today and in the days ahead.

"And likewise we pray that Thou mayest give great grace and wisdom to those who control in the several departments of our Government; that the just execution of our laws may be tempered with mercy; that the official interpretation of our laws may be marked by equity and sound judgment; that the enactment of our laws may be always with the view of well-being of all the people.

"May it please Thee to grant that this assemblage give strong emphasis to the fact that righteousness remains still the watchword for the individual, the community, the commonwealth, the party; that righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. Righteousness! Righteousness! We thank Thee that to the founders of the Republic this word was as the voice of one crying in the wilderness—Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain; and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

"We thank Thee, too, that as this was the ideal of the fathers, so it is the insistent demand of the conscience of the sovereign people of this nation even unto this day.

"We ask that all our people may have due apprehension of the necessity of stricter observance of law and the preservation of the Constitution of the United States. Do Thou effectually stay the evil designs of any desecrating hand or agency which would seek by any means to overthrow the 'Ark of the Covenant' of our purchased liberties.

"We pray for the help of Thy restraining grace against all forms of injustice, oppression and wrongdoing. By Thy divine favor may we have contentment, happiness, peace, prosperity and brotherhood within our own borders. And do Thou inspire us with that moral courage which shall enable us gratefully to accept our trusteeship as a nation for world weal and welfare. By Thy good guidance may our Republic find its way to definite and aggressive leadership in the interests of universal good-will and world peace. Give us the faith as a people, O God, to believe that this may be in Thy purposes as Thy crowning of America's ministry and mission to all mankind.

"And to these high ends we humbly beseech Thee that the choice of the nation's standard bearers may be according to Thy will.

"In behalf of every member of this convention we pray for those personal qualities of life and character which will fit every man for the sacred duties of this hour. May these delegates be men of clean hands, pure hearts, of high honor, of noble purposes, of devoted patriotism and of unselfish service befitting the citizens of a Republic like ours.

"Almighty God, our hope is in Thee, our help is in Thee; be Thou our helper and guide—the helper and guide of this nation through all the future days and years.

"'Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget.'

"And unto Thy great and holy name be all honor and praise, through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen."

Adams Predicts Party's Success.

Led by the band, the crowd joined in the singing of "America." There was a pause in the proceedings while the official photograph of the convention was taken. Mr. Adams requested all those sitting in the body of the hall to turn their faces to the rear while the photograph was being taken, and the announcement was repeated by a stentorian voice from the balcony. There was a lot of bustling around on the floor and the megaphonic voice in the balcony asked every one to be seated.

"All quiet, all still!" the voice shouted. There was a loud explosion of a score of charges of flashlight powder masked by the usual cotton cloth protectors. Mr. Sousa led the band in a rendition of his latest composition, "The Ancient and Honourable Artillery Corps March," its playing being apparently intended as a compliment to the home State of the President.

The official call for the convention was then read by George B. Lockwood, Secretary of the Republican National Committee, who also is slated for retirement. Mr. Adams, in what probably will be his last act of importance as National Chairman, stepped forward so as to be in range of the microphones carrying the voices of the speakers to the amplifiers in and outside the hall and to the fifteen radio broadcasting stations which are reporting the proceedings of the convention. Mr. Adams said:

"This is the eighteenth Republican National Convention.

"It is only sixty years since Lincoln was President. In that brief period our country has enjoyed the greatest moral and material advancement in all history.

"This has been brought about largely under Republican rule, and at no time have the problems of Government been more effectively met than during the last three years.

"Our party has always stood for constructive progress. It has always endeavored to promote the welfare of the average man. It has always adhered to America's best traditions, both in domestic and in foreign affairs.

"Today Europe is torn by class cleavage and hatred which threatens every social order. America alone in the great family of nations is united and stable, prosperous and free and at peace with all the world.

"We are here now to pledge anew our faith in American institutions, and to name the next President and Vice President of the United States."

Mr. Adams's prediction of Republican success at the election next November brought more response in the way of applause from the delegates and spectators than anything that had happened up to that time. He waited a few seconds for the applause to die down, and said:

"By the direction of the National Committee, I propose for your Temporary Chairman the Hon. Theodore E. Burton of Ohio."

Mr. Adams appointed Senator Norbeck of South Dakota, Alton T. Roberts of Michigan and Mrs. Anne S. Carlisle of Indiana as a committee to escort Representative Burton to the chair.

The appearance of Mr. Burton, a resident of Cleveland and well known for his distinguished public record, including service in the United States Senate, was the signal for more applause. He shook hands with Mr. Adams and the latter said:

"Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I present your Temporary Chairman."

More applause followed lasting exactly fifteen seconds.

The convention then went through the formality of ratifying the recommendation of the National Committee by electing Mr. Burton Temporary Chairman.

Mr. Burton prefaced his "keynote" address with a brief greeting of welcome. He spoke for just an hour and a half, starting at 11:30 and finishing his speech at 1 o'clock. His address in full is printed on another page.

Other Officers of the Convention.

Immediately after his speech, Mr. Burton recognized Mr. Adams, who proposed the recommendations of the National Committee for the other temporary officers of the convention. These subordinate officers of the convention, who will be made part of the permanent organization tomorrow, were elected unanimously. The more important of them follow:

Secretary, Lafayette B. Gleason of New York.

Chief Assistant Secretary, C. M. Harper of Kansas.

Sergeant-at-Arms, Colonel E. P. Thayer of Indiana.

Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, Elam H. Neal of Indiana.

Second Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, Gilbert H. Bettman of Cincinnati.

Official parliamentarians, Representative Philip D. Campbell of Kans

PLATFORM DRAFTING BEGINS

received without discussion and the drafting committee went on with its work without adopting any of the suggestions.

No voice was raised against the United States joining the World Court as proposed by President Coolidge and his predecessor, Henry W. Taft, Professor Irving Fisher of Yale, Everett Colby of New Jersey and Henry W. Strong of New York all talked on the Court and the League of Nations. Their brief speeches brought applause. Senators who had opposed the Administration's stand on the Court were absent. Senator Watson, a member of the committee, was silent.

Mr. Taft, who opened the argument for the Administration's World Court, said that it was not necessary to present a long recital of the pros and cons; that the subject was so well known and the proposed plank, which he then read, was so logical that it was not subject to honest attack. The plank proposed by him reads:

"We heartily commend the repeated and unconditional support given by President Coolidge to the proposal that the United States should adhere to the protocol establishing the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague. The conditions of such adhesion, formulated by Secretary of State Hughes and approved by President Harding in his message of Feb. 24, 1923, are in accord with our traditions against foreign entanglements and will amply protect our national interests.

"We favor our entrance into the World Court as now constituted because we believe that a great majority of the American people desire that controversies between nations should be decided by an impartial and permanent world tribunal upon fixed and immutable principles of international law and that by joining the World Court we will contribute something of practical use in the settlement of disputes among nations which tend to disturb their peaceful relations."

Taft and Fisher Plead for Court.

"The contention that our entrance into the Court with reservations would put us into the League of Nations is a bugaboo," continued Mr. Taft. "You might as well say that our adherence to the Court would make us subject to the League of Nations as to say that the Supreme Court of the United States is subject to Congress because Congress appropriates the money to pay the salaries of the Justices of that court.

"There is nothing for the United States to do if it wants to take its place in the Court but join the present one with reservations, and I hope that this committee will adopt a plank which reaffirms the position of Republican Presidents and represents the majority sentiment, as I believe, in the United States."

Professor Fisher said that he merely wished to add his voice in support of the plank submitted by Mr. Taft. He said that the two great thoughts of the American people on peace were the League of Nations and the World Court and that sentiment was increasing in favor of both of them.

"In the last few months I have delivered a number of lectures in widely separated parts of the country," he said, "and everywhere I went I found the sentiment for both was keen and insistent—stronger than perhaps you here can realize. In Kansas I found it was almost unanimous for the Court. In one meeting in Winfield I took a vote, and 101 voted for the Court, with only one dissenting voice. Of the 50,000 people I addressed I venture to say not one-tenth was against either the Court or the League.

"The American people want the Court as proposed by Coolidge and Harding and sanctioned by the eminent men in the Republican Party and in American life. If you don't give this plank to the pro-League and pro-Court Republicans the Democratic Party will and the Republican ticket in November will be defeated."

Colby Warns Not to Ignore League.

Everett Colby of New Jersey pleaded with the committee not to say in the plank that the League is dead, but do nothing to offend the increasing sentiment for the United States taking its rightful place among the nations to preserve peace and define international law through the World Court.

"I will not take more than three minutes to make three points," he went on.

"First—Others have told you what to say in your platform; I would like to tell you what not to say. Don't say the League is dead, because you know that is not true. Don't say the League is no longer an issue, because you know that is not true. So long as the united Christian Church and the women of the country are behind an issue, that issue is never settled until it is settled right.

"Second—Don't say 7,000,000 votes for Harding were votes against the League, because Mr. Coolidge has said that such was not the case. Is it not evidence, if the country was so overwhelmingly against the League, that now a grateful people would show their gratitude to the leaders of the crusade to keep us out of foreign entanglements?

"But what is the fact? An ungrateful people are sending to their political graves, one after another, the men who did the most to keep us out of the League.

"Third—Why don't you give us a fair fighting chance on this proposition? If you declare for the World Court, why not at least keep silent about the League and let the people and the party work out their own salvation?

"You say Coolidge is the only asset of the party, and that is dead right! Then why not give him a free hand? Why cramp his policies and close the door in his face should he believe the best interests of the country demand that we cooperate with the League?

"Furthermore, I want to warn you against taking a stand that you will regret. Don't set your faces against the obvious trend of events. We are going into the League eventually, and four years from now you will be shouting for it and demanding an entrance therein at the soonest possible moment.

"And remember this, gentlemen: if the Republican Party doesn't take us in, the Democratic Party will. Why should you sit there helpless and inert and let the Democratic Party assume the leadership in the greatest and most vital forward movement of our generation?"

Asks Cooperation With League.

Another plank on the same subject was presented by Charles W. Strong of New York, of the League of Nations Non-Partisan League and Secretary of the Bar Association of New York City. This resolution reads:

"A sound, forward-looking policy of international cooperation entirely consonant with the history, institutions and national aspirations of the United States has always been the ideal of the Republican Party for the purpose of promoting our national economic welfare and international peace and goodwill.

"We point to the Washington Limitation of Armaments Conference and the treaties that grew out of it; to the approval of Presidents Harding and Coolidge of adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice upon appropriate conditions, and to a progressive cooperation with the League of Nations in its economic and humanitarian activities as evidences of the devotion of our party to world peace; and

"We pledge the new Administration to a strong progressive program of cooperation with the other nations through the League of Nations provided the Covenant of the League can be so Americanized as not to surrender to other nations our independence of judgment and action with respect to American or other questions involving our vital interests or national honor."

Mr. Strong told the committee that his organization was organized in thirty-four States and was keeping alive and increasing the sound sentiment for the League and the Court.

"It is a foregone conclusion that this convention will declare for the World Court," he said, "but the question is: Will it declare for the Court in terms that are unfriendly to the League of Nations or in terms that are friendly to the League? No one asks for an unqualified Woodrow Wilson league, but we do ask for a plank friendly to the League.

Cites Republicans Favoring League.

"When the League was young and in the making, the great leaders of the Republican Party were friendly to it. They went so far as to say that the United States should enter it, and that the way to insure that was to elect Warren G. Harding President and Calvin Coolidge Vice President.

"The leaders were Root, Taft, Hughes, Hoover, Wickersham and twenty-six others. Warren Harding said on Aug. 20, 1920, at Marion: 'I would take all that is good and excise all that is bad in the Court and the League.' The Republican platform in 1920 stood for an international association among the nations to preserve the peace of the world.

"What shall be said now when the League is made up of five-sixths of all nations, including four-fifths of mankind? I repeat it, if it was well for Republicans to be friendly to the League of Nations when it was an experiment and a fledgling, what shall their attitude be now? Can the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations be a closed incident? I say, No.

"There is not a man in this room who in his heart does not know that this country will some day be in the League. Which shall be the party to lead it in? I look to the Republican Party that has been the party of progress and achievement since 1856, to do it.

"As a matter of fact, no voter will be lost through a League plank, but many will be lost if there is not a League plank, and natural Republicans will join the party which declares for it."

New Yorkers Press Anti-Klan Plank.

The resolutions adopted at the Lotos Club, New York, and by the New York delegation to this convention declaring for an anti-Klan plank were presented and discussed for fifteen minutes. There was no protest against such a plank expressing opposition to secret societies which arouse racial and creed prejudices.

Dr. Charles H. Thwing, President Emeritus of Western Reserve University, presented the proposed plank, which emanated from the Lotos Club meeting, signed by leading educators and men of prominence. He said that it did not ask for any action against those doing lawful things, that it was a petition in behalf of law and order and that it sought to guarantee the protection assured in the Constitution.

Former Representative Siegel of New York, who followed him, said that if the United States was not able to carry out the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments it could not go on ignoring the laws of the land without breaking down American institutions.

"It is time to take a stand for law enforcement, and why not begin by taking a hand against organizations which defy the law and stir up race and creed prejudices?" he asked.

"There is no room for invisible government in this country. When we see men refusing to serve as jurors because of their oath to this organization, then it is time that we should go on record that these secret organizations shall be wiped out. This party cannot evade that duty. I ask you to report a plank against this disloyal and un-American form of invisible government."

William Liebermann of New York presented the action of the New York delegation. It said that he spoke in behalf of the largest Republican County in the country, Kings County.

"I want to say that seven million people in New York are proscribed by this society," continued Mr. Liebermann. "That is not the greatest menace that certain of our citizens are proscribed.

"It is that if this is allowed to continue our country is going on the rocks. The nation will be split to pieces as it was in the Civil War over slavery. Let this great Republican Party take a stand today which will place it on record against such a movement. This secret society has no place in American life. Let there be no discrimination as a result of race, color or creed."

Bishop James Corey of the Afro-American Church spoke against the Klan and suggested other planks to better the conditions of the negro race.

Dr. Joseph Cannon, a negro leader of New Jersey, touched upon the Klan and said that the platform ought to declare in favor of the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. He also advocated a plank against lynching.

Drys Seek Hold on Congress.

The subject which provoked longest discussion and which was approved by the large audience, mostly women, was the wet and dry issue. Only one voice was raised against strict enforcement, that of Captain W. H. Stayton, President of the Association Opposed to Prohibition.

Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, did not want any direct reference to the Eighteenth Amendment in the platform. He said that if the Republican Party had such a plank members of Congress might be elected on such a plank who, when they came to Congress, would become wet.

Therefore, he said that he would be content with a general enforcement plank and would then put all members of Congress on record irrespective of the party platforms.

"A wet plank or any declaration for the restoration of light wine or beer would be political suicide," said Mr. Wheeler.

"Congress has by overwhelming majorities defeated this nullification scheme. The Anti-Saloon League of America never has asked nor does not now ask for a dry plank.

"The political units that elect the Congress are not coextensive with the jurisdiction of this convention, and a plank in a national platform does not assure the votes of wet Congressmen elected on such a platform, but gives them an added weapon of defense when we attempt to defeat them.

"A law-enforcement plank is both appropriate and helpful in view of the challenge that comes from those who are defying the Constitution. The enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment is a national as well as a State obligation.

"The President is the Chief Executive to enforce the law. He is responsible for the Federal officers whose duty it is to enforce the law. The people in the legislative districts have no local choice on this issue of law enforcement.

"A party declaration which will put the party whole heartedly back of the enforcement of this constitutional provision and the laws enacted pursuant thereto is both timely and necessary to meet the expectations of the law-abiding people of America."

Presents Borah Enforcement Plank.

Mr. Wheeler presented the plank suggested by Senator William E. Borah for the favorable consideration of the committee as follows:

"Obedience to the law because it is the law is a fundamental principle of free government and indispensable to the preservation of orderly and regulated liberty.

"The constitution which at any time exists unchanged by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people is sacredly obligatory upon all.

"The Republican Party pledges itself to employ and exert every means within the power of the Government to maintain, uphold and enforce the Constitution of the United States and all laws made in pursuance thereof.

"The party would be false to its traditions, recreant to its trust, unfaithful to its leaders, and jeopardize success at the polls should it remain silent upon the paramount issue of law enforcement.

"The Republican Party cannot afford to waver on this issue. It should put into action the patriotic sentiments of Washington and Lincoln; revitalize the demand for law enforcement voiced by Theodore Roosevelt; be true to the law enforcement ideal expressed by Warren G. Harding and continue the law enforcement policies of Calvin Coolidge."

Bishop Theodore S. Henderson of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Detroit said that he represented 4,000,000 people who were for a strict enforcement of prohibition and who opposed any consideration of legislation to modify the alcoholic content fixed in the Volstead act.

Mrs. Lewis Thompson, representing the women's clubs of New Jersey; Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Boston of the Women's Council for Law Enforcement, the Rev. William Sheafe Chase of the New York Civic League, Mrs. Ella G. George of the Pennsylvania W. C. T. U. and many others presented planks urging strict enforcement of the prohibition law.

Captain W. H. Stayton said that prohibition was not enforced and that it was more sensible to revise the law so that it could be enforced. He said that with a proper modification it might be made workable.

Royal C. Stephens, President of the Civic Patriotic League of Philadelphia, proposed that the prohibition enforcement unit should be made a separate bureau of the Federal Government, that aliens convicted of violating the Eighteenth Amendment and narcotic laws should be deported and that voting should be compulsory. He demanded a plank for universal service in times of war.

Women Offer Equal Rights Plank.

National Woman's Party planks were then presented. Miss Maude Younger, Congressional Chairman, in introducing the speakers to the committee, said:

"The last time we came before this committee was in 1916 to ask for your passage of the Federal Suffrage amendment. At that time we were the only organization to come before you on that subject. Suffrage seemed very remote then, yet within three years it had passed Congress.

"We came to your next convention in behalf of ratification. We are again coming to you in behalf of the equal rights amendment introduced by Senator Curtis and Representative Anthony last December. We ask you to adopt this plank:

"'The National Republican Party pledges itself to do everything in its power to establish equal rights for men and women throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction, and to this end to give its active support to securing the adoption of the equal rights amendment to the National Constitution, which is now before Congress.'

"As we hope that at your next convention that we can come before you to ask your cooperation for the ratification of this amendment, this may be your only opportunity to go on record in favor of this fundamental principle."

Miss Younger introduced the following women: Mrs. Hattie Jewel Anderson, delegate from California; Mrs. Arthur Kellum, Republican campaign speaker of New Mexico; Mrs. Arthur D. Cramer of Detroit, Mich., President of the Wayne County Republican Club; Mrs. Ida d'Eglebert, alternate from California, and Mrs. Valentine Winters, prominent Republican of Ohio.

Women Voters Put World Court First.

The platform suggestions made by the National League of Women Voters follow:

"Believing in international cooperation to prevent war, we support the proposal for the entry of the United States into the Permanent Court of International Justice as at present organized, and urge on members of the Senate the action necessary to such entry.

"We advocate a policy of participation in international conferences and of cooperation with international agencies both for the elimination of the causes of war and for humanitarian purposes. We urge that such cooperation already begun shall be made official.

"Believing in Governmental responsibility for public welfare, we advocate prompt ratification by the States of the Child Labor amendment to the Constitution proposed by the present Congress, and the subsequent immediate enactment of suitable Federal legislation for the protection of children in industry; adequate appropriations for the women's and children's bureaus in the Department of Labor, and for vocational training in home economics; the continuance by the Federal Government of cooperation with the States for the protection of maternity and infancy.

"Recognition of the immediate need of an equalization of educational opportunity throughout the nation and action in conformity with this American ideal, including the creation of a Federal Department of Education, the removal of legal discriminations against women by specific measures not prejudicial to women's labor laws or to social welfare legislation, and legislation for equal rights between men and women drawn with full consideration of each specific type of law involved instead of attempting to deal with the subject by blanket legislation.

"Believing in efficiency in government, we support the principle of the merit system as the basis of appointment to office and promotion in office, and urge its extension to all the agencies of the executive branch of Government, as the means of securing effective administration and enforcement of law."

Labor Asks New Laws on Industry.

Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, presented a long argument in which he asserted labor's demands for recognition in the platform. After reciting the needs for upholding labor the statement says:

"The following proposals constitute the legislative program which labor urges as imperative and eminently constructive, and insists should be included in your platform:

"To promote highest material prosperity and standard of living, which is the basis for national effectiveness as well as an agency for national service, we urge that industry and commerce be freed from legislative prohibitions that restrict development in conformity to economic requirements. To this end we propose the repeal of anti-trust legislation and the enactment of legislation that will provide regulation of the public interest and legalize economic organizations as well as the constructive activities of trade associations.

"It is inescapable that an integral part of legislation establishing this economic policy is full recognition of the right of workers to assist themselves in unions for their protection and advancement both as workers and citizens and collectively to carry on the legitimate functions of trade unions.

"Perversion of the injunction process to supply to personal relations in industrial disputes must be prohibited and equity procedure returned to its beneficent service in protection of property.

"It is essential for the conservation of national vigility that child life be protected. We therefore urge the ratification by the States of the joint resolution passed by the Congress to amend the Constitution empowering the Congress to enact such legislation as will safeguard the future child life of our Republic.

Assail Transportation Act.

"Because the labor clauses of the Transportation act of 1920 have proved ineffective we ask their repeal and the enactment of legislation that will afford opportunity for the voluntary organizations of management and employes to deal with problems of industrial relations.

"We demand the enactment of legislation providing that products of convict labor shipped from one State into another shall be subject to the laws of the latter State exactly as though they had been produced therein.

"In order to mitigate unemployment attending business depressions we urge the enactment of legislation authorizing that construction and repair of public works be initiated in periods of acute unemployment.

"In appreciation we urge adequate provision for the full rehabilitation of all injured in the service during the World War.

"We urge proper recognition of the work of those in the civilian service of the Government with adequate compensation based upon equitable classification.

"We favor the enactment of more comprehensive compensation laws to provide for all workers not covered by State compensation acts. We demand more liberal provisions for those incapacitated by industrial accidents or occupational diseases.

"We maintain that the Volstead act is contrary to the desire of the majority of our citizens as well as the spirit of the Eighteenth Amendment, and we demand that it be modified to permit the manufacture and sale of beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent. alcohol.

"We declare for the maintenance of freedom of speech, press, assemblage and association. We oppose any regulation to restrict these fundamental rights, believing that individuals and groups should be responsible for their acts and utterances.

"We oppose conscription except as a military measure for defensive war and oppose all proposals to initiate compulsory labor under whatever guise.

Urge Joining League and Its Court.

"In order to maintain representative government based upon the will of the people, we advocate a constitutional amendment enabling Congress to re-enact by two-thirds vote any measure declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Labor favors graduated income and inheritance taxes and opposes the sales tax as well as all other attempts to place excessive burdens on those least able to pay.

"We demand that our nation identify itself with international agencies and conferences to promote world peace. We urge membership in the League of Nations and participation in the World Court."

Eddie P. Reid of the Farm Bureau Federation, Walter Pettett, Samuel Thompson and Frank W. Murphy urged planks for relief of the farmer, suggesting cooperative marketing programs and urging the Haugen bill defeated recently in Congress.

Sergio Osmena, President of the Philippine Senate, supported a plank for immediate independence of the Philippines.

Richard P. Hobson presented a plank for the better enforcement of the narcotic law.

Blames Congress for Depression.

Alfred H. Milliken, Chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, presented planks dealing with industry, taxation and relations between capital and labor.

"Good government is the sure foundation of production," he said. "Both are necessary to the health, happiness and contentment of the people. The principles of good government are stated in our Constitution and if we uphold this Constitution our lives and our property and persons are protected.

"Under this Constitution we have grown to be a mighty nation and produce within ourselves practically all our necessities require. Any selfish interference with our constitutional rights impairs to the same extent our happiness as individuals and our progress as a nation.

"The Sixty-eighth Congress, which has just passed out of existence, is not mourned nor wept for. A sigh of relief has passed through the country with the announcement of its death. The radical bills introduced into this Congress, the renegade attacks by it upon wise plans, have created distrust in the minds of men and restrained production throughout the nation, causing unemployment and checking progress.

"With the present hesitation is a fear of the future, and it is with this mind that a large number of business men met under the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers and deliberated on these conditions.

"After careful study and consideration they now present to you, Mr. Chairman, the result of their effort, urging that the ideas embodied in these suggestions may be included in the Republican platform which you are about to announce to the country, believing that by so doing you will increase confidence and diminish fear and enable commerce to continue unhampered by doubt and hesitation."

Publishers Laud Postal Progress.

The American Publishers' Congress and the National Publishers' Association presented the following:

"We commend the present efficient management of our postal service and its handling of enormously increased volume with gradually diminishing rates of expense, together with the inauguration of continuous air mail service from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"We approve all proper methods for the widest dissemination of information and to that end favor the expeditious and economical distribution of newspapers and periodicals.

"We commend the investigation being conducted by the Post Office Department to determine the cost of handling the different classes of mail matter, which will enable the Administration to prescribe just and equitable rates with due regard to the service rendered and the aid of the National Convention."

DRYS APPEAL TO COOLIDGE

Express Fear of Losing Their Desired Plank.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Spokesmen for the "Drys," fearing that there will be no mention of prohibition in the platform, tonight appealed by telegraph to President Coolidge. The telegram was signed by Clinton N. Howard and D. Leigh Colvin, Chairman and Secretary, respectively, of the United Committee for Dry Platforms, representing a score of leading dry organizations.

"We have learned," it said, "from what appears to be reliable sources that it is the intention of the Resolutions Committee to make no specific mention in the platform of the Eighteenth Amendment or prohibition. A general law enforcement plank will not be satisfactory. To evade this issue would be a confession of weakness and a failure of the Republican Party to lead in a great moral issue. We appeal to you as the head of the party."

Will Rogers Enters Convention to Learn, But Says He's as Ignorant as Before

By WILL ROGERS.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—The Republican Vice President conscription convention opened at 11 o'clock this morning with an array of badges that was deafening. I had the thrill of my entire life. I entered the convention press stand with William Jennings Bryan. We were the only two aliens in the entire hall—he the solitary Democrat and I the sole remaining Progressive Bull Moose. Both of us entered, not to jeer, but to be instructed. We came out three hours later more ignorant than when we went in.

As we walked over from the Hollenden Hotel everybody recognized Bryan and spoke. Finally a traffic policeman recognized me, and shook hands and said, "I saw one of your movies last night; they flatter you."

Well, I never in my life felt so grateful for having some one recognize me, and to make it doubly gratifying, he didn't know Bryan.

We sat together in the press stand. Everybody thought I was a plain-clothes man sent along to protect Bryan from the Republicans. I can't blame them, for Lord knows my clothes were plain enough.

As we entered the hall everybody stood up. Both of us looked at each other rather embarrassed, as we didn't know which one the demonstration was meant for. But we were soon set at ease on the subject, when we found that they were rising to sing one of our national anthems, which, by the way, the Republicans don't know any better than the plain people.

It will take America two more wars to learn the words of our national hymn. Sam Blythe was on the other side of me, and when some didn't stand up for the anthem he remarked to me that they were the New Thought.

Bryan and I had no sooner got in the hall than they commenced to pray. The preacher started reading his prayer, which was new to me. Where I come from if a man can't think of anything to pray about off-hand, why, there is no need of him praying. If they couldn't find a Republican that knew how to pray they should have called in a Democrat. They are all praying this year.

The prayer was very long, but, of course the parson may have known his audience and their needs better than me.

Then Mr. Bryan turned to me and said: "You write a humorous column, don't you?"

I looked around to see if anybody was listening and then I said: "Yes, sir."

He said: "Well I write a serious article, and if I think of anything of a comical or funny nature, I will give it to you."

I thanked him and told him: "If I happen to think of anything of a serious nature, I will give it to you."

When he said he wrote seriously, and I said I wrote humorously, I thought afterward we both may be wrong.

I want a whole article to touch on Mr. Burton's keyring speech (a keyring speech is one where the speaker encircles everything good his party has done and leaves outside the ring everything bad).

I listened to it, and it sounded to me like the minutes of the last Congress. Once Mr. Burton referred to the free silver campaign of ninety-some-odd. Mr. Bryan turned to me and said:

"I had forgotten that campaign myself. How did he ever remember it?"

So you see Mr. Bryan was handing me a lot of funny ones, and if you will read his article and there happens to be anything of a serious nature in it that is worth while, you will know that I did my part even if he don't give me screen credit.

I came back to the hotel with him and we had lunch together, and I learned a great many things about politics from a man who has survived longer than any other big leader, and who is still going strong.

In my weekly article I want to tell you some more about our visit.

The biggest applause Mr. Burton got was when he said the Republican Party should remain intact, including La Follette.

From the monologue standpoint the speech was bad. His finishing gag was in the middle. Bryan said "The speaker suffered from a premature climax." I will have to give him a couple of good serious ones to make up for that one.

NEW YORK DELEGATES WAIT COOLIDGE WORD

Stop Worrying About Vice Presidency and Will Vote for His Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Tired of waiting and unable to reach a unanimous decision among themselves as to a candidate for Vice President, members of the New York delegation decided today to do no more worrying, but to leave it all to the President. When word comes from Washington as to whom President Coolidge wants for a running mate, they will vote unanimously for his selection and return home with the feeling that they have done their full duty by the party and that it is up to the party managers to elect the ticket.

There is no enthusiasm among the New York delegates for any of the candidates that has so far been mentioned. A number of them have been in favor of the nomination of General Dawes, but when word went down the line that he would not be acceptable to some of the leaders sentiment switched to former Governor Lowden. When the positive declaration was received from him last night that he would not accept the nomination, interest quickly faded and the delegates decided to "let Washington do it." The impression prevails that President Coolidge already has made his choice known and that the leaders are withholding the name to keep alive some interest in the convention.

Dawes supporters tried hard to convince Lowden boosters that the man who proposed a settlement of Europe's difficulties would be the ideal candidate to run with the President, but the Lowden men countered with the argument that he would not be acceptable to labor and might make the ticket lopsided, in that he would be too aggressive a candidate.

"That is just what is needed," said one Dawes man. "It is well known that President Coolidge will not be an aggressive campaigner on the stump and will be at a disadvantage if the Democrats put up a regular fire-eater. Dawes would be just the man to take the brunt of the battle and let the President make a dignified radio campaign."

"That is just the trouble," a Lowden man countered. "It wouldn't be three weeks before the ticket would be referred to as Dawes and Coolidge."

The Lowden men argued that New York should support their candidate because it went to the convention four years ago practically pledged to Lowden and voted for him for President. It would be more consistent for New York to continue with him for a time longer, they urged.

Nothing has happened yet to stir up the New York delegates to great enthusiasm. They went to the convention today, and the main thrill they got was the Mellon demonstration. Most of them entered into it with gusto.

They are centring their hope for some excitement on the Resolutions Committee. They hope enough opposition will develop to the anti-Klan resolution presented yesterday by William Liebermann of Brooklyn to cause a rumpus on the convention floor. While the resolution was presented by Mr. Liebermann, it was really inspired by Joseph Levenson, who did not want to present it because he is an alternate-at-large and thought there might be objection on this score. Levenson worked hard for the resolution and it is said to have obtained the support of several members of the Resolutions Committee to have it debated in committee meeting, with the expectation of having it included in the platform.

The New York contingent has turned again to the State Gubernatorial situation, and there was considerable talk of candidates. Apparently Colonel William Hayward has not lost any of his following, although friends of H. Edmund Machold assiduously spread the report that the Speaker of the Assembly is in the race to stay. A report had been widely spread that Mr. Machold had decided that his chances were hopeless and had given up the fight. He has told his friends that this is not true, and he is as hopeful of getting the nomination as ever. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's boom also is reported to be in a healthy condition, due to the support of Senator Wadsworth.

News of sudden deaths affected two New Yorkers today. Lafayette B. Gleason, Secretary of the convention and the Republican State Committee, received word that his mother had died suddenly at her home, at Delhi, N. Y., at the age of 90. Mr. Gleason will cut his work here short and return home.

Word was also received of the death of Louis W. Emerson, who was elected a delegate from the Twenty-ninth District. He is represented at the convention by his alternate, James S. Parker.

WISCONSIN PLANKS COVER WIDE RANGE

Platform Demands Ending of "Usurpation" by the Federal Courts.

AGAINST ENJOINING LABOR

Other Declarations Are for Public Ownership of Railroads and Revision of Peace Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Soon after the opening gavel had fallen at the Republican National Convention the La Follette "Progressive Republican" platform, ratified by the Republican voters of Wisconsin at the April primaries, was made public by Representative Henry Allen Cooper.

The text of the platform follows:

The great issue before the American people today is the control of government and industry by private monopoly.

For a generation the people have struggled patiently, in the face of repeated betrayals by successive Administrations, to free themselves from this intolerable power which has been undermining representative government.

Through control of Government, monopoly has steadily extended its absolute dominion to every basic industry.

In violation of law, monopoly has crushed competition, stifled private initiative and independent enterprise and without fear of punishment now exacts extortionate profits from every necessity of life consumed by the public.

The equality of opportunity proclaimed by the Declaration of Independence and asserted and defended by Jefferson and Lincoln as the heritage of every American citizen has been displaced by special privilege for the few, wrested from the government of the many.

That tyrannical power which the American people denied to a king they will not longer endure from the monopoly system. The people know they cannot yield to any group the control of the economic life of the nation and preserve their political liberties.

They know monopoly has its representatives in the halls of Congress, on the Federal bench and in the executive departments; that these servile agents barter away the nation's natural resources, nullify acts of Congress by judicial veto and administrative favor, invade the people's rights by unlawful arrests and unconstitutional searches and seizures, direct our foreign policy in the interests of predatory wealth and make wars and conscript the sons of the common people to fight them.

"Usurpation" by Federal Courts.

The usurpation in recent years by the Federal courts of the power to nullify laws duly enacted by the legislative branch of the Government is a plain violation of the Constitution. Abraham Lincoln, in his first inaugural address, said: "The candid citizen must confess that if the policy of the Government, upon vital questions affecting the whole people, is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions of the Supreme Court, the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent practically resigned their Government into the hands of that eminent tribunal."

The Constitution specifically vests all legislative power in the Congress, giving that body power and authority, to override the veto of the President. The Federal courts are given no authority under the Constitution to veto acts of Congress. Since the Federal courts have assumed to exercise such veto power it is essential that the Constitution shall give to the Congress the right to override such judicial veto, otherwise the court will make itself master over the other coordinate branches of the Government. The people themselves must approve or disapprove the present exercise of legislative power by the Federal courts."

Plea for Bankrupt Farmers.

The present condition of American agriculture constitutes an emergency of the gravest character. The Department of Commerce report shows that during 1923 there was a steady and marked increase in dividends paid by the great industrial corporations. The same is true of the steam and electric railways and practically all other large corporations. On the other hand, the Secretary of Agriculture reports that in the fifteen principal wheat growing States more than 108,000 farmers since 1920 have lost their farms through foreclosure or bankruptcy; that more than 122,000 have surrendered their property without legal proceedings, and that nearly 375,000 have retained possession of their property only through the leniency of their creditors, making a total of more than 600,000, or 26 per cent. of all farmers who have virtually been bankrupt since 1920 in these fifteen States alone.

Almost unlimited prosperity for the great corporations and ruin and bankruptcy for agriculture is the direct and logical result of the policies and legislation which deflated the farmer while extending almost unlimited credit to the great corporations; which protected with exorbitant tariffs the industrial magnates, but depressed the prices of the farmers' products by financial juggling, while greatly increasing the cost of what he must buy, which guarantees excessive freight rates to the railroads and put a premium on wasteful management, while saddling an unwarranted burden onto the backs of the American farmer, which permitted gambling in the products of the farm by grain speculators to the great detriment of the farmer and to the great profit of the grain gambler.

Awakened by the dangers which menace their freedom and prosperity, the American people still retain the right and courage to exercise their sovereign control over their Government. In order to destroy the economic and political power of monopoly, which has come between the people and their Government, we pledge ourselves to the following principles and policies:

"1. We pledge a complete housecleaning in the Department of Justice, the Department of the Interior and the other executive departments. We demand that the power of the Federal Government be used to crush private monopoly, not to foster it.

"2. We pledge recovery of the navy's oil reserves and all other parts of the public domain which have been fraudulently or illegally leased, or otherwise wrongfully transferred, to the control of private interests; vigorous prosecution of all public officials, private citizens and corporations that participated in these transactions; complete revision of the Water Power act, the General Leasing act and all other legislation relating to the public domain. We favor public ownership of the nation's water power and the creation and development of a national super-water power system and strict public control and permanent conservation of all the nation's resources, including coal, iron and other ores, oil and timber lands, in the interest of the people.

"3. We favor repeal of the Esch-Cummins railroad law and the fixing of railroad rates upon the basis of actual, prudent investment and cost of service. We declare for public ownership of railroads with definite safeguards against bureaucratic control as the only final solution of the transportation problem.

"4. We favor reduction of Federal taxes upon individual incomes and legitimate business, limiting tax exactions strictly to the requirements of the Government administered with rigid economy, particularly by curtailment of the $800,000,000 now annually expended for the army and navy in preparation for future wars; by the recovery of the hundreds of millions stolen from the Treasury through fraudulent war contracts and the corrupt leasing of the public resources, and by diligent action to collect the accumulated interest upon $11,000,000,000 owing us by foreign Governments.

Mellon Tax Plan Denounced.

"We denounce the Mellon tax plan as a device to relieve multi-millionaires at the expense of other taxpayers and favor a taxation policy providing for immediate reductions upon moderate incomes, large increases in the inheritance tax rates upon large estates to prevent the indefinite accumulation by inheritance of great fortunes in a few hands; taxes upon excess profits to penalize profiteering, and complete publicity under proper safeguards of all Federal tax returns.

"5. We favor submitting to the people for their considerate judgment a constitutional amendment providing that Congress may by re-enacting a statute make it effective over a judicial veto.

"We favor such amendment to the Constitution as may be necessary to provide for the election of all Federal Judges, without party designation, for fixed terms not exceeding ten years, by direct vote of the people.

"6. We favor drastic reduction of the exorbitant duties on manufactures provided in the Fordney-McCumber tariff legislation, the prohibiting of gambling by speculators and profiteers in agricultural products; the reconstruction of the Federal Reserve and Federal Farm Loan systems, so as to eliminate control by usurers, speculators and international financiers, and to make the credit of the nation available upon fair terms to all and without discrimination to business men, farmers and home builders. We favor such further legislation as may be needful or helpful in promoting and protecting cooperative enterprises and demand that the Interstate Commerce Commission proceed forthwith to reduce by an approximation to pre-war levels the present freight rates on agricultural products, including live stock, and upon the materials required upon American farms for agricultural purposes.

Against Injunctions in Labor Disputes.

"7. We favor the abolition of the use of injunctions in labor disputes and declare for complete protection of the right of farmers and industrial workers to organize, bargain collectively and conduct without hindrance cooperative enterprises. We favor prompt ratification of the pending child labor amendment to the Constitution.

"8. We favor compensation for the veterans of the late war, not as charity, but as a matter of right, and we demand that the money necessary to meet this obligation of the Government be raised by taxes laid upon wealth in proportion to the ability to pay, and declare our opposition to the sales tax or any other device to shift this obligation onto the backs of the poor in higher prices and increased cost of living.

"9. We favor a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the sea. The Government should, in conjunction with Canada, take immediate action to give the Northwestern States an outlet to the ocean for cargoes without change in bulk, thus making the primary markets on the Great Lakes equal to those of New York.

"10. Over and above constitutions and statutes and greater than all is the supreme sovereignty of the people, and with them should rest the final decision of all great questions of national policy. We favor such amendments to the Federal Constitution as may be necessary to provide for the direct nomination and election of the President, to extend the initiative and referendum to the Federal Government and to insure a popular referendum for or against war, except in cases of actual invasion.

Would Revise Versailles Treaty.

"11. We denounce the mercenary system of degraded foreign policy under recent Administrations in the interests of financial imperialists, oil monopolists and international brokers, which has at times degraded our State Department from its high service as a strong and kindly intermediary of defenseless Governments to a trading outpost for those interests and concession seekers engaged in the exploitation of weaker nations, as contrary to the will of the American people, destructive of domestic development and provocative of war. We favor an active foreign policy to bring about a revision of the Versailles Treaty in accordance with the terms of the armistice and to promote firm treaty agreements with all nations to outlaw wars, abolish conscription, drastically reduce land, air and naval armaments and guarantee public referendums on peace and war.

TIMES PICTURES BY WIRE.

Come Through by Telephone Before Airplane Gets Half Way.

Among the convention pictures which were sent from Cleveland yesterday by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company over the wire was one taken at the opening of the session just after the invocation had been offered. The telephone company officials kept the time on the preparation and transmission of this picture, particularly since another taken at the same time was rushed to New York by one of the news services, using an airplane for the purpose.

The picture was taken in the convention hall at 12:20 P. M., New York daylight saving time. It was received in the transmission station at Cleveland at 12:47. At 1:35 the transmission began. Five minutes later, or 1:40, the negative had been completed in the receiving room at 195 Broadway.

A single print could have been prepared a few minutes after that. The telephone company, however, is giving out prints to all publications on an equal basis and therefore would not release any until twenty-five prints had been prepared. These were completed and distributed at 2:54.

Although telephone company officials disclaim any intention of seeking a record performance in the transmission of this picture, they point out that at the moment it was being made available for evening newspapers in New York an airplane bearing the same picture from Cleveland was probably somewhere over the Allegheny Mountains in Pennsylvania.

OLD PARTY LEADERS TAKE BACK SEATS

Searcher for Familiar Faces Finds Them Far From Centre of Convention Activities.

SOME MERELY LOOKING ON

Contrast With 1920 Brought Out by Seating Arrangements of the Present Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—The diminishing power of the Senate bloc and the Old Guard leaders in the Republican Party councils and the dominant position now occupied by the Coolidge-Butler organization as the directing force in party affairs was strikingly illustrated today at the opening session of the Republican National Convention.

At no time, as far back as the oldest of the political observers could remember, has the old membership of the party held such an unimpressive place in the picture as it did at the convention hall this morning, and it required a careful searching of the big hall to locate most of the men who at former conventions, for a score of years or more, have held the centre of the stage.

In the 1920 convention at Chicago, for instance, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and Senator Smoot of Utah stood shoulder to shoulder on the speakers' platform, Mr. Lodge as Permanent Chairman of the convention pounding sturdily with his gavel for order as the final ballot was taken and Warren G. Harding was nominated. Senator Smoot and half a dozen of the old-time leaders had walked forward on the platform, full in the glare of the spotlight, smiling and congratulating each other as one delegation after another cast its ballots according to instructions that had been given.

Smoot and Lodge Out of the Picture.

Today as the Coolidge-Butler steam roller was put in operation and the last hope of the old-timers that they might yet win a position of power was crushed out, Senator Smoot occupied a seat well back on the platform, taking no part whatsoever in the proceedings except as a delegate and onlooker. Senator Lodge had a front row seat with the Massachusetts delegation, so far forward, indeed, as to place him under the shadow of the platform, thus making him inconspicuous. Stripped of all his power at the dictation of William M. Butler, Mr. Lodge took no active part in the happenings. On his right was Speaker Gillett, candidate for the Senate, and on his left Governor Cox, elected yesterday as head of the Massachusetts delegation because it had been ruled that he and not Lodge should get that post.

On the platform about the only tried and true representatives of the Old Guard who figured in today's proceedings were John T. Adams, retiring Chairman of the National Committee, and George B. Lockwood, retiring Secretary. It was essential that they should step to the front of the platform while the spotlight played upon it, as Mr. Adams had a duty to perform—that of announcing the nomination of Mr. Burton as temporary Chairman, and also the personnel of committees that had been named. Mr. Lockwood must assist him.

Mr. Adams prefaced the conclusion of his active participation in the convention and in the party affairs by making an oration welcoming the delegation and guests to the convention hall and wishing the party leadership that has overthrown him good luck. He devoted perhaps two minutes to this task, bowed to Mr. Burton, whom he had introduced as temporary Chairman, and withdrew.

Notables in Balcony Seats.

A search about the hall in the quest of notables was a task for a specialist in political faces of other days. Some were found in the balconies with friends, others sitting in remote parts of the great hall with their State delegations, still others among the 500 or more of the "prominent" ones who had seats on a large platform to the rear of the speaker's rostrum.

Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, who was defeated for the renomination in the recent primaries and is not a delegate to this convention, was seen in one of the balcony seats, looking on with grim face while the Coolidge-Butler program was put under way. Mr. McCormick and Senator Lodge are "irreconcilable" on the World Court-League of Nations issue and apparently not in sympathy with the new order of things that has been introduced with the ascendency of the President as party director.

Representative Longworth of Ohio, Republican floor leader of the House, was seen first in the balcony and later made his way toward the space on the arena floor occupied by the Ohio delegation to pass the time of day with some of his friends. Mr. Longworth managed the fight in the House for a compromise Tax bill and the compromise which he agreed to as acceptable was not what President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon desired. Mrs. Longworth, daughter of the late Colonel Roosevelt, and a prominent figure at other Republican conventions of recent years, skipped this convention.

An incident which attracted some attention because of the obvious bad feeling among various groups of political thought here happened when Chairman Adams announced as a member of the committee to escort Temporary Chairman Burton to the platform Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota. The Senator did not put in an appearance when the committee strolled forward and ushered Mr. Burton to the rostrum. Senator Norbeck, of course, is not of the Old Guard. He is one of the stanch supporters of the extreme "left wing" of the party, which didn't favor the Mellon tax plan, wanted farm legislation adopted before Congress adjourned and led the primary fight for Senator Hiram Johnson as a Presidential candidate in South Dakota. What the explanation may be, a substitute appeared for Senator Norbeck on the Presentation Committee.

William Barnes, a dominant and frequently a domineering figure in conventions some by, including the 1920 convention, was at the convention, but his place was an inconspicuous one. Mr. Barnes was one of the Old Guard stalwarts who in 1920 figured in the meeting in the "smoke-filled room at 2:11 o'clock in the morning" where the decision was made to nominate Harding. In 1920 Mr. Barnes also stood by, backing up and urging on Chairman Lodge, Senator Smoot and others as they counted off the ballots. Frequent director of the Old Guard steam roller, Mr. Barnes, not even a delegate to this convention, sat solemn faced, inactive and uncommunicative near the New York delegation as the new steam roller went on its way.

NATION HEARS BY RADIO.

Fifteen Stations Broadcast Convention to 25,000,000 Listeners.

Fifteen of the country's most powerful radiophone stations scattered from Boston to Kansas City broadcast the opening session of the Republican National Convention yesterday to an audience of approximately 25,000,000 persons, according to estimates.

Two New York stations, WJZ on top of Aeolian Hall, and WEAF, 195 Broadway, were "on the air" with the proceedings from Cleveland at 11:30 A. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time. There was no static along the eastern coast, enabling thousands to hear the entire session commencing with music of Sousa's band, and the keynote speech by Representative Burton. WEAF worked on the 492 meter wave length and WJZ on 455 meters. Other stations in this region were silent, so that no interference resulted.

The radio stations were all connected with the microphones in Cleveland by telephone lines furnished by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The convention announcer was Graham McNamee of WEAF's staff, and his voice served all stations simultaneously.

Radio stores throughout New York reported increased business in radio yesterday and the demonstration rooms of many of the larger stores were crowded with enthusiasts listening-in on Cleveland.

Stations linked up in the convention circuit will start broadcasting the second day's session at 11 A. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, with preliminary announcements. They follow:

LA FOLLETTE BOLT SEEMS UNLIKELY

Wisconsin Men Are Not Expected to Quit Convention While in Session.

STATE PATRONAGE AT STAKE

Technical Regularity Would Insure Senator Control of Offices and Election Machinery.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—While a bolt on the part of the Wisconsin delegation from the Republican National Convention undoubtedly would provide a starting point for the launching of a third party quite as spectacular as the exodus of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and his Bull Moose following from the 1912 convention, there is not the slightest likelihood that anything the present party gathering could do would have the effect of driving the small group of La Follette men from the seats they are occupying in the convention hall.

For all his "idealism" the senior Senator from Wisconsin, who at this moment may hold in the hollow of his hand victory or defeat for President Coolidge as the nominee of the Republican Party, has never been blind to the practical side of a political situation. His delegation is filled with hard-headed politicians, as practical in the accepted sense of that term as it applies to politics as any member of the Tammany Hall Executive Committee. Senator La Follette himself has learned the game of politics in his home State from the ground up. While the attainment of ideals for which he has contended may be his ultimate aim, political history will record that he never overlooked the necessity of keeping patronage and political machinery within his control to perpetuate himself and his adherents in power.

Wisconsin Men Technically "Regular."

So while it is a pretty safe bet that after the national conventions of the two older parties there will be a second Cleveland convention which will select Senator La Follette as standard-bearer for a third party, it is an equally safe bet that the twenty-eight La Follette delegates who after that event will probably be out to defeat the nominee of the first convention held in Cleveland will not leave the present gathering until the gavel has fallen for the last time and then depart with at least the seeming stamp of regularity.

The La Follette delegates were indirectly denounced as "irregular" in the keynote speech delivered today by Representative Theodore E. Burton and were invited to get out by voices both from the floor of the convention hall where the delegates were seated, and from the galleries, where the visitors sat; but they did not appear to be disturbed, nor did they make any move to accept the invitation. It is predicted that when consideration of the platform becomes the order of business tomorrow, and the La Follette radical platform is offered as a substitute for the one recommended by the Committee on Resolutions, the delegation from Senator La Follette's State will come in for even more pressing invitations to vacate their seats in the convention and will turn a deaf ear to them.

By continuing "regular" as far as his own State is concerned, even though he becomes the Presidential candidate of a hostile party, Senator La Follette will not only be in a position to place his own followers in all elective State offices and elect a majority of La Follette men to both branches of the Legislature, thus making sure of the State patronage as well as control of the election machinery, but he will be able to put in a hand-picked Republican Central Committee in Wisconsin, thus insuring to himself control of the Republican Party machinery of his own State.

How Wisconsin Direct Primary Works.

While Senator La Follette has always been an advocate in public of the widest application of the direct primary system, there is nothing in the primary law in vogue in Wisconsin, which the Senator was instrumental in placing on the statute books, to prevent absolute one-man control of a party organization and the selection of a hand-picked State Committee. In fact, from all appearances the Wisconsin election law was designed to promote one-man control.

In New York State, for instance, and in most States with a direct primary law in operation, members of party committees are designated by petition and elected at the direct primary. Not so in Wisconsin. There the central party committee is selected by the successful candidates, nominated in the primaries, for elective State offices and for the Legislature. These candidates pick the members of central committees at the time when they meet in convention to adopt a State platform. The county committees are not the creation of the general electorate, either. The members are not designated by petition and elected at primaries. Two members from each voting precinct are elected, and these two in turn have their say about who shall be the other members of the county committees from their respective constituencies.

If participation in the primary elections at which the candidates who in turn pick the members of the governing party committees are nominated were confined to enrolled members of the party directly involved, control of the selection of central committee members might be regarded as being at least indirectly insured to the dominant majority that nominated the candidates. In New York State only enrolled Republicans, Democrats or Socialists can vote in the primaries of their respective parties. There is no party enrollment. A Democrat or a Socialist can go into the Republican primaries and vote for the nomination of candidates whom in the general election he does not expect to support, and no questions are asked.

Hence, Democrats or Socialists, eager to bring about the defeat of President Coolidge in the State and keep strong and in power an organization which may be a thorn in the side of the Republican Party and an obstacle to the success of its candidates on the national ticket, will have every opportunity to aid in the selection of the Republican Party's candidates and through them in the picking of members of its governing committee in Wisconsin.

Courtesy Surprises La Follette Men.

There was a feeling among the Wisconsin delegates this afternoon that the Convention Committee on Resolutions would defeat the resolutions calling down the ban of the convention upon Daugherty and Fall and praising those who forced them out of the Cabinet. There appeared to be no regret over the prospect of their defeat, and some degree of disappointment was shown when word reached the La Follette delegation at the Hotel Winton that the Resolutions Committee had shown every courtesy to those speaking for Wisconsin before it.

To be sure, the committee at first declined to let Representative Henry Allen Cooper, Senator La Follette's spokesman, read the resolutions, under a rule providing that only non-members of the Resolutions Committee should be heard at the public meeting. Mr. Cooper represents Wisconsin on the committee. Robert M. La Follette Jr., Chairman of the Republican Central Committee of Wisconsin, then rushed Governor John J. Blaine, head of the Wisconsin delegation, over to the meeting to read the resolutions.

The platform adopted by the Wisconsin Republicans at the April primaries, which is not identical with the resolutions which were drafted and adopted by members of the Wisconsin delegation and have not been ratified by the voters, will be offered from the floor of the convention tomorrow on behalf of the Wisconsin delegation in the absence of favorable action by the committee.

Robert M. La Follette Jr. said tonight that if the La Follette men claimed the right to continue in control of the party machinery of their home State, that was in full accordance with the wishes of the Republican voters in Wisconsin, as expressed at primaries and elections.

"My father," he said, "was re-elected to the United States Senate by the biggest majority ever rolled up at a State election. He won by a majority of 301,000. That was in 1922. In the primaries this Spring our delegates won by better than a two-to-one vote over the Coolidge delegates."

Not Bidding for Democratic Acceptance.

"Will anything be done, directly or indirectly, to give the Democratic National Convention an opportunity to accept the Wisconsin platform?" Mr. La Follette was asked.

"No," he said. "What the Democratic National Convention does is no direct concern of ours. What this convention does is. The men who will offer the Wisconsin platform here tomorrow were charged with that duty by the Republican voters of Wisconsin. It is only incidentally we are acting for the millions of Progressives throughout the United States who have no other spokesmen here. We have no mandate to put this before the other party."

There are many Republicans here who do not believe that Senator La Follette will make a third party fight for the Presidency, even though they wish he would as a means of getting him out of the Republican Party.

"At the present time and in his present position he is stronger than he could be under any other circumstances short of a victory in the national election that he could scarcely expect to win," said one of these. "He holds the balance of power in both branches of the Congress. The outcome of the Presidential election probably depends on his future course. Is he likely to surrender such a position of power on a mere chance of deadlocking the Electoral College and the remote possibility that in such event the House may pick him as a winner? If he does he is a crazier idealist than I believe him to be."

Mr. La Follette said that since he arrived here he had been assured by Republicans from many different States of support for the nominee of the third party.

"There have been quite a lot of them coming in to say that they are with us," he said.

"Any delegates among them?" was asked.

"No, we could hardly expect that," he replied. "Six delegates from South Dakota were present at the meeting last night, but they were here to listen."

La Follette Men in Night Caucus.

The Wisconsin delegation held another caucus tonight. The meeting was behind closed doors and lasted for more than an hour. According to the younger La Follette, it was an "experience meeting," with no discussion of plans.

Under the announcement made last night when the adjourned meeting was called, the question of reaching an agreement on a Vice Presidential nominee was to have been taken up. Mr. La Follette said discussion on this topic had been postponed until tomorrow evening.

"Have you any candidate for second place," Mr. La Follette was asked.

"No, and we have not discussed the matter at all," he replied. "Oddly enough, a certain gentleman was asked today to sound the 'Old Guard' leaders whether they would be willing to accept my father as a candidate for second place in order to keep him with the party. That shows how little some people understand what we are fighting for."

Curley Commiserates Lodge; Sends Key to Boston to Him

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 10.—Mayor Curley today sent a key to the city to Senator Lodge at Cleveland in token of Boston's appreciation of the senior Senator's votes in favor of the bonus, of the Bursum bill and of salary increases to Post Office employes.

"Pray do not permit the inhospitality of the Republican bosses at Cleveland to cause you great uneasiness," wrote the Mayor in a letter accompanying the parcel. "Your vote in favor of the soldiers' bonus, for the Bursum bill and for salary increases to Post Office employes merited the approval of patriotic citizens of Boston. At their request I am forwarding to you a key to the city.

"Regardless of the attitude of the Republican bosses, you will experience neither hostility nor coldness when you re-enter the gates of our fair city after the Republican Convention is over."

MR. GLOOM CHEERED BY TWO KEYNOTES

Both Burton's and Bishop Anderson's Offerings Were Best Democratic Doctrine, He Says.

LIKES UNBOSSED GATHERING

Delegates' Freedom to Choose a Vice President Appears Absolute—Wouldn't Tax Humbug.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 10.—Godfrey G. Gloom, the old-fashioned Democrat from Amity, Ind., was discovered by a TIMES reporter this afternoon engaged in the dual occupation of standing in a hotel lobby and watching other people standing in a hotel lobby, which is the principal diversion of convention visitors these days.

"What did you think of the keynote?" the reporter asked.

"It seemed to me," said Mr. Gloom, cautiously, "that the frequent emphasis on righteousness was very much to the point in this here Republican convention, though not altogether tactful. And when he said, 'May the delegates be men of clean hands' he must have occasioned a lot of painful memories to the old-timers. For at this convention the delegates have got no chance to get their hands mussed up with corrupt Mammon. Nobody is goin' to buy votes for the Vice Presidency."

"But Mr. Burton said nothing about righteousness or clean hands," the reporter objected.

"Oh!" said Mr. Gloom, "you mean Burton's keynote. I thought you was referrin' to the one by Bishop Anderson. Yes, I know they called it an invocation, but it was a keynote just the same. First place, it was addressed to the convention rather than the Almighty, and it was full of quotations from poetry, like Burton's keynote, and seemed just about as long. And while it may have seemed impolite in its frequent remarks about righteousness, it wasn't much worse than Burton's, which, after all, was devoted mainly to denunciation of the Republicans for what they'd done to Coolidge."

Would Suit Pat Harrison.

"That keynote of Burton's, with just a few changes, would have gone down pretty well at a Democratic convention. He started off by saying that he could review only briefly the beneficial legislation of the last Administration, which is the only way anybody could review it; and even in that brief review he had to tag onto his description of most every measure a few words of apology to the effect that this wasn't much, of course, but it was the best you could expect of a Republican Congress.

"Give us a Coolidge Congress," he says, "and you'll get some action. Considerin' that when he got around to the World Court he plumped downright for a policy that nobody in the Senate supports except the Democrats, I can see how a lot of these Republicans would feel that his remarks would have been much more appropriate comin' from Pat Harrison.

"Yes, sir, I never heard a more thorough exposure of the all-round iniquity of a Republican Congress. The only man he was ever quoted as favorin' was good word for it was Bryan. There was a lot of sound Democratic doctrine in that speech. He says, for instance, that the Federal Reserve Board should be left untouched by spoilsmen, and we all know what a Democratic President that appointed Mr. Crissinger.

"All in all, I think this unbossed convention of Mr. Coolidge's has set a fine precedent in American politics. Too long have a few men in a smoke-filled room had the delegates to their wicked will. That's all changed now.

"I was talkin' this afternoon to Perry Morton Briscoe, the delegate from my district; and he says to me: 'Godfrey,' says he, 'you're one who has been a delegate before, I'm so delighted at bein' unbossed I hardly know what to do with my freedom. I don't have to sit around and wait for orders as to how to vote for President; that's all been settled.

"'I don't have to worry about how somebody is goin' to work on me and swing my vote on the platform, for that will all be settled, too. Here I am, free and unbossed, in perfect liberty to join with the rest of the delegates in nominatin' a Vice President, unless Mr. Coolidge happens to think of somebody who would be a good man for the job before you get here. Yes sir, I can't imagine how it feels to one who's been used to the wicked ways of the old school in politics.'

Sees Party Fallen on Evil Days.

"Yes, sir," Mr. Gloom continued; "the Republican Party has certainly fallen on evil days. It never dreamed this man Coolidge would turn all the Republicans out to graze and tell 'em not to come back for a couple of years, 'till they got good and fed up with wild grass and exile. But they'll come back, and probably come back to have the laugh on Mr. Coolidge. I seen this party disrupted too often to take much stock in the present antagonism between the Coolidge men and the Republicans. The Coolidge men may be on top now, but the Republicans will come back. They always do.

"What did you think of Mr. Burton's suggestion of a tax on humbug and hypocrisy?" the reporter asked.

"That ain't a practical question," said Mr. Gloom impatiently. "If you ever slipped a joker like that into a revenue bill and got it enacted, it would just plain put an end to American politics. This man Burton can say things like that because he's got a sideline. Any time he gets tired of politics he can go back to the banking business. But most of these fellows ain't got no way to live but humbug and hypocrisy. That goes for both parties, and the third party, too.

"However, speak as a Democrat, interested only in observin' the peculiar things the Republican Party does when it is unbossed. They're very strong on ancestor worship, these Republicans. Maybe that's one thing that helps 'em last, like China, where ancestor worship is also a cult. They had a picture of Roosevelt up there in their hall today, and nobody had the nerve to ask what Roosevelt would have said about Daugherty and Forbes and Fall. Who knows, any way? Maybe he would have said they were all practical men."

CONVENTION MOVIES HERE.

Broadway Audiences See Pictures Brought by Air From Cleveland.

Moving pictures of the opening incidents of the Republican Convention in Cleveland were shown at the Broadway theatres last night. Pathé news photographers rushed their film from the convention hall to a development room, where four positive prints were quickly made and, with the negative, sent to Wilbur Field outside the city. There they were placed in a Curtiss airplane piloted by Wesley Smith, who rose from the field at 3:15 (Eastern Standard Time). The plane landed safely at West Side Park, N. J., where the films were put in automobiles and taken to the theatre projection rooms. It was 9:30 o'clock when the pictures were flashed out for the Broadway audiences.

Among the scenes shown were those of the delegates assembling in the hall, with various "shots" of the building and the decorations, as well as one of Representative Burton making the keynote speech. The final picture was that showing Mr. Burton leading his place to the Permanent Chairman, Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming.

Text of the Keynote Speech by Representative Burton at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Representative Burton of Ohio delivered the keynote speech at the Republican convention's opening session here today. The text follows:

Chairman Adams, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I greet this vast throng. I speak for the citizens of Cleveland, irrespective of party affiliations, when I bid you a cordial welcome. The people of this city wish you godspeed. They rejoice to receive you in their midst. They hope for success in your deliberations and for your pleasure and benefit while you stay. We are in the midst of the bustle and the rush, the dust and the smoke of a busy industrial community, but the pure air of heaven is around and above us and a friendly spirit is everywhere.

It is appropriate that a Republican National Convention should assemble in Ohio. Of the eleven of our party who have held the great office of President, seven have been natives of this Buckeye Commonwealth and five were elected from our midst. You will recall the names of Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Harrison, McKinley, Taft and Harding.

There is a special appropriateness in meeting in this city, for in this lesser area in which all roads lead to Cleveland there are memorials everywhere which speak for the achievements and tell of the leaders of the nation.

Not far away are the resting places of Garfield, McKinley, Hayes and Harding. The tomb of James A. Garfield and a monument to his memory are within the city limits. He was born on a barren farm in this county, and in rising step by step from lowly station to the highest executive position in the world none displayed more clearly than he the wonderful possibilities of American life.

Leader in peace and war, he was the victim of the revengeful frenzy of a disappointed office seeker. If his worst enemy had contemplated such a frightful crime he would have shrunk from it in horror and might have said after Macbeth:

"* * * Besides this Garfield
Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been
So clear in his great office, that his virtues
Will plead, like angels trumpet-tongued, against
The deep damnation of his taking off."

McKinley, too, was stricken down in his splendid prime by one whose brain was reeking with the monstrosities of anarchy. How sorrowful the death of one whose name will be forever associated with that captivating charm which compels admiration and love!

Pays Tribute to Harding.

Almost equally pathetic was the death of Warren G. Harding, whose untiring labors made him a martyr to service and brought an early death quite as sad as that of the soldier who perishes with all his armor on. The exacting duties of his high office did not slacken his constant striving, though ill health and weakness hung threatening as a sword above his head.

A nation bowed in grief mourned his death; the whole world mourned him as a lover of peace and good-will. If ever he made those mistakes which mortals must make, it was because of the kindness of his heart, because of a noble mind which thought no ill of friend or foe but reposed trust in every one.

If I may imitate and enlarge upon the words of a funeral eulogy uttered by a famous orator, it may be said of Harding that if all who have gained inspiration by listening to his eloquent words, every one who has felt the warm grasp of his friendly hand, the many who received his sympathy in days of sorrow, were to plant a flower upon his grave, a tangled wilderness of flowers would surround his tomb; the snow-white anemone, the blue violet, blossoms of golden hue or brightest red, poppies like those from Flanders field would spread a garment of beauty all around. Rest, Wearied Spirit, rest in peace, secure in that lasting remembrance which belongs to the immortals.

This convention has one unique distinction which in itself will give it a most notable place in the history of party gatherings. This is the first time in a national political convention that women have taken their place as delegates under a right of suffrage vouchsafed by the Federal Constitution. More than 400 are here as delegates duly elected, giving emphasis to this radical departure.

You are welcome thrice welcome here; welcome to the privileges and responsibilities, the triumphs and rewards, of participating in the control of this the world's foremost democracy. In this later day when woman's sphere has been so enlarged, when social questions have assumed such importance, and the aims of government are more in terms of human welfare, the finer graces, the keen discrimination of women are needed in the body politic.

I scarcely need remind you that of the thirty-six States which ratified the suffrage amendment at least three-fourths belong in the Republican column, and in the last Presidential election all but three gave majorities for Harding. And now no nonchalant or superficial regard for this new duty will suffice, whether you favored suffrage or not. This convention relies upon your activities in the coming campaign.

Party of Prosperity and Peace.

Let us survey briefly the record of this Republican Administration. The 4th of March, 1921, witnessed a country still suffering from the results of the colossal world struggle; there was disaster upon the land. The war, with its aftermath of reckless expenditure and feverish living, had given place to a dull, hopeless inactivity.

Here, as abroad, were industrial depression and armies of unemployed. Indeed, five millions were seeking work and finding none. Formal peace had not been established with the nations with which we had been at war. There was a chilling record of waste which spread its blighting influence over every form of administrative service. The demands of a new America had to be met with wisdom and patriotism.

It is fair to say that so long as the Democratic Party continued in power after the war America's progress on the road to rehabilitation was hardly, more satisfactory than that of the European countries. But when the Republican Party came in, re-establishing nation-wide confidence that its time-tried capacity for constructive policies and administration were now at the country's service, there was immediate improvement. The Democrats could not even make peace. The Republicans did.

Scarcely half a year had passed when a turn was called. Workmen in multitudes returned to the shops, peace was proclaimed, and that stability which is the strength and life of nations dwelt there as in no measure not enjoyed by any other part of the earth. If there is now a slackening of activity it is due to uncertainties in our domestic policies, fiscal and other, and to the unsettled state of Europe; but the same guiding principles which brought us to a higher plane can sustain us still and open the door for a more splendid future.

Foremost in international affairs was the Conference for the Limitation of Armaments in the years 1921 and 1922. That conference pointed the way to stop the mad race for naval expansion, provided a means of settlement for years to come of questions in and around the Pacific Ocean, placed the stamp of disapproval upon the submarine, the assassin of the sea, and upon the more terrible use of poisonous gas in warfare.

It made the long-sought open door in China a reality, and gave to that most populous of all countries new grounds for hope and assurance of protection from foreign aggression. In the path that leads to peace no gathering has been more notable or more successful than that which convened in our own Washington in an atmosphere of goodwill and international cooperation.

We may point not only to the disappearance of unemployment, but to the great progress in the payment of our national debt. That debt, which amounted to nearly 24 billions on March 4, 1921, three years later had been reduced by much more than 2 billions.

Reviews Legislative Record.

I can review only briefly the beneficial legislation which has been enacted during the life of this Administration, especially in its first two years.

At an early date the budget system was adopted, introducing order instead of confusion and competition in demands for public expenditure, securing economy and providing for the balancing of expenditures and revenue. Such a system had been the earnest and unanimous desire of all students of the subject for years. A law establishing it had been passed by a Republican Congress in the last year of the preceding Administration, but it met with a Presidential veto.

The budget in the first year of its operation resulted in a reduction of $400,000,000 from the estimates of the spending departments. If there is any one thing which is desirable in our fiscal system, it is that we should stand firmly by the budget in the future.

A customs bill was enacted in 1921 which lessened by over $800,000,000 per year the taxes which would have been collected under the prior law. The revenue bill just passed, though abounding in defects, very materially diminishes the burdens of the people and partially or entirely does away with some of the more vexatious taxes.

A tariff act was passed adapted to the situation prevailing since the war and based upon the fundamental idea that our labor and our enterprise should not be handicapped by differences between foreign and domestic costs, but with no aim to promote monopoly or extortion, and with a very useful provision that in the event any rates prove to be lower or higher than they should be, the President by proclamation, on the advice of the Tariff Commission, can make necessary changes and adjustments.

Contrary to the pessimistic forecasts confidently made by opponents of this measure, both exports and imports have very substantially increased since its passage. As a revenue measure it has amply justified itself, for the customs receipts in the year 1923, amounting to the unprecedented sum of $562,000,000, exceeded those from any Democratic tariff ever written by more than $100,000,000.

An act for the funding of foreign debts was passed. These debts rested upon agreements or obligations hastily drawn in the stress of war and lacking definite terms. Already England, for centuries proud of her credit, has executed bonds for $4,600,000,000, on which interest is, for the third time, to be paid today. Payments have also been made upon principal. Bonds for much smaller amounts have been executed by Finland and Hungary, and it is hoped that other countries will make like settlements.

Stresses Duty to Soldiers.

Comprehensive legislation has been adopted for the veterans of the late war, co-ordinating a great variety of conflicting and inharmonious methods and bureaus in the Veterans' Bureau. For the soldiers of the late war who are suffering or in want, and for their dependents, we are and at all times must be ready to make provision, even to the last scruple in the Treasury.

There was a restoration of peace with Germany soon after the present Administration took office and the way was paved for friendly relations with the countries with which we had been at war. Our participation in the great struggle was not prompted by any hatred of the enemy peoples, but by the feeling that their rulers, in their overweening ambition, had led them astray. Against them—Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, all—we cherish no feeling of revenge, but welcome them back to the great family of nations, in the hope that after defeat and bitter loss they may enjoy the blessings of a new and better era.

We appropriated twenty millions for the starving in Russia, an act in which we may well take satisfaction, in that it was a declaration to the world that with abounding good-will we were ready to succor the suffering and the destitute, though living under a régime inimical to all the traditions of this Government. Our compassion for the ignorant and the miserable is not restrained by differences of race or in form of government.

We have passed and the President has approved the so-called Rogers bill, placing our Diplomatic and Consular Service, with its rapidly increasing importance, on a higher plane and giving opportunities to others than millionaires to occupy the more important positions.

The construction of good roads has been aided and stimulated as never before, thus meeting the demand for improved conditions of communication and transit, especially with a view to the needs of the farming population. Readier means of access between community to community and from State to State have accomplished wonderful results.

Two immigration acts have been passed. While we recognize invaluable benefits our country from the infusion of immigrants from other lands who have added variety and strength to our national life, we have come to realise that the number landing on our shores has been too large for proper assimilation. The so-called melting pot has boiled over. Therefore limitation and selection must be the order of the day.

It is to be regretted that in the passage of the recent bill the request of the President for time for further negotiation with Japan was refused. For that great nation, with which relations with rare exceptions have been so friendly, we have no feelings but those of admiration and respect.

The adoption of policies for the exclusion of Japanese immigrants by no means implies any claim of racial inferiority, but rests upon essential differences, notably in standards of living, which render them uncongenial to our industrial life. It is our fervent hope that this reason may be understood, and that these two nations on either side of the Pacific may banish all causes of friction or misunderstanding and permanently cherish sentiments of friendship and of peace.

Laws Passed to Aid Farmers.

The condition of agriculture is today one of our most perplexing problems. This basic industry, with its broad expanse of homes scattered over the farms of the land, has furnished a chief reliance in peace and war, for it gives us a stalwart population always ready to respond to the needs of the country, with its tens of millions who adhere to the best traditions of the Nation, now and from its very beginnings. We deplore the depression which rests upon various branches of production.

The present situation pertains to certain staples and is characterized by overproduction in very essential articles of food, by lack of effective demand from abroad for our surplus, and by disadvantages arising from keen competition from outlying portions of the world. With a sincere desire to render assistance, legislation was adopted in the Sixty-seventh Congress in generous measure.

That great Democratic leader, Mr. Bryan, though denying credit to any political party, has stated that the Sixty-seventh Congress accomplished more for the farmer than any Congress for fifty years.

There was an act passed for continuance of the War Finance Corporation, and nearly $300,000,000 was advanced to farming communities; an emergency tariff act on sugars, grain and other products was adopted; legislation was enacted in a so-called packers' bill to protect the rights of the stock raiser; also one limiting dealings in grain futures to prevent the farmer from being the victim of manipulation; $25,000,000 additional was advanced for the Federal Farm Loan Board; an agricultural credit act was passed at the end of the Sixty-seventh Congress, providing for both public and private agencies to aid the farmer in securing credit, stressing perhaps too much the need of facilities for borrowing, but still far-reaching in its provisions. A cooperative marketing act was passed, a beginning in the furtherance of methods for organization and distribution which, it is hoped, will place the farmer in the enjoyment of the same advantages in narrowing the gap between the producer and the consumer as those enjoyed in other branches of endeavor. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that in this direction there surely lies the most encouraging prospect for bettering the condition of the agricultural interests of the country. A private corporation with $10,000,000 capital was organized at the instance of the Administration and has rendered substantial aid to the farmers of the Northwest.

The Republican Party has shown its willingness to extend liberality to the last degree in the enactment of legislation which will aid the farmer, but it cannot respond to impracticable theories or accept measures which will only aggravate the situation. Any artificial stimulus to prices which are depressed by irresistible causes can only postpone the evil day and add to the distress. Inexorable laws demand decreased acreage in certain staple products and a wider diversification. Numerous remedies proposed for relief fall utterly when subjected to careful analysis.

If I were to follow the appealing demands of my own feelings, I would say grant tens of millions for farm relief, but no legislation or subventions from the Treasury can be effective to meet the case. It is a condition which is world-wide, due to the sharp reaction from the unprecedented demands for agricultural products which lasted during the World War and for a time thereafter. Prices are now out of line with those of many of the commodities which the farmer must buy, but so sure as the inevitable laws of supply and demand are operative this relation must change, and the time is coming when conditions will be reversed and the course of migration between city and farm will experience a revolution.

A most substantial benefit would be conferred upon the farmers by the construction of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, thereby opening up a new transportation outlet for the agricultural products of a very extended area. Material benefit would also be gained by the more adequate improvement and utilisation of divers interior waterways, though here as elsewhere these improvements should be carefully limited to such as are capable of profitable development. Now as always, pork-barrel appropriations should be sedulously avoided.

A readjustment of freight rates and a consolidation of existing agencies of transportation afford promise of aid.

President Harding and his advisers labored incessantly for the abolition of long hours and the seven-day week in the steel industry and other trades. He called industrial and labor leaders into conference. Almost on the very day of his death his efforts were crowned with success, and happy, indeed, would he have been if he could have witnessed the complete accomplishment of his hopes.

Labor has been especially benefited by the restrictive immigration law. This Republican Administration has brought the country out of the depths of depression. The great mass of employes find their chiefest benefit in steady employment and those prosperous times which make high wages possible.

Congress has voted to submit a constitutional amendment giving adequate authority to legislate against the employment of child labor. A bill for the continuance of plans for the rehabilitation of workers disabled in industry, an effort which has met with very great success, has recently passed the House of Representatives. The well-being of labor, the happiness of millions of workers are inextricably interwoven with the prosperity of the people; no separate or antagonistic road can be traversed by those who toil or by those who employ; the country's prosperity is the prosperity of each and of all.

Economy in Expenditures.

Among the pending issues of the day economy in public expenditures and reduction of taxation must assume the utmost importance. The Federal Government, States and communities have been engaging in a riot of lavish expenditure, attended by mounting indebtedness. The burden of greatly increased taxation must shackle enterprise and diminish employment. It adds almost crushing weight to the cost of living and closes the doors of opportunity. Excessive public expenditures create a fatal example, stimulating prodigality and waste among all the people in every form of activity. Public economy promotes individual initiative and prevents that reliance upon paternalistic government which weakens the morale of any people and brings with it the depressing rule of bureaucracy.

As an illustration of present conditions, the per capita expenses of the United States Government in the fiscal year of 1910 were $7.74; in 1919, the year of the peak of expenses, they were $173.54, and for the last year they were $33.44, more than fourfold those of 1910. So phenomenal an increase must arouse the attention of every patriotic citizen. It is not at all probable that any rates will be increased or new taxes imposed, but the recent revenue law is not the last word.

To secure these most desirable objects of economy an active campaign of education must be conducted similar to that in the free silver contest of 1896. There are certain persistent fallacies which must be dispelled. One of them results in thoughtlessness or indifference to the evils of swollen taxation. Another is that the final burden of public levies rests upon those who first make payments to the tax collector. On the contrary, the general tendency of all taxation is to diffuse itself upon all consumers, whether taxpayers or not, with considerable additions as the burden is passed along.

Still another fallacy, is a prevalent opinion that excessive surtaxes are desirable and result in larger revenue. That excessive rates are not helpful under ordinary circumstances can readily be demonstrated, but this is startlingly true so long as investments in tax-exempt securities are possible. As a proof of the futility of these high rates, it is to be noted that in 1916, when the total surtaxes were $121,900,000 and the highest rate 13 per cent., $81,400,000 of these taxes was collected from incomes in excess of $300,000; but in 1921, when surtax collections were $411,300,000, over three times as great under a maximum rate of 65 per cent., the collections from incomes of $300,000 and over were only about $3,000,000 more than in 1916, or $84,700,000. No one here will advocate a system which would relieve wealth from paying its proper share, but careful thinking will show the absurdity of the present rates, entirely justifiable in time of war but not in time of peace.

The demagogue may say to the unthinking: "See how we are taxing the rich"; and then in a soft aside say to the great capitalist, "How excellent an avenue of escape we are providing for you!" The indirect effect of high surtaxes in withholding funds from such investments as would quicken industrial expansion is even more serious than the diminishing revenue. Present problems are so commanding in importance as to call into action the highest sentiments of patriotism, for economy in expenditures and a rational fiscal system are alike essential for the prosperity and for the happiness of the people.

The Federal Reserve system which serves as a bulwark in the financial life of the nation and was so helpful during the war, should be left alone. It should be free from the touch of the political spoilsman, and all its operations should be managed for the accomplishment of the excellent purposes for which it was intended.

The Republican Party stands now as always firmly for law enforcement. Laws are not to be observed merely by those who favored their enactment, but by every one in this broad land. Disregard of existing enactments breeds disrespect and disorder and even tends to anarchy. Furthermore, hasty changes in existing laws or regulations cannot be approved. If that were the case, all our policies would be like the shifting sands of the sea, which are scattered by wind and wave.

The frightful crimes of lynch law have shown some decrease in recent years, but it is for us to make every effort to remove this disgraceful blot upon our civilization.

There is absolute necessity for an intelligent policy of conservation of our natural resources for the prevention of waste and of the even more dangerous evils of monopoly. Let us have no lack of vision for the future. This means a conservation of our forests, of our water power, of our minerals, of our coal and our oil, of the fish of the sea and the birds of the air. No hundred-year franchises should be given, nor should any grant be made of that which the nation should reserve for its future protection.

We have abhorred war, and never more than now. But if again that which we deplore should happen, and we should be involved in another deadly conflict, let me establish a system which will mobilize all our resources for victory. We cannot afford to allow the slacker to shirk his duty or give the profiteers an opportunity to pile up fortunes when those who stand for patriotism are suffering and dying. We must establish the great ideal that in the emergency of war every agency of industry and commerce, our man power and the activities of men and women shall be such as to accomplish the single purpose of saving our country from danger. President Harding spoke eloquently in his inaugural address in behalf of such a plan.

Strain on President Too Great.

We have recently witnessed the passage over the veto of the President of a so-called Bonus or Adjusted Compensation bill, providing for paid-up insurance policies to soldiers of the late war. While recognizing the inestimable debt which the country owes to those who fought in the bloody contest in 1917 and 1918, and with satisfaction in the thought that for insurance, for the care of the injured and the sick, and for their training and betterment we are expending an amount which in one year reached almost 450 millions of dollars, there was a substantial minority in Congress who sought to sustain the President. But the bonus act is now the law of the land. Conditions created by it must be met and its provisions must be willingly accepted.

A constitutional amendment has passed the Senate providing for the beginning of the terms of the President and of members of Congress early in the January following the November election. There is certainly an incongruity in the present interval between election and induction into office. This lengthy period was based upon conditions existing in the century before the last, when means of communication were so limited. Under the law as it now stands it would be possible for an outgoing Administration, prior to the 4th of March, to prevent or very seriously impede its successor from accomplishing the purposes for which the people elected it. President McKinley advocated this change in his inaugural of 1897.

One urgent reform demanded is that the President be relieved of part of his most exacting duties. A constitution of iron can hardly bear up under the strain imposed upon the Chief Magistrate. There could be no more practical step in accomplishing this than to diminish the demands upon his time for the settlement of questions of patronage. This great framework of government was not devised for the dispensation of the fleshpots of office. The welfare of millions of a nation in its foreign and domestic affairs, the decision of which must bring weal or woe to tens of millions, are enough to absorb the attention of any statesman.

Extension of Merit System.

Nor is the distracting influence of patronage confined to the executive department alone. Legislators, whose time could be more profitably employed in the making of laws and establishing policies for the nation, lose much of their time and subject themselves to constant irritation from the same source. An extension of the merit system is urgently needed, and this is especially true in view of the enormous increase of Federal employes.

In the relation of the economic activities of the people to their Government three methods are possible.

1. The old and long-discarded theory of giving to private initiative free and untrammeled play, laissez faire as it is called.

2. The control and management of a central Government with all the incidents of public ownership and operation. To this there must be a fatal objection, for it would threaten the rule of bureaucracy, with its deadening influence and interference in every home and the destruction of that personal initiative which, with restless energy has unchained the wheels of progress and given our country its foremost position.

3. A third and more rational course presents itself in sane regulation, based upon wise legislation and administration, repressing the power of great corporations or combinations of any type, which might threaten to overshadow the State itself, and with equal care guarding against the evils of unrestrained competition.

Let us secure for every individual the greatest possible equality of opportunity and limit the duties of States and minor political divisions a broad field of activity in their proper sphere. Thus we shall avoid an unwieldly central government in constant danger of toppling over. We shall prevent State boundaries from becoming mere vanishing traces on the map and avoid the dangers of disaster which have been many nations smaller and with problems less complex than our own.

Formation of Blocs.

In every era conditions and facts of surpassing importance must be recognized which stand out like headlands in the landscape. Today the most important conditions are those created by the war or emphasized by it. That terrible convulsion left the world disjointed in all its activities—social, political and economic. War always has a brutalising effect, and this great struggle, along with a most splendid exhibition of heroism, brought into play sordid motives, the demoralization from which has cast shadows which will rest on the world for years to come.

Again we are in the midst of an unparalleled material development which, beneficial as it is, threatens a lowering of moral and spiritual standards—the true grandeur of nations. This is an age of whirlwind speed, of luxury and the pursuit of pleasure. New inventions and fresh diversions chain attention every hour. In an atmosphere of excitement and hurry there is danger of a lack of clearness of vision and fairness in judgment on most important issues of the day. Indifference in the performance of public duties rests like a blight upon the body politic. In nothing is the effect of existing conditions more manifest than in disregard of the political obligations of the citizen.

The proportion of electors who take an active interest, especially in preliminary contests, was never so small. When such indifference exists unwholesome forces poison our public life. A well-organized minority is often more powerful than that inert mass of citizens whose patriotism is only aroused in times of grave emergency. To these causes are traceable the formation of blocs and the vehement pressure of individual or sectional interests. Swarms of lobbyists infest every capital seeking the promotion of some special interest with callous disregard of that paramount benefit—the general welfare. Not seldom by veiled threats, but with brutal demands, they threaten candidates and political parties with defeat unless their wishes are complied with.

These demands are so persistent that refusal arouses opposition against the Administration or party in power, so that now the strongest force in political contests is the reaction against those who have responsibility in shaping governmental policies. Though the "outs," or those in opposition, would be compelled to take the same unyielding stand if they were entrusted with authority. It is easier to criticise than to construct; far easier to promise than to perform. The propagandist is everywhere—would that their numbers might diminish—and so partisan is he that arguments favorable to his cause are eagerly accepted as heaven-born injunctions, while opposing arguments are treated as emanations from the depraved. Under the cloak of patriotism irrational agitation based upon hypocrisy or ignorance sometimes displaces reason and truth.

Propagandists be
A duty on hypocrisy,
A tax on humbug,
An impost on hearty platitudes,
A stamp athwart the mouth
Of every one that ranted.

Denies Widespread Corruption.

Never more than now have there been such insistent demands for special advantages, privileges of every nature, bonuses, pensions, increased salaries—some of which are well deserved—new bureaus with troops of officials, and relief measures, as they are called. All these are based upon the erroneous idea that our Government is a paternalistic institution doling out favors without stint to all comers who can muster votes. The tendency is to impose burdens too heavy to bear upon the ordinary citizen. "The forgotten man," who, toiling quietly at home, seeks no favors, but only asks the friendly protection of a Government which is just and fair. If this tendency is not checked, we shall become a people abounding in preferred classes, the burden of whose privileges must rest in crushing weight upon the great body of our citizenship. It is necessary for us to meet this present situation with a clarion call to all to think more of duties and less of rights and privileges, more of duties to the State and to humanity.

Speaking for all good and thoughtful citizens of every political creed, I must enter a solemn protest against the impression, recently created, that there is widespread corruption in the Government at Washington. It is true that out of all the investigations, pursued in every direction, there have been exposed to the scorn of the country instances of bribery and dishonor on the part of public officials and of cupidity and overreaching on the part of those who are ready to use their opportunities to debauch those in office. It is true that the whole world was shell shocked by the war and has not yet recovered its equilibrium; that the effect of this great conflict, with its convulsions and changes, its Antrieds and stupendous problems, has temporarily weakened the moral fibre of humanity and diminished here and there that high regard for the dictates of loyalty and honesty in public and private station which has ever been the ideal of the nation.

Violent changes have brought to light unworthy motives and grasping avarice. But the heart of the American people is sound, and the gross influences that accompany and follow every war will pass away. Our highest duty in the midst of all these rumors of iniquity is to punish the guilty, but at the same time condemn exaggeration and protect the innocent. It is an infamous crime to seek to destroy the confidence of the American people in the Government under which they live. There is no criminal whom any fair-minded citizen would expose who is more false to decency and honor than the man who would besmirch the name of honest citizens or distort the truth for partisan advantage or personal exploitation.

It is in most grievous wrong to broadcast to the nation and to the world the mouthings of criminals and slanderers who would seek to scatter the slime of their own imaginations and hatreds. Among the thousands of public servants in Washington, in legislative halls, in administrative positions, in all the complicated machinery of the Government, it was never true, and it is not true today, that there is any considerable number recreant to their trust. The vast majority of public officials, from the highest in the land to the humblest clerk in any department, are working honestly and faithfully for the public good.

It is time to call a halt upon indiscriminate scandalmongering, which is largely designed to insult the intelligence and undermine the patriotism of the American people. But let us not be misunderstood. This is no reflection upon any investigator who in good faith is seeking to expose crime or any other dereliction among public servants. The guilty individual, whether he be high or low, Democrat or Republican, must suffer the severest punishment. Upon this proposition the Republican Party stands firm as a rock. Yet let it be known that guilt knows no party. Those who seek to bring malign influences upon public servants made no political distinction, either in the officials whom they approach or in the lawyers whom they hire.

Need of Legislative Courage.

Let us not take a pessimistic view of this situation. From an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust and from manifestations of dishonesty we may confidently believe that the country is emerging, and we may be sure that it will yet respond to those nobler instincts to which Lincoln appealed and to the causes to which the patriotic and the good must always repair.

I would that I could say as much for the courage of all public men as for their honesty. There is no lack of wisdom, of patriotism, of desire to serve the people; but courage to stand up against hasty conclusions and currents of superficial public opinion is often in dispute. The public fancy is sometimes caught by those who are most vociferous and at the same time most radically wrong. There are too many that listen to these voices and try the impossible contention of keeping both ears to the ground and listening to notes to which their ears should be deaf. What is most needed in legislative halls and elsewhere is courage to withstand the sudden spasms which are created by groundless rumor or injudicious agitation. Candidates for office often fail to realise how much the people respect courage and common honesty.

Third Party Tendencies.

A tendency toward third-party movements is manifest wherever parliamentary government exists. This has been true in most of the countries of Continental Europe for years. The effect is inevitably demoralizing, involving failure in constructive policies and oftentimes control by a minority or a combination of minorities. The whole theory of orderly and effective parliamentary government demands that the people divide into two parties on outstanding questions of supreme importance, thus forming political organizations based upon certain fundamental principles, while minor considerations are relegated to a secondary position. If we should treat the path which so many other countries have trod with disastrous results, inefficiency and confusion would be the outcome, and there would be an expression, not of the majority will, but of the will of groups and of sections.

The word "Republican" is not a mere name; it is not a label which any one can wear. It is not a cloak for individual vagaries. The strength and usefulness of the Republican Party must depend on the maintenance of enduring principles in the advocacy of which triumph can only be secured by party solidarity and an organization of its members unite in closed formation to do battle to every foe.

Much of the blame which is visited upon Republicans in the present Congress is not deserved, because on many major questions their party has not commanded a majority in either branch. Let us not for a minute forget the importance of a Republican majority in the next Congress, made up of members tried and true, who will stand united.

With some disappointment as one whose public service has been in a legislative position, truth compels me to state that by far the greater share of our citizenship looks to President Coolidge rather than to Congress for leadership.

The people—and all the people—have confidence in Calvin Coolidge. It is a time when there is a hunger for simple, robust virtues, for a leadership which shall be based on no cheap or selfish motives. In the great array of rulers, kings, and prime ministers entrusted with power, there is none who can surpass him in honesty of purpose, in courage, or in high devotion to the welfare of his country.

As a candidate for the Presidency, and this is the case by which the angels fall, he has shown no truckling, no scheming for votes, but has gone calmly and steadily on his way unaffected by the lure of expediency or the promise of success.

The mountains of Vermont with their green summits encircled his early boyhood and gave direction to that stalwart character of which there have been so many illustrations in the rural life of America. In every station to which he has been called it may be said of him that—

Wearing the white flower of a blameless life,
Before a thousand peering littlenesses,
And
In that fierce light which beats upon all
In high position and blackens every blot—

he has performed every duty and merited no reproach.

Our Foreign Relations.

Our foreign relations are assuming an importance never known before. We are by no means lacking in interest in what is happening in the rest of the world now are we unwilling to cooperate in the most friendly way with less fortunate nations. It was our conception that American experts in finance and economics, neutral in spirit but keenly interested in aiding other countries, should join in a nonpolitical conference for the settlement of the troublesome problems of reparations, a settlement which would promote the cause of peace and lead to another financial conditions and better trade relations in Europe. It was at the suggestion of our own Secretary of State and of President Coolidge that the Dawes commission was convened. We await the result with earnest hope that the clash of conflicting interests may cease and that the spirit of repulsion and revenge may be abated. What would happen in case of failure we dread to contemplate.

Whenever the various nations can agree, whenever they are willing to look to the future rather than to the past, America's aid will be given without stint and our boundless resources will be available in the way of loans for their rehabilitation and development.

But the beginnings of peace must be in Europe itself. No nation of the New World can solve the problems of the Old. It is necessary that a calmer spirit prevail, that peace and not power be the goal, and that cooperation, based on the consciousness of common interests akin to that which exists among the forty-eight States of the American Union, should be recognized as essential. Unfortunately that which seems to be most desired in the settlement of discordant claims in Europe is not an impartial friend but a partisan ally.

It is to be regretted that the Treaty of Versailles was framed at a time when the very natural desire for punishment was still a dominating thought in the minds of the Allies. Imperialistic ambitions were clearly in evidence. Long-standing animosities, intensified by the horrors of war, had not been stilled.

League of Nations Policy.

Although the covenant of the League of Nations was made a part of this treaty, nevertheless at the very outset the organization was handicapped and its prospective usefulness most seriously impaired. An instrument designed to secure peace should never have been made a part of a treaty bristling all over with provisions for punishment and for the dominance of the victors. Two objects so inconsistent cannot stand together. It is partly for this reason that developments since the treaty was signed have not been favorable to the effectiveness or usefulness of the League in larger matters. It has not been able to settle any of the great questions. Plans for the abatement of military expenditure and for reduction of armies have failed. Smaller nations have not been treated on terms of equality, as was well said by General Smuts, one of the leading proponents of the covenant, that ever some provisions of the treaty the sponge of oblivion might well be drawn.

We have refused to join the League of Nations, and this is in full accord with the wishes of the vast majority of the American people, as I believe. As one, however, who favored our entrance into that organization with proper reservations, I may speak of it dispassionately. A meeting of the representatives of various nations around a table for the adjustment of differences and securing a common viewpoint is a splendid conception. We welcome whatever of good may be accomplished by the League, and we recognize that in humanitarian and non-political matters it has accomplished beneficent results. In some of these activities we have taken part, and will no doubt in the future. But this does not mean that we should assume membership. We are still confronted with the fact that Europe has not a system of a few vital and defensive alliances which are entirely alien to our most cherished policies. Our traditions and our hopes are widely different. We cannot relinquish that independence which is the natural result of our detached position. So long as the League remains a political body, inevitably dominated by the larger nations of Europe, poisoned with the traditions of age-long animosities, membership is not for us.

Limitation of Armaments.

I think, however, I speak the sentiment of the people in saying that we are ready to join in any conference the aim of which is to limit armaments or banish wars. We are indeed the friends of all. We covet none of their territory and harbor no jealousies of their progress. The Conference for Limitation of Armament at Washington was more successful than any attempt in this direction for many years, because it was far removed from the rivalries of Europe, because its aims were clear-cut, definite and generous.

Street Sign Tells Delegates That "Coolidge's Calm Composure Captures Confidence."

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—A sign on the way to the convention hall notified delegates and visitors that "Coolidge's calm composure captures confidence." This was incidental to the advertisement of a coffee substitute in which everything has been extracted from the bean.

Though there were some furtive attempts at sunshine, a mist still hung over the lake and a fog born sounded dolorously at regular intervals not far from the convention hall. Luckily its sounds didn't penetrate to the interior.

Amid all the indignities inflicted on Henry Cabot Lodge, the Massachsetts delegation, which sat in the centre front of the hall, at least was gracious enough to allow him a front row seat.

Several assiduous young women beset arriving conventioners and decorated them with buttons demanding Tom Mix for Vice President. This Tom Mix does his best to attach himself to persons of prominence. Last September he was down at Atlantic City trying to help Luis Angel Firpo train for the Dempsey fight.

A tremendous lot of flashlight powder was used in taking the picture of the convention at the opening of the session. Its loud boom caused many smothered shrieks among the women delegates, but up to a late hour tonight Harry Daugherty had not issued a statement ascribing the explosion to the machinations of Soviet Russia.

The spotlights which furnished illumination for the motion-picture cameras were outrageously brilliant, too. Whenever anything happened they were suddenly trained on the speakers' platform, leaping out of the half darkness of the gallery, and whoever on the platform had caused the excitement was apt to jump as if he had been hit and lose two or three strides in his speech.

Many visitors have remarked on the number of pretty girls in Cleveland. They have had an opportunity for observation, for the streets and hotel lobbies are thronged with bobbed-haired girls from 16 to 20 who sell buttons for the Cleveland Olympic Committee. The majority have "that school-girl complexion," and have no trouble in disposing of the buttons for varying prices, the amount apparently depending upon the kind of smile accompanying the sale.

At every National Convention a point of interest is a session of the Credentials Committee, where the merits of contending sets of delegates are considered and adjudicated. The interest always centres in the fight affecting Southern delegates, for negro lawyers abound and their arguments are always picturesque, if not convincing. At the session today a tall, lanky white lawyer from Georgia, in presenting the case for his clients, brought into play his historical knowledge.

"As Brutus said," he remarked, solemnly, "'let us have peace.'"

A delegate from the presumably dry State of Oklahoma announced tonight in the lobby of the Hollenden Hotel that he was forming a new society to be known as the Serpentine Order and would be pleased to receive applications for membership.

"What are the qualifications?" inquired a delegate from the supposedly wet State of New Jersey.

"It's a matter of alcoholic content," replied the Oklahoma delegate, somewhat unsteadily.

"Oh, more than one-half of 1 per cent.," rejoined the New Jersey man.

Governor Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, who as a Senator accepted the Chairmanship of the Progressive National Committee in 1912 and became one of the principal backers of Theodore Roosevelt in the fight which split the Republican Party and caused the first election of Woodrow Wilson, was put forward today as a candidate for Vice President by the Montana delegation, which announced that it intended to vote for him at least on the first ballot.

"Is he going to stick to the G. O. P. this time?" asked a Vermonter.

"Sure; no third party for him this year," rejoined Charles Haftle of Baker, one of the Montana delegation.

After a warm, sunny day, a thunderstorm came up at 7 o'clock this evening just to remind the delegates that rain may always be expected. There was a rush to hotel rooms to change straw hats for other headgear, and umbrellas and raincoats were again in demand. The shower sent many women, dressed for dinner and other evening functions, scurrying for shelter, and taxicabs were in demand even for those desiring to go only a short distance. After a heavy downfal lasting for nearly an hour, the rain settled into a drizzle which seemed likely to last all night.

William Jennings Bryan and Will Rogers, special writers for newspapers during the convention period, were introduced in the press section of the convention hall today.

"Mr. Rogers," said Mr. Bryan, "I believe you write laughable things, while I write serious things."

"Mr. Bryan," said Mr. Rogers, "It may be that each of us has a wrong opinion of his own work."

Win Prizes in Architecture.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 10.—Charles Henry Dornbusch of 2,276 Hampden Place, the Bronx, and E. James Gambaro of 423 Broadway, New York, are the winners of Princeton University's annual architectural competitive prizes, it was announced today. They will receive $600 each, live at Graduate College during the 1924-25 term and take the course in designing free of tuition costs.

MILLERAND BEATEN, WILL RESIGN TODAY

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

issue squarely he asked if they refused to act except in the dark.

Arguing that Parliament had no power to demand the resignation of the President before the expiration of his term, M. Reibel, saying there was no dispute between the majority and M. Millerand, except a purely political one, declared the president the Chamber would establish in refusing to work with M. Millerand a dangerous one and one that might well cost the head of the President the Left would elect.

"You call yourselves defenders of the Constitution," he said. "You paint beautiful pictures of respect for the Constitution and laws, and behind that decoration you seek to assassinate the President of the Republic."

M. Reibel said he was not surprised at the Socialists but it grieved him to see the Radical Socialists fall into line with the attack on M. Millerand which he credited to the Communists, saying it was the revenge they sought for M. Millerand's having saved Poland from Russia in 1920.

"That the Communists have an account to settle with M. Millerand is natural enough," he went on. "That they had received from Moscow the order to bring to their Soviet lords the head of M. Millerand is legitimate enough, but it is indeed suspicious to see them followed by the Radical Socialists. It is stupifying, it is dirty politics."

Senate Vote Cheered.

At this point a Deputy yelled "Vive le Senat." He then announced that the Senate had voted against M. Millerand. The whole Left rose in a common roar of enthusiasm which took no account of explanations that the Senate had simply passed the buck to the lower house.

Under these stormy conditions M. Reibel continued his defense of M. Millerand.

When Marcel Cachin, leader of the Communists, mounted his desk and at the next mention of the name of Millerand cried "Brother, you must die!" the debate quickly became so complicated that nothing could be made out of it. The foundation of the republic, the ambitions of MacMahon, the Grevy scandal and the Ayreux speech of M. Millerand were all jumbled into it.

M. Reibel protested that the debate on which might hinge the future of the republic had become a burlesque. "Brother, you must die!" yelled Cachin.

M. Reibel retorted by asking the Left what it thought was going to happen to its new President if the Nationalist parties won the next Parliamentary election. He went on to say that the Left was talking rot when it spoke about the voice of the people. People on the 11th of May, he said, had no idea of voting either for or against M. Millerand. He finished amid a wild burst of applause from the Right, which began to call for a speech by M. Herriot.

M. Herriot did not move. Cries for M. Briand caused the latter to uncross his legs and pull at his mustache. He did nothing more. Premier Francois Marsal taunted M. Herriot, asking why he was afraid to defend in public the motion behind which he had lined up the Left. He wished to ask the Chamber what the world would think of their conduct. "The truth is, this is an act of vengeance against the Premier of 1920 who saved Poland," he cried.

This brought protests from all parts of the Left, even from the Communist benches. M. Francois Marsal, however, insisted that the anti-Millerand fight had been started in Moscow and been seized upon by the Left leaders for political purposes. Again he asked MM. Herriot and Briand to answer, but they did not budge.

M. Renaud, Communist, asked to speak and began by a wild personal attack on M. Millerand, "who is going to be executed in a couple of minutes." Despite the protest of M. Millerand's friends he accused the President of illegal financial profits, of being a maker of war, an enemy of the people and a "deserter from the ranks of the working classes."

M. Painlevé cried, "This language is intolerable!" but in the general uproar was prevented from continuing.

M. Fabry, Minister of the Colonies, arose, whereupon twenty-six Communists got to their feet and thundered the lines of the "International." When M. Fabry could make himself heard he said the fact that the Herriot motion was defended only by Communists gave it its proper color. In reply to protests, M. Fabry dared the authors of the Herriot resolution to defend it. He then made an eloquent defense of M. Millerand and ended by saying that he wanted to emphasize one statement to the Left, and that was, "Gentlemen, your turn will come."

M. Painlevé then ruled that another motion of adjournment favorable to M. Millerand having been presented, there should be a vote on whether the anti-Millerand or pro-Millerand motion had priority, and it was agreed that the significance of this vote would be determining.

The vote was taken by means of white and blue ballots—blue for M. Millerand and white against him. Each Deputy had to show his ticket to the whole Assembly as he dropped it in the urn to the accompaniment of cheers and countercheers. As M. Loucheur dropped his white ticket in, boots went up in a storm from the Right.

When the result of the balloting was announced there was a great uproar. Cries of "Down with Millerand!" mingled with cries of "Vive Millerand!" as M. Francois-Marsal arose and led his short-lived Government out of the Chamber.

The session in the Senate was short. The Presidential message was read by André Reibel, Minister of Justice, and was immediately met by a motion of adjournment from the Left. There was a rising vote, which was very close, some observers claiming a majority for the motion and some a majority against it. President Doumergue announced that the Secretaries of the Senate could not agree on the vote, and called for a ballot. This gave the result as 154 for adjournment and 144 against.

M. Millerand to Resume Law.

The Matin tomorrow morning will say that after resigning tomorrow afternoon M. Millerand will on Thursday move from the Elysée to his villa at Versailles. As for his future, the Matin will say:

"It is interestin to know what is going to be the existence of the Chief of the State which the wish of the majority has obliged to retire. M. Millerand does not desire personally to reappear at once on the political scene. Nevertheless, he will respond doubtless to the first call of the electors. In any case, he will reappear at the Palais de Justice without delay to resume the practice of law. Having led the life of a laborious man for so many years, he would consider it absurd to lapse into inactivity. Nothing would be more false than to speak of the retirement of M. Millerand."

The vote today shows how closely was held together the bloc of the Left parties which at its first caucus ten days ago counted 307 deputies. It was this majority plus the Communists which made today's total.

As it is understood in Paris tonight the immediate political program will be:

Tomorrow, resignation of M. Millerand; Thursday, caucuses of parties; Friday, election of a President at Versailles; Saturday, election of new Presidents of the Chamber and Senate; Sunday, nomination of M. Herriot as Premier; Monday, or Tuesday, confirmation of the new Government by Parliament.

It is recalled that M. Millerand, eleventh President of France, will be the sixth President to resign. The first of the latter was Thiers, first President of the republic, who quit because he could not work with Parliament. The second to go was Marshal MacMahon, who wished to prepare for re-establishment of the monarchy. The third was M. Grévy, who was forced out following disclosure of the fact that his son-in-law had trafficked in decorations. M. Casimir-Perrier resigned at the end of a six months' conflict with Parliament, while M. Deschanel withdrew following a mental breakdown.

Text of M. Millerand's Message.

PARIS, June 10 (Associated Press).—Following is the text of President Millerand's message read to the Senate and Chamber today:

Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the Chamber:

When the National Assembly did me the honor to call me by 685 votes to the supreme magistrature it knew by my public statements that I would only consent to go to the Elysée Palace to defend a national policy of social progress, ordered labor and union.

The solemn engagement I took before the country I have kept. France is athirst for peace, labor and concord. She wants a foreign policy which, in accord with the Allies, will assure her security, reparation, application of the Versailles Treaty and respect of all of the diplomatic acts which have instituted the new European order.

This external policy calls for an interior policy inspired by the teachings of the war, founded on an agreement between Frenchmen, respect for opinions and faiths, care to introduce always more equity and generosity into social relations, and determination to safeguard France's credit by maintaining a rigorous balance between expenditures and the public income.

Those ideas have always directed my action; they will continue to guide it. By stipulating that the President of the republic is responsible to the Parliament only in the case of high treason, the Constitution willed that for the national interest of stability and continuity, the presidential power should be kept sheltered from political fluctuations.

You will respect the Constitution. If you misinterpret it, if it were to be henceforth understood that the arbitrary action of the majority could oblige the President of the republic to retire for political motives, the President would be no more than a toy in the parties' hands.

You will aid me to avert such a redoubtable peril. I have refused to desert my post. It is not from Parliament, charged with voting laws and seeing to it that they are respected, that the signal and example for their violation can come.

Dangerous counselors, in partisan interest, are trying to see that the new Legislature begin with a revolutionary act by the Chamber. I will refuse to follow them.

The Senate will wish to remain, as formerly in the gravest circumstances, the defender of the Constitution. I appeal confidently to the wisdom of both Chambers, to their prudence and to their love of France and of the republic.

Conscious of my duty, I have assumed my responsibilities. The hour has come for Parliament to assume its own. The constitutional question, as important for the future of Republican institutions as that posed by the presents crisis, cannot be settled in the shadows by the decisions of individuals or groups.

Statement of the Premier.

Premier François Marsal's statement to the Chamber after he had read the President's message was as follows:

"You have just heard the message from the President of the Republic. The Government now before you has been constituted solely to permit both Houses of Parliament to act as judges in the conflict of constitutional order which has been open for a few days outside of Parliament, but of which Parliament is the sole judge.

"Thus we have no governmental program to present to you. Our mission has a limited, precise purpose. Either you shall tell us—as we ask you—that the constitutional laws must remain sacred and above party politics. In this case the authority of your vote shall indicate to the chiefs of the majority created by the May 11 elections that it is their duty to accept from the President of the Republic the power which he has offered them and assume charge of the destinies of France.

"Or, by a vote which will permit each and every one unequivocally to assume his own responsibilities, you will declare that you do not approve the principles formulated in the message of the President of the Republic, which we are defending before you and which form the basis of our Republican Constitution.

"In the latter case we will render account of the failure of our mission to the Chief of State, who will then take whatever decision is the consequence of such a result. We appeal to your conscience and reason. This debate must take place outside of all equivocations. The vote which you are about to take interests the future of the Republican régime in the highest degree. Respect for legality is the guarantee of our republican institutions and the safeguard of our public liberty."

MILLERAND ONCE A RADICAL.

Sought More Power for President When He Took Office in 1920.

Alexandre Millerand, the eleventh President of the Third French Republic, began his political career at the extreme Left and in twenty-one years has moved so far to the Right that he contemplated the functions of President to be far beyond any his predecessors had practiced.

He was born in 1859, was inscribed as a lawyer and entered politics at 20. In May, 1884, he was elected a Municipal Councillor for the Passy quarter of Paris. He was then principally occupied with elementary education. He left the Council in 1885 in order to enter Parliament.

From 1885 he has been periodically re-elected from the Twelfth Arrondissement of Paris. When Clemenceau started his second reform paper, La Justice, Millerand joined his editorial forces and later founded his own paper, La Voix, to combat Boulangerism. Then he succeeded Goblet as editor of La Petite République, in 1892, with M. Viviani—another radical who went to the Right—as his assistant.

It was in 1896 that he delivered his famous Saint-Mandé address, which was received with great applause by all the advanced parties. He left La Petite République to take charge of La Lanterne and was followed by Viviani and Briand—still another radical who has gone to the Right, although not so far.

Toward the end of June, 1899, he was called to assume the portfolio of Commerce in the Cabinet of Waldeck-Rousseau—The "Cabinet of Republican Defense." He was the first Socialist to take a portfolio and was expelled from the party for so doing. The personnel of this famous Government, which operated for three years, was drawn from the most eminent men of every party and faction to save the Republic. Opposite Millerand sat General le Marquis de Callifet, who had ordered Millerand's father shot in the Commune of 1871.

His next portfolio was that of Public Works which he accepted in 1901. Meanwhile he had been President of the Commission for the Assurance of Social Prudence and had also, as a Deputy, put through the Redemption law. In 1911 he led the attack on Caillaux in regard to the Franco-German affair of Agadir-Congo.

His next portfolio was that of War, which was consigned to him by M. Poincaré in 1913. As Minister of War he placed Joffre at the head of the General Staff, where the World War found him. In the "Cabinet of National Defense," organized by M. Viviani, Aug. 25, 1914, he again took the portfolio of War and held it until the end of October, 1915.

On March 21, 1919, Premier Clemenceau chose him as Commissioner General for Strasbourg. In the elections for the Twelfth Legislature held that year, Millerand placed himself at the head of the Bloc National list in the second section of Paris and pronounced, at Ba-Ta-Clan, a speech in which, with almost sure pervision, he outlined the duties of the chief executive as he understood them, and demonstrated how custom had attempted to modify them.

On Jan. 18, 1920, he replaced the "Tiger" as President of the Council (Premier) and on the resignation of Paul Deschanel, who had been elected President of the Republic in succession to M. Poincaré, he was elected President by the National Assembly at Versailles, Sept. 23, 1920. His first Premier was his personal friend, M. Leygues. He was succeeded by M. Briand. Gradually he felt that the Government was paying too much attention to the immediate commercial restoration of Germany, as advocated by England at the expense of the reparations; gradually he began to accept M. Poincaré's formulae, and in the spring of 1922, when Briand had just completed a Franco-English treaty of defense, at Cannes, he suddenly recalled him and manoeuvred M. Poincaré into his place. It was only due to the urging of President Millerand that Poincaré reconsidered his resignation last March and reorganized his Cabinet more in accordance with the moderate Left where the election of May 11 found it.

One of the men now mentioned as the possible successor of President Millerand is Paul Painlevé. Born in 1863, M. Painlevé was a professor of mathematics and physics at the Ecole Polytechnique, in 1910, when he decided to enter politics as a member from the Fifth Arrondissement of Paris. His second portfolio was that of War, which he took in the brief Ribot Ministry of the Spring and Summer of 1917. It was he who stopped the ill-fated Nivelle offensive of April. Already he had held the portfolio of Invention in October, 1915, and had been offered that of War when the Briand Cabinet was reorganized in December, 1916. His own Ministry went out, under the suspicion of having allowed "Defeatism" to develop, when Clemenceau came in, in November, with his program: "To purge France of traitors."

Senator Gaston Doumergue, another Presidential possibility, first became Premier in December, 1913, when the Barthou Government went out. The Minister of Finance was Joseph Caillaux, and of Commerce Louis J. Malvy. It was principally composed of Radicals and Radical-Socialists.

He was then, as he is now, Senator from the Department of the Gard, whose mandate he has held since 1910. He was born in that Department Aug. 1, 1863, practised law at Nimes until 1896, held several judicial positions until 1893, when he was elected to the Chamber. He was Minister of the Colonies 1902-05, Vice President of the Chamber 1905-06, and since being Premier in 1913-14 he has been Minister of Foreign Affairs for a brief period in 1914, then Minister for the Colonies until 1917, in which year he was sent on a mission to Russia to keep the Provisional Government, which had followed the revolution of March, from making a separate peace with Germany.

See that Great Oak Tree Yonder On the Hill

It defies the wind and plants its feet firm and deep, and throws out its limbs far and wide, and in a way balances itself as if to say: "Now, I am not afraid of anything that blows."

Its tremendous, more than giant, strength is almost resistless.

A man might well say, "If I were a tree I'd like to be an oak."

As we are only a Store, we can be only what all our powers of mind, body, education and experience make us, and be only too glad if our friends can find any resemblance between us in the upward sweep of our ambitions and the upstanding of our endurance and helpfulness.

Paris Frocks

FOR WOMEN AND MISSES
Frocks Which Paris Herself Wears
At This Sensationally Low Price

Exclusive Shops—And Only Exclusive Shops—Have Been Selling Them for $50 to $85

Frocks which fairly scent of Paris; which have all the earmarks of Paris; and which are truly the types of frocks chosen by the smart Parisiennes.

Fine Silk Crepes

French silks, of course, which in all the world cannot be equalled for their marvelous suppleness. Silks which pleat beautifully and hold their pleatings. Silks which hang so very gracefully in circular flares. Plenty of white, a few of black, navy blue, beige, gray, brown, vivid greens and light blues.

40 Models—Each the Essence of Simplicity

Pleatings are probably the most important note of the collection—the finest pleatings imaginable. Some of the frocks are almost entirely pleated; others have pleated skirts, or pleated panels.

Pipings—there's a very subtle air about these pipings. For instance, one white frock has just the tiniest bit of red peeping from its pockets.

Embroidery—and such embroidery. Brilliant coloring of emboroidery combined with applique. Most effective! Also fine embroidered nets with colored velvet girdles.

Such variety, such smartness, and, above all, such charming simplicity is almost unbelievable at this low price.

Misses' sizes, 14 to 20 years. Women's sizes, 36 to 42.

Why Do So Many People Die At Middle Age?

"ALL of us who have reached middle life," said the Commissioner of Health of a great eastern state, "are shocked from time to time by reading in the papers that someone whom we supposed to be in good health has died suddenly or after a few hours' illness of 'acute indigestion' or heart-disease or apoplexy.

"This man or woman had apparently been well until illness came. But such was not the case. Chronic disease had long been slowly progressing and was not discovered because it had produced few or no symptoms, and therefore a physician had not been consulted.

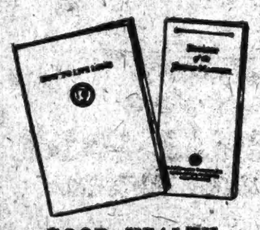
"For the diseases of middle life are for the most part not germ diseases, but are due to the wearing out of the body and particularly to the wearing out of the heart and blood-vessels and kidneys — those organs which never have complete rest but must always be working while life continues. There is one method of early detection: namely, to have a complete physical examination every year, even during apparent health. Then the early development of disease may be detected in time."

The Life Extension Institute was founded ten years ago with the co-operation of Harold A. Ley, Professor Irving Fisher of Yale, ex-President William Howard Taft, Alexander Graham Bell, Ambassador Page, Robert W. de Forest and one hundred other forward-looking men in this country and abroad, who believed that a vast amount of sickness could be prevented and human life extended many years through annual health examinations and education in correct personal hygiene. Follow this counsel. Get yourself examined once a year, either by your family physician or by the Life Extension Institute.

The Institute is a humanitarian, semi-philanthropic organization founded for the public good. Two-thirds of its profits will be devoted to public health work of a national scope.

The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of the life and body and submits a report which, if some form of medical attention is needed, assists the family physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of any physical defects. The Institute's services include a standardized examination of the whole body, confidential detailed reports, suggestions as to needed medical treatment, instructions in all phases of correct personal hygiene and other valuable privileges.

Examinations are made at the Head Office by appointment by telephone or letter. There are separate departments for women and children, with both men and women examining physicians in attendance. Out-of-town subscribers can be examined at the Head Office or at the office of the Institute's Medical Examiner in their locality.



GOOD HEALTH BOOKLETS FREE

We shall be very glad to send you copies of the Institute's two booklets "How to Live Long" and "Neglect of the Human Machine." These booklets contain valuable good health hints and tell something, too, of the great work that the Life Extension Institute is doing in the prevention of disease and the prolongation of human life. You will find them very interesting and helpful. Just mail the coupon or telephone VANderbilt 1484 and these booklets will be sent to you free of charge.

RULES FIGHT LOOMS AT CONVENTION HERE

Strategists See McAdoo Victory Under Unit Rule With Two-Thirds Rule Voided.

UNIT SYSTEM HURTS SMITH

If Abrogated the Governor, It Is Predicted, Would Gain a Majority.

BOTH SIDES ARE WARY

Fear a Counter Move by Opponents —Few Credential Contests Looked For.

It became quite apparent yesterday that the Democratic National Convention is to open with a fight over the rules, with the two-thirds rule and the unit rule the two bones of contention, and the two leading candidates for the Presidential nomination intensely if not vitally interested, one in one rule and one in the other. The decision as to the rules may, in the long run, determine who is to be the candidate.

Careful strategists who have been figuring very closely and are in a position to know what they are talking about contend that as a matter of fact a deadlock already exists between William G. McAdoo and Governor Alfred E. Smith for the Presidential nomination, and that whereas McAdoo might win if the two-thirds rule were abrogated and the unit rule retained, Smith might well win, and McAdoo would certainly be beaten, if the unit rule were abrogated.

The preponderance of strength of the McAdoo cause, it appears, is due to the unit rule. With that and the votes that will come to him after the favorite sons are taken care of Mr. McAdoo will have 614 votes, while, under the two-thirds rule, 732 are necessary to nominate. With the unit rule intact, therefore, he would have more than a majority, if the two-thirds rule was abolished. But if the unit rule was abolished also he would lose many of the 614 votes, and according to some Smith statisticians he would have a bare 439 votes, which is far from a majority.

Both Sides Wary.

Smith, on the other hand, has a potential strength of 400 votes, much less than a majority, but enough to stop any other candidate getting two-thirds of the convention. If the unit rule holds and the two-thirds rule is abolished Smith would therefore lose. If the unit rule were abrogated Smith would be the residuary legatee of a lot of the McAdoo strength, and while he might not roll up two-thirds he would almost certainly get a majority.

Thus the situation, as it shapes up at present, is that neither of the two leading candidates, through their managers, dare made a move as to these two rules, for fear the other fellow will make the obvious counter move and the convention will open with as pretty a contest over technicalities as any National Convention has witnessed in years.

It transpired yesterday that the two-thirds rule has received more attention than was thought. The Texas State Convention passed a resolution on it reading as follows:

"We believe in the Jeffersonian principle of Government by the will of the majority, and we declare that the time has come when the Democratic Party in National Convention assembled should be progressive enough to nominate its candidates for President and Vice President by majority vote. We, therefore, instruct our delegates to the National Convention to vote for the adoption of both temporary and permanent rules under which it will be in order for the National Convention at any time to make nominations by majority vote."

The Texas delegation is for McAdoo. Yet it was confirmed yesterday at the McAdoo headquarters in the Hotel Vanderbilt that the McAdoo managers do not intend to take the initiative in having the rule referred to abrogated. The reason given is that to do so might cause adverse comment. The matter was the subject of a long discussion among McAdoo managers in Chicago last week, it was learned, and though it seems the obvious thing to do, from the standpoint of political expediency and convention strategy, the McAdoo forces refuse to make the move. Some of them admit that the two-thirds rule and the unit rule are so interwoven that they cannot safely be separated.

Texas Delegate Quited.

At the Smith headquarters the same view is held, and it was pointed out that with the unit rule intact and the two-thirds rule abolished it would be possible for a minimum of 225 delegates to name the nominee of the convention. That is to say, 225 delegates, binding other delegates through the unit rules, could make it appear that a majority of the convention favored a certain candidate, whereas this would not actually be the case. One of the Texas delegates, W. L. Thornton, wrote to a friend regarding this rule, in part as follows:

"I am one of the delegates from Texas to the Democratic National Convention, and am writing you with regard to a change in the rules, which I think is desirable and important. I have long favored the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President in Democratic National Conventions by majority vote, and believe that the adoption of such a rule is imperative since women have been given the ballot and the Democratic Party has become distinctly the liberal or progressive party in the nation. So believing, I wrote several communications to newspapers in Texas and other States during the past year advocating this change, and am enclosing copy of a resolution, of which I was the author, which was adopted by the Democratic State Convention which selected our delegation to the National Convention.

"I sincerely hope you can see your way clear to support this proposal when the National Convention meets. I am supporting Mr. McAdoo; however, I favor the resolution without regard to the fortunes of any candidate. I presume you have noted in the press the statement that Mr. Brennan, the leader of the Democratic organization in Illinois, and other opponents of Mr. McAdoo, have expressed themselves as favoring this proposal. I think the time has come when it should be adopted, regardless of its effect upon the fortunes of any candidate."

Few Contests Foreseen.

It became apparent yesterday, too, that while there has been little or no indication of serious contests in the Democratic National Convention, one or two are likely to develop and be important in their outcome because of the intense rivalry that has developed between Smith and McAdoo. One of the contests looked for is in Alabama, where there are reports of an unofficial character—there were proceedings at the primary election that were not wholly regular. The Underwood faction is blamed in that instance, and a comparison of the votes cast with the number of persons who went to the polls in at least one county is said to show some surprising things.

The second contest that is looming up is in Minnesota and concerns a delegation that is partly for Smith and partly for McAdoo. Irregularities are charged, but the exact nature of them is not made known. As to both this contest and the possible one in Alabama, the chief importance is that they serve to show that the fight between the Smith and McAdoo forces is growing quite sharp, and that the likelihood is that the Democratic convention will open in true Democratic style, with a fight over credentials as well as over rules. If this happens a long convention and a bitter struggle are inevitable, in the opinion of old campaigners. The McAdoo people, who once talked of a short convention, say now they might put their candidate over on the third ballot with the two-thirds rule abolished, but that as it is he may not be nominated until the tenth or twelfth ballot.

David Ladd Rockwell, McAdoo manager, decided last night not to go to the Cleveland convention as an "unofficial observer" because he felt there was nothing worth while to observe. He was highly pleased over one letter he got during the day. It came from a Nevada delegate and read, in part:

"As a member of the Nevada delegation to the National Convention, I feel confident that the great majority of the delegates are vastly in favor of Mr. McAdoo. It was upon a policy of McAdoo support at New York that I was elected a delegate to New York.

"While our State delegation is uninstructed, yet I am confident that we shall stand for Mr. McAdoo as a unit as long as it seems possible to put him over.

"I believe that Nevada wants and needs Mr. McAdoo, as does all the West, and it most surely means their salvation if he should be placed in the White House."

The letter was signed William H. Brennan. Nevada has six votes in the convention and the McAdoo managers claim them all.

Labor Endorses Smith.

The New York State Federation of Labor endorsed Governor Smith for the Democratic nomination yesterday. James P. Holland, President, writing to Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of the New York State Committee for the Nomination of Governor Smith, in part as follows:

"The Executive Council of the New York State Federation of Labor has adopted a motion endorsing the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith of this State for nomination as a candidate for President of the United States and recommending to the delegates composing the coming National Convention of the Democratic Party the wisdom of selecting as their nominee for Chief Magistrate of the republic one who, by his established record as a legislator and as Chief Executive of the largest State of the Union, has proven his strong faith in the ideals of our democracy and his resolute will and capacity to translate these high purposes into consummated achievements for human welfare."

Cheering news as to the popularity of Smith was brought to the headquarters in the Prudence Building by George J. Fleck, a national organizer of salesmen, who has traversed eight States and found that the Democrats were not only strong for Governor Smith, but that a great number of Republicans said they would vote for the New York Governor. An interesting telegram was received, too, from Denver. It read:

"Current events showing here at America Theatre, flashing photographs of Presidential possibilities. Coolidge receives no applause. Others slight applause. Governor Smith tremendous applause at each performance. This is first-class show house. Audience consists of representative citizenship of Denver. This is the first opportunity we have had to gauge public sentiment and it indicates the rapidly growing strength of Governor Smith in the West."

A general meeting of the members of the Smith Campaign Committee is to be held in the Prudence Building offices at 4 o'clock on June 23, the day before the convention in Madison Square Garden opens, Mr. Roosevelt will preside. Previously a luncheon is to be held in the Hotel Commodore, and then the New York State delegation to the convention will choose the man who is to put Governor Smith's name before the convention, the floor leader and the Chairman of the delegation.

HYLAN FOR GOVERNOR, SUGGESTED BY WALLIS

Commissioner Says Mayor Could Be Elected if He Would Accept Nomination.

In the course of a long speech last night at the Monongahela Club, the Democratic organization in the Eleventh Assembly District, Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis, in effect, brought out Mayor Hylan, who appointed him to office, as a candidate for Gubernatorial honors this year.

Mr. Wallis talked chiefly of the high cost of living, national affairs, and attacked the Republican Administration.

"The Dec. 8, 1922, situation outlined by Mayor Hylan has not changed," he said, "except that McAdoo and Smith or Smith and McAdoo lead as the Democratic candidates; Coolidge as the Republican candidate. Mayor Hylan, who is always on the job, can be the next Governor of the State of New York if he cares to accept the nomination.

"The fact that Mr. Hearst is talked of as a running mate for McAdoo is evidence enough that his support in 1924 is being sought by all parties."

Mr. Wallis later referred to Mayor Hylan as the champion of the cause of the people. He spoke of Governor Smith as the man "eminently fitted for the Presidency."

LA FOLLETTE CRITICIZED.

Workers' Party Speakers Resent His Attack on Their Convention.

There were slight demonstrations at the mention of the name of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin at a meeting last night at Cooper Union under the auspices of the Workers' Party of America, to protest against attacks on the party made by Senator La Follette.

The meeting had for its secondary purpose the furtherance of the idea of a Farmer-Labor Party at the St. Paul convention on June 17.

Speakers at the meeting repudiated the tsatement of Senator La Follette against the character of the St. Paul convention and the motive of the Communists for participation in the convention, and were unanimous in pointing out that the motive of Senator La Follette was his desire to disembarrass himself of all radical connection which might create conservative prejudice against his candidacy.

CAN'T FLY TO CLEVELAND.

Shenandoah's New Water System Will Not Be Ready in Time.

LAKEHURST, N. J., June 10.—The Shenandoah, the United States Navy's rigid dirigible, will not make the scheduled flight to Cleveland tomorrow or Thursday. This was definitely announced at the Naval Air Station here tonight by Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne, after word had been received from the Navy Department.

Commander Lansdowne explained that it would be impossible to complete the water recovery system before the dirigible was scheduled to "hop off" tomorrow afternoon, and under the circumstances it was decided to call off the flight entirely.

The big ship will make a short flight Saturday, when it is expected that the water system will have been entirely installed.

ROB A DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

Four Armed Men Hold Up Fourteen Members and Get $2,000.

A card game at the Woodrow Wilson Democratic Club at 31 Chester Street, Brooklyn, was interrupted early yesterday by the entrance of four armed men who held up fourteen members of the club and robbed them of cash and jewelry amounting to $2,000.

No report was made to the police, but detectives of the Brownsville Station have started an investigation.

LABOR ROW HALTS WORK ON GARDEN

Union Men Building Platform for the Democratic Convention Are Called Out.

TROUBLE SOON ADJUSTED

New York Committee Will Have 2,200 to 2,500 Good Seats—Tickets Out June 22.

For a few hours yesterday there was a possibility that a strike would seriously interfere with the holding of the Democratic National Convention in Madison Square Garden, beginning June 24. Work on reconstructing the interior of the Garden was at a standstill for between five and six hours, but it probably will be resumed early this morning.

A large number of carpenters and painters, with some workmen of other trades, were at work in the Garden, getting up the platform for the speakers and invited guests in the centre of the north side of the building and doing other work. It then appeared that some of the electrical work being done in another part of the building by an outside concern, not acting under contract with the New York Convention Committee, had been using non-union men, and a grievance was laid before the Building Trades Council, which called out all the union men at work. The suspension lasted the rest of the day.

A hurried investigation made by Stanley J. Quinn and Joseph P. Day of the Convention Committee established the fact that the committee was in no way to blame, nor were any of the sub-contractors acting under its direction. Negotiations were started and last evening, after the civic pride of the members of the Building Trades Council had been appealed to, it seemd certain that the workmen would return to their jobs this morning.

No Further Trouble Expected.

In the meanwhile it has been necessary to carry on negotiations with sub-contractors and also with outside interests which have work to do in the Garden, preparatory to the holding of the convention, in order to get assurances that none of the work will be done by other than union labor. It is believed these negotiations, which were in progress last night, will be entirely successful and that there will be no further trouble.

The active members of the Executive Committee of the Convention Committee put in the afternoon in the empty Garden, selecting the banks of seats which will be utilized by the public, as distinct from the delegates and alternates and the guests who obtain seats through the Democratic National Committe and other political organizations. The 2,200 or 2,500 seats which the New York Convention Committee will get will be at the east and west ends of the Garden on the main floor. The delegates will be seated in the centre of the floor, and the alternates on other side. The seats for the Convention Committee will be behind those of the alternates, and are much better than the seats in the first and second galleries, which were the only alternative.

Each subscriber to the entertainment fund is to receive one ticket for each $100 subscribed. The location of the seats to be alloted will be determined at a drawing to be held tomorrow at the office of the committee in the Woolworth Building, this method being adopted so there may be no favoritism shown and so the small subscriber may be on a par with the large subscriber. The distribution of the tickets will not take place until a week from next Sunday, two days before the convention opens, to reduce the chances of the speculators getting hold of tickets.

According to an announcement made yesterday by the Hotel Association Committee, which is cooperating with the Convention Committee, there will be ample hotel room accommodation for visitors, with the rooms costing from $2 to $8 a day. About 20,000 rooms capable of accommodating 40,000 persons remain available, and the alloting of these rooms is going through smoothly by means of the room bureau the Hotel Association has established. Information bureaus where all sorts of information as to rooms may be obtained, prices and so forth, will be opened in the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations shortly before the convention crowds begin to arrive.

Miss Elizabeth aMrbury and her committee have accepted the invitation of the Music and Art Lovers Club to reproduce, in a measure at least, the interior of the Metropolitan Opera House in opera season, in Carnegie Hall on the night of June 23. "Pagliacci," in which Anna Fitziu, Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana and Albert Terrasi will take part, Grace White and Giovanni Gurrieri who will sing Cavalleria Rusticana, and many other Metropolitan artists with a ballet de luxe will form the triple bill.

Plans for the "Golden Way."

Plans approved yesterday for New York's "Golden Way" indicate that the spectacular transformation of Fifth Avenue for the Democratic Convention week promises to be even more dazzling than earlier reports indicated. Detailed plans of decorative artists and expert draftsmen were approved by Commissioner Grover A. Whalen of the Department of Piant and Structures, who is the Presiding Vice Chairman of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Distinguished Guests. Arthur Williams of the New York Edison Company is cooperating with the committee.

The designs include the decoration of Fifth Avenue from Washington Arch to Sixtieth Street, with thousands of colored lamps, a special aurora effect at the end of the "Avenue of States" and the changing of the regular street lighting globes from white to orange.

About twenty-five thousand special colored lamps in the colors of New York City—orange, blue and white—are to be strung in continuous festoons, two and a half miles long, along both sides of Fifth Avenue. This is probably the longest stretch of decorative street lighting ever attempted. Large searchlights, also in city colors, will be placed on top of Washington Arch, forming an immense aurora of light which will be seen all over New York. The orange street lighting globes on Fifth Avenue from the Arch to Sixtieth Street will harmonize with the festoons of colored lights and will carry out the gold and blue effect.

"Each block of Fifth Avenue will represent a State or Territory. The lamp posts will each be decorated with four flags, two national flags, the municipal flag of New York and the flag of the State represented. The name of the State represented will also be placed on each lamp post."

A committee of one hundred representatives of organized labor met yesterday afternoon at the National Democratic Club to discuss the program for Labor Night, June 24, at Coney Island, when the labor organizations of the city will be host to the delegates and visitors. Peter J. Brady, President of the Federation Bank, Chairman of the committee, appointed sub-committees to arrange details for the evening. A display of fireworks is to be given in the evening off the beach. Mayor John F. Hylan and his commissioners will be the guests of the labor delegations. A feature of the program is to be a grand ball to be held at Stauch's pavilion, Coney Island. The contestants in the national beauty contests will attend the ball and be introduced to the guests.

Georgia delegates to the convention will be the guests of Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany at Oyster Bay on Wednesday afternoon, June 25, it was announced by Percy S. Straus, Chairman of the Committee of 100 for Georgia of the Convention Entertainment Committee yesterday. The delegates and their wives will leave the Pennsylvania Station on a special train, at 3 o'clock, and before going to Mrs. Tiffany's home will visit the grave of Theodore Roosevelt. Automobiles will carry the delegates and members of the committee from the Long Island Station at Oyster Bay to the grave, and thence to Mrs. Tiffany's home. The subcommittee of the Georgia Committee of 100, which is arranging this affair is under the direction of Ivy Lee, a Vice Chairman of the Committee of 100. It will establish headquarters at the Pennsylvania Hotel during the period of the convention.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS OFFER A PLATFORM

Suggestions Will Be Considered at Meeting Tomorrow of Advisory Committee.

AN ANTI-KLAN PLANK

Among the Other Issues Covered Are Child Labor, Immigration and Maternity Protection.

Members of the Women's Democratic Union completed yesterday the draft of a platform for submission tomorrow to the all-day session of the women's Advisory Committee on National Democratic Platform Planks. The Advisory Committee's hearing will be held in Madison Square Garden beginning at 10:30 A. M. Many other organizations besides the union are to be heard, as well as many individuals.

The planks in the platform of the Women's Democratic Union were adopted yesterday at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Abram I. Elkus. Among the subjects covered are Child Labor, Public Health, Economic Cooperation, International Relations, Women in Industry, Maternity Protection, Prison Administration and Reform, Legal Disabilities of Women, Conservation and Immigration.

A Federal bureau of education is proposed, with a Secretary who shall be a member of the President's Cabinet, though most matters of education would be left to the State. One paragraph of this plank reads:

"We believe that a Federal Department of Education should be equipped to make investigation and research covering the whole field of our educational resources and needs, to disseminate information which will make for increased efficiency in all school systems and to give (without infringing on State freedom of administration and control) cooperative financial aid toward the decrease of illiteracy, the Americanization of the foreign born, the provision of well-qualified teachers and equal educational opportunities and the establishment of effective programs of physical education."

As to child labor the platform would commit the party to a constitutional amendment which would relieve the Federal Government of the inhibition placed on it as to child labor by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. A Federal program of health education is endorsed and it is proposed that movements aimed to bring consumer and producer closer together, in the interest of "economic cooperation," be encouraged. As to international relations the platform proposes entrance into the League of Nations "with all necessary safeguards to protect our national independence of action."

Part of the plank relating to women in industry calls for a work week of forty-eight hours; a wage not only commensurate with the cost of living but one that will permit the workers to maintain themselves in health and efficiency; a comprehensive system of public employment bureaus to stabilize employment; healthy and safe working conditions, and the same opportunity for vocational training for girls as well as for the boys.

Under the heading of Prison Administration and Reform the platform would pledge the party to the adoption of modern methods in the treatment of delinquents; the training of prisoners in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship and the giving of such work to prisoners as would train them in remunerative employments, with payment for their work while in prison.

One plank, which has no title reads:

"The Democratic Party pledges itself to stand for government by due process of law and against all groups, open or secret, which attempt to take the law into their own hands. It stands opposed to the attempts of organizations or individuals to create prejudice against groups of citizens because of race, color or religion as detrimental to American institutions and national progress.

Preceded by several preambles, the plank on immigration reads in part:

"Be it resolved, that the Democratic Party pledges itself to seek the repeal of the present immigration law and to sponsor and support appropriate legislation that will embody a flexible, adjustable, non-discriminatory method of regulation, based upon scientific data concerning the economic needs and capacities of the country; a method divorced from specious race theories and stressing individual physical, mental and moral fitness for entrance into the United States and thus hold aloft the ideal of a great democratic nation still in the process of making. To this end we favor the creation of a Federal Board of Immigration, consisting of experts of recognized standing and others having an intimate and authoritative knowledge of the problem."

The committee which drew up the platform was composed of Miss Frances Perkins, Chairman; Miss Martha Draper, Miss Lillian Wald, Mrs. Mary K. Simkhovitch, Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Miss Virginia Potter, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Miss Mina M. Bruere, Miss Emilie Bullowa, Miss Alice J. G. Perkins and Mrs. Anne O'Hagan Shinn. Mrs. John Blair, President of the union, was ex officio member.

WILL NOMINATE DAVIS.

Judge Holt of West Virginia to Present Ex-Envoy's Name.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 10.—The name of John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, will be placed in nomination for President at the Democratic National Convention by Judge John H. Holt of the West Virginia delegation.

Members of the West Virginia delegation have accepted an invitation to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Davis on June 22 at their home at Locust Valley, L. I.

PERSIAN MINISTER HONORED

Judge Gary and Others Praise His Work on Eve of His Departure.

Mirza Hussein Khan Alai, Persian Minister to the United States, who sails for Teheran on the steamship Paris today was a guest of honor last night of the Persia Society at dinner at the Hotel Commodore. Tributes to his work in the United States were paid by Judge Elbert H. Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation; W. Morgan Shuster, former Treasurer-General of Persia; Dr. A. W. Staub, Director of the American College at Beirut, and Dr. Herbert Adams Gibbon of Princeton University.

Minister Alai spoke of the improvements in Persia since the war and declared that Persia has entered a new era of development which has been aided by domestic tranquility and by the American Financial Mission now there. The budget has been balanced and the authority of the Persian Government has been established throughout the country.

Voicing his deep sorrow on leaving the United States in order to take his seat in the Persian Parliament to which he was recently elected, the returning Minister said that he had made many friends in this country. Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes who sent a message to the Minister was most sympathetic to Persia's aspirations, the speaker said.

Judge Gary said he was "a little in disagreement" with the reference made by Mr. Gibbons to America's "exploitation" of the Philippines. He said he could not quite well remain silent and admit that the United States had any disposition to exploit the Philippines. "I am bold enough to insist that the United States among the great nations of the world stands alone in the settled policy of making no effort to claim anything from any nation that we are not entitled to," he added.

BROOKHART AND BRYAN ADDRESS ENGINEERS

Iowan in Cleveland Speech Demands Labor and Farmer Control of Reserve Board.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—A demand for three farmers and two laboring men on the Federal Reserve Board was voiced by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, in an address at the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' convention here today.

Senator Brookhart declared that the Federal Reserve Board, in a secret meeting in 1920, had deprived American farmers of $16,000,000,000 in land value and of $14,000,000,000 in return on their crop in 1920, and $32,000,000,000 in 1921, "nearly as much in the last year as the war cost the nation."

"There is one poor little dirt farmer on the Federal Reserve Board now," Senator Brookhart said. "He is not enough, though he is useful in letting us in on what those fellows are doing. What we must have is five men, control of the board."

The insurgent Republican told the engineers' delegates that "economic cooperation," that is, cooperative organizations of business, is the only solution of economic ills that he had been able to find, and asserted that cooperative credit, through cooperative banks was the root and basis of cooperative business.

Senator Brookhart declared that 5 per cent. is enough profit for any organization of capital to take as earnings, and asserted that of what was left after 5 per cent. had been paid to owners of the capital, should be distributed, one third for expansion and upkeep of the business and two-thirds back to producers and consumers.

He charged that there had been a gigantic plot to drain farmers of the profits on their corps by the Federal Reserve Board, and declared the deflation plan was kept secret from the farmers through the summer of 1920.

"Henry Ford is the only big fellow I know who was left in the cold," the Senator added.

William Jennings Bryan also was one of the chief attractions at the Engineers' convention.

Mr. Bryan, when told that he was to speak from the platform with Senator Brookhart, assured H. P. Daugherty, Vice President of the Engineers' Brotherhood, that he was glad of it, "because I and Brookhart are pretty well in accord." Mr. Bryan is at the Republican Convention as a correspondent.

He said he agreed with Senator Brookhart that the principal need of the present campaign was to provide for relief for the farmers. He also praised the Engineers' Brotherhood for being the first labor organization to go on record for prohibition.

KLAN TRIAL SUSPENDED BY DISORDER IN COURT

Judge Orders Room Cleared of Demonstrators When Witness Proclaims His Membership.

EBENSBURG, Pa., June 10 (Associated Press).—The first sensation in the trial of forty-four men on riot charges growing out of the Ku Klux Klan demonstration at Lilly last April came this afternoon when Judge Thomas B. Finletter ordered tipstaffs to clear the court room of spectators, following a tumultuous demonstration when George A. Marks, a witness, in replying to a question, said that he had been a Ku Klux Klansman all his life.

When he took the stand, counsel for the State asked:

"Do you belong to the Ku Klux Klan?"

"Yes, sir," Marks replied. "I have been a klansman since I was born."

As though touched off by the pressing of an electric button, whistles and cheers, handclapping and stamping of feet resounded in deafening echoes throughout the crowded court room.

The court pounded with his gavel for order, and instructed the bailiffs to clear the room of the demonstrators, adding:

"This is no theatre."

More than 150 men and women and a few children slowly left while court proceedings were brought to a standstill.

SUPPORT OBREGON'S ATTACK ON OIL MEN

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 10.—A group of Mexicans sent a telegram today to Guy Stevens, answering the statement by him regarding the charges against the oil companies made in a speech by President Obregon. The telegram is signed by a number of prominent Mexicans and reads:

"We are informed of and endorse the statement made by President Obregon in his speech at Nogales with respect to the nefarious influence exerted by various petroleum companies in opposition to the progress of Mexico.

"It would be manifestly unbecoming for the President of Mexico to formulate concrete charges against these companies but we, as Mexicans and speaking in behalf of Mexico, challenge you to an investigation of these allegations before the Senate of the United States as the highest tribunal of American public opinion where we will prove that there are American petroleum companies that seek only their own enrichment at the expense of Mexico, robbing the Mexican land owners of their property, impeding the progress of Mexicans and committing such reprehensible acts from the standpoint of justice and morality that any tribunal of the world must inevitably condemn them."

TALLEY TALKS TO LAWYERS.

Judge Asks Court Reforms at Criminal Bar Association Meeting.

Suggestions that gowns be worn by attorneys during the trial of a case, and that a suite of rooms in the Criminal Court Building be used by lawyers in consulting with their clients were offered to the members of the Criminal Bar Association last night by Judge Alfred J. Talley at their meeting in the Hotel Astor.

Judge Talley said he had observed during a recent trip through Europe that law was held in much greater respect in England, France and Italy than here, and that in those countries the practitioners of the law, as well as the Judges, wear gowns in the courtroom. He added that the custom would also be worth while to add tone to the practice of criminal law in New York City.

"I think the criminal lawyers of New York are entitled to a decently fitted-up suite of rooms in the Criminal Court Building where they may consult with their clients," he added, "and I intend to call a meeting of the Judges soon and ask them to designate the rooms.

"It is an outrage for a lawyer to ask his clients to wait in the tumbledown corridors of that building of ours, and to keep them walking about there without a decent place to sit."

QUAKER CITY POLICE COMING

General Butler Will Head 500 in Flag Day Parade Here.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—Five hundred Philadelphia police and firemen, wearing their new Quaker gray uniforms, will be led by General Butler, Director of Public Safety, and Mayor Kendrick in the Flag Day parade in Fifth Avenue, New York, on Saturday afternoon.

Arthur B. Eaton, Secretary of the Philadelphia Civil Service Commission, will be at the head of the procession in front of the Philadelphia marchers. The color guard will carry a valuable flag lent for the occasion by Mayor Kendrick.

The demonstration will be staged by the National League of Masonic Clubs.

Start High School Addition Today.

Ground will be broken this morning for the $1,000,000 addition to the High School of Commerce at 155 West Sixty-fifth Street. The new building will contain fifty rooms, two gymnasiums, a cafeteria for students and a lunch room for teachers. With the 2,000 seatings it will add, the High School of Commerce will have a total of 5,000, making it the largest building of its kind in the State.

Fur Collared Steamer and Travel Coats

Regularly Sold at 75.00 to 135.00

AN ADVANTAGEOUS purchase makes this unprecedented sale of high class travel coats possible. In some instances you could not buy the fur collar in the regular way for the sale price of the entire coat. Models similar to many of these sold in our stocks for 135.00 earlier in the season. The manufacturer of these coats overestimated his sales, and decided to take his loss now instead of later on. Bought, as these were at a veritable sacrifice, it is an opportunity not likely to recur in superior coats of this type.

The models are exclusive, having all those distinctive touches that set them apart from the nondescript and the ordinary.

The majority are made of the finest imported woolens—English half-and-half, English Cumberland Tweeds, Invisible stripes and plaids, Rodier's Novelty cloth and Iceland fleeces. The fur collars are of genuine Russian Kit Fox, Leopard, Squirrel, Ringtail Opossum, Silver Muskrat or Civet Cat. All are silk lined and hand tailored in the way that only exclusive coats of this kind are made.

10 MEXICANS KILLED IN POLITICAL FIGHT

Gen. Flores Charges Attack by Armed Followers of Gen. Calles in Queretaro.

PARTY TENSION INCREASES

Mexican City Fears More Trouble Between Radical and Conservative Groups Now Lining Up.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, June 10.—Fighting which accompanied the visit of General Angel Flores, candidate for the Presidency, to the State of Queretaro resulted today in the killing of ten persons and the wounding of eight. The clashes occurred at San Juan del Rio and the City of Queretaro. Mexico City is greatly aroused over the affair.

In a telegram to the War Department, General Flores says that 300 armed Agraristas, followers of General Calles, commanded by the brother of the Governor of the State, opened fire on him at San Juan del Rio. The train proceeded to the station at Queretaro, where it was again attacked. The assailants, General Flores said, carried Bolshevist flags.

Tense feeling between the followers of Plutarco Calles and Angel Flores was shown by attempts to disturb meetings of Flores's followers at Pachuca.

Each candidate is carefully guarded by followers who are armed to the teeth and ready to repel aggression.

A real struggle is expected when Congress meets in September to declare the results of the elections which are to be held July 5. Both political parties are manoeuvring to obtain control of the Senate and House. It is believed that certain Congressmen will arrange to be absent, as without a quorum no decision on the results of the election can be taken.

José Vasconcelos, Minister of Education, returning from a trip to Texas, states that among the laborers and people of the class called humble there is no interest shown in the elections. Certain groups are taking part, using the name of Laboristas, but in reality they are few in number and do not represent the majority of laborers.

100 NEW MISSIONARIES.

Consecration Service Held at the First Presbyterian Church.

Nearly one hundred new foreign missionaries of the Presbyterian Church were consecrated yesterday morning at the First Church, the Rev. Dr. George Alexander presiding. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. Arthur J. Brown and the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speer, senior secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Erdman of Princeton Theological Seminary. Dr. Alexander officiated at the Lord's Supper celebrated afterward.

A farewell reception to the new missionaries was held last night at the Presbyterian Assembly Room, 156 Fifth Avenue, and a public farewell will take place Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas.

The Foreign Missions Board is holding its twenty-seventh annual conference with the new missionaries.

FIREMEN HOLD CONVENTION.

2,500 at Volunteer Association's Opening Session at Stapleton.

Fully 2,500 delegates and visitors went to Stapleton, S. I., yesterday for the opening of the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Southern New York Volunteer Firemen's Association in Firemen's Hall. Delegations were present from Westchester, Rockland, Queens, Nassau, Suffolk and Richmond counties.

The convention will adjourn after the election of officers tomorrow. Today will be Memorial Day for members who died during the year.

Fined $500 on Forgery Charge.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., May 10.—Ex-Mayor William H. Butler of Hampton was fined $500 by Judge Robbins today at the end of his trial on charges of forging two notes for a total of $2,500 in March. The trial, which started yesterday, ended when attorneys for both sides, after a conference, allowed Butler to change his plea of not guilty to non-vult.

by some of those men who live out there in Long Island and in New Jersey, many prominent citizens, I am informed by the Chamberlain, came forward in disgust at the criticism and offered to aid with large sums of money if this great project can be accomplished.

"The Chamberlain, I am led to understand, has taken up the question of a new site—thinking of the time it would require to have the law amended—and has found a site between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, near Fifty-ninth Street, just south of the location in the park. He informs me that if the city authorities approve this site tentatively we can get sufficient funds for the site, and I say if it is true that these wealthy men will help I feel certain the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will, I have no doubt, act upon his recommendation of another site if it progresses the work more rapidly than if the site in the park was obtained through an amendment to the law."

Announcement a Surprise.

While there were a few who admitted after the dinner that they were in on the secret, the Mayor's announcement came as a surprise to nearly every one present, including many who had been most closely associated with the project. There was some perfunctory applause but for the most part those present were taken aback by the Mayor's words, for speakers who had preceded him had emphasized the thought that the music and art centre project must go through, and that thought had been applauded.

In opening the speaking Mr. Berolsheimer called upon Supreme Court Justice William P. Burr to act as toastmaster, and Justice Burr, in saying that the dinner was to do honor to Mayor Hylan, described him as "a model Mayor" and one whom other Mayors might well imitate.

"I think he has succeeded," Justice Burr said. "In overcoming most of the difficulties he found and has won the love and affection of the plain people of this great city."

Surrogate John F. O'Brien said the Mayor deserved praise for "the vicious attacks he has gone through and the courage with which he has overcome them."

Praised by Surrogate.

"Misrepresented, misunderstood, but courageous through it all," continued Mr. O'Brien, "with marvelous stamina he has stuck to the interests of the people of our city. The art and music project launched two years ago is bound to be established and is soon to be in effect. This great monument will be built. The people of the city will be behind it regardless of the bitter criticism, and from the people will come a deep and lasting appreciation for the establishment of a music and art centre."

It was Dr. William C. Carl, a director of the Guilmant Organ School, who bestowed the William C. Carl gold medal upon the Mayor. Dr. Carl, attired in evening dress, had brought two academic robes with him. He donned one just before he was called upon to speak and then as he presented the medal to the Mayor he threw the second robe around Mayor Hylan's shoulders.

The dinner was attended by 150 invited guests, including Borough President Maurice E. Connolly, City Clerk Michael J. Cruise, Special Deputy Police Commissioner Barron Collier, Public Service Commissioner John H. Delaney, Justice Victor J. Dowling, former Police Commissioner William J. Flynn, Justice Charles A. Guy, William Randolph Hearst, David Hirshfield, Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen; Chief Inspector William J. Lahey, Representative F. H. LaGuardia, Monsignor Lavelle, Justice Robert J. Wagner and Borough President Julius Miller.

ROCKEFELLER CASE DEMOTION ASSAILED

Falconer Strives for Quiz of Enright by Board of Aldermen, but Loses.

LIEUT. COLLINS RETIRES

Quits Police Department Because of "Principle" — Declares That Fleming Did His Duty.

Alderman Bruce M. Falconer, a Republican, attempted to introduce resolutions at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen yesterday to have that body call Police Commissioner Enright before it to explain why he demoted Patrolman Edward R. Fleming, the motorcycle policeman who arrested Abby Rockefeller, 21-year-old daughter of John D. Rockefeller Jr., for speeding on Riverside Drive on May 13, and who admitted that he helped change the records to make Miss Rockefeller appear to be a first offender instead of a second.

When Falconer tried to present his resolutions he was forestalled by Alderman Rudolph Hannock, a Democrat, who made a motion to adjourn, which was carried. The Republican member, greatly incensed, announced that he would insist on consideration of his resolutions at next week's meeting. This led to a wordy battle between Falconer and Alderman William T. Collins, majority leader, who declared that he would "make a monkey out of Falconer."

The Falconer resolutions read as follows:

"Whereas, the press of Sunday, June 8, reports that Patrolman Edward H. Fleming, who served a summons on May 13 last upon Miss Abby Rockefeller for exceeding the speed limit for motor vehicles in the City of New York and who later furnished the testimony upon which Miss Rockefeller was found to have violated the ordinance providing for such speed limit, was by order of Police Commissioner Enright, signed June 7, and effective June 8, demoted from the motorcycle squad of the Police Department to the foot patrol force, without explanation by the Commissioner; and Cites Fleming's Punishment.

"Whereas, as a member of the motorcycle squad, Patrolman Fleming's headquarters were in the sheepfold in Central Park, a comparatively short distance from his home at 105 Audubon Avenue, Manhattan, and he has now been assigned to the 103d Police Precinct, which is at 263 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, so that he will now have to spend a long time daily traveling between his home and the station house, besides having to perform his duties on foot instead of as heretofore on a motorcycle; and

"Whereas, the press also states that Patrolman Fleming performed a maximum of eight hours work daily in the motorcycle squad and frequently had holidays off and was on duty on an average of only one out of every eight Sundays and that now on foot patrol he will be on reserve duty for eight additional hours every third day, making that a sixteen-hour day, and may be shifted at any time from day to night duty; and

"Whereas the press also states that the rank and file at Police Headquarters and in many of the precincts expressed resentment at the treatment of Patrolman Fleming, and that the feeling among many patrolmen seemed to be, as expressed in one station house, whether justly or unjustly, that 'a thing like this will make policemen not servants of the public, but servants of the rich,' therefore be it

"Resolved, That Police Commissioner Enright be and he is hereby, in accordance with the provisions of section 25 of the Charter, requested to attend the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen and to answer at that time the following questions:

"1. Are the facts stated above, as reported in the press, correct?

"2. If incorrect, in what respect are they incorrect?

"3. Will you state in detail your reasons for transferring and punishing Patrolman Edgar R. Fleming?

Further Questions Proposed.

"4. Did you discuss the Fleming case with anyone personally or by telephone, prior to the time of the order demoting Fleming? If so, with whom, under what circumstance, when, and what was the conversation?

"5. Did you receive or send any written communications about the said case before the order of demotion? If so, tell the Board all about them and state their contents."

Police Lieutenant Lawrence J. Collins, who admitted before Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield at Monday's hearing that he was responsible for the alteration in the police records in the Rockefeller case at the Traffic Court, retired from the Police Department yesterday. He filed formal application for retirement at Police Headquarters, and it was granted by Commissioner Enright. His retirement makes it impossible for any charges within the department to be filed against Collins, or for any disciplinary action to be taken, as was done in the case of Patrolman Fleming.

Collins told reporters that he and his family had felt so badly over the position into which he had been put by the Rockefeller case that he decided there was nothing to do but leave the department.

"It is a matter of principle with me," he added. "I retired so that I could go out and testify. The records in the Police Department had nothing to hide in the Abby Rockefeller case."

Says Fleming Did His Duty.

Collins said that he would appear before Commissioner Hirshfield this morning as a voluntary witness and ask permission to make a statement to explain his actions. He said that he thought that Patrolman Fleming had done his duty in the Rockefeller case, and was not at fault in changing the records when told to do so by Collins, his superior in the department, on the authority of Frank Doran, clerk in the Traffic Court, who said that the first complaint against Miss Rockefeller had been dismissed.

The Lieutenant's retirement was effective at midnight last night. Collins was born on Jan. 11, 1872, and was appointed to the department in 1896 while Theodore Roosevelt was Police Commissioner. He was known as "one of the Roosevelt cops." Before entering the department he was a watchmaker. He became a detective, and in 1907 a Lieutenant of detectives. In 1920 he was assigned to the Traffic Court and had been there since. He lives at 55 Eighth Street, Brooklyn, with his wife and two daughters. His retirement pay will be $1,650 a year.

Magistrate Frederick B. House, who organized the Traffic Court in 1916, paid the following tribute to Collins:

"Lieutenant Collins has been under my personal supervision and direction for the last five years and I have no hesitation in saying that his services have been honestly and conscientiously rendered. He has taken a great interest in the traffic work and has become very familiar with the proceedings in the court.

"In my judgment a great deal of the success of the court has been brought about by the intelligence and the honest and efficient conduct of Lieutenant Collins. I regret very much that he has felt disposed to retire from the service."

Magistrate Norman J. Marsh, who suspended sentence on Miss Rockefeller for speeding on Jan. 11 and May 14 and who was told by Doran, the court clerk, that he had told him that the first complaint was dismissed, told reporters yesterday that he had received Commissioner Hirshfield's letter inviting him to appear at the Commissioner's hearing this morning, but he declined to say whether he would accept the invitation.

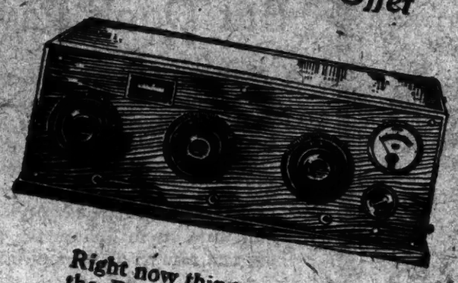
FIND THE DARK HORSE BY RADIO!

Come into Landays today and prepare for every thrill, every unexpected twist of the conventions with a reliable radio set and equipment that Landays will sell for a few dollars down and so little per month it will never be missed.

Hear the Opening Speeches With the Ware Neutrodyne on Landays 5-Day Free Trial Offer



Right now things are under way at the Republican Convention in Cleveland. Will you be one to hear the opening speeches at our expense? Then call us up—and have us place in your home the 5-Tube, Type W, Ware Neutrodyne Receiver for a 5-day free trial! And later on when you're hearing that Dark Horse made in your own library you'll be paying for the set on Landays exceptionally long-time payments.

How About That Storage Battery of Yours?

Is it growing weak—does your reception fade out and force you to tune in on a closer station—do you know if it will last through the conventions or die out in the middle of a rousing speech? This is no time for guessing. Your set must have the most reliable radio storage battery made—the Exide 100 Ampere Storage Battery sold on easy time payments at Landays.

Here's $144.50 Worth of Famous DeForest Radio Set for $65.00

No! You don't have to spend as much money for a really fine radio as you would to travel out to Cleveland and personally attend the Republican Convention.

Alfred Emanuel Smith

Not when the famous DeForest D-7A with loop and three tubes is cut to $65.00. And when Landays split that small purchase price into long-time payments, well—you'll hear these conventions by radio!

Remember This—The Reception Depends on Your Tubes—And That's Why You Should Use DeForest Audions

Now Only $5.00

Everybody knows that Dr. DeForest invented the 3-electroyde vacuum that makes all radio possible—and it is unnecessary for Landays to say DeForest Audions will give you each sound of the conventions with great volume and sweetness of tone—but now is the time to buy! So many people have demanded DeForest Tubes that volume production has brought the price down from $6.50 to $5.00. DV-2 for storage batteries, DV-3 for dry cells.

JAPANESE TRADERS FOMENT BOYCOTT

Government Says They Are Inspiring Agitation Against American Goods and Films.

ALL FOREIGN TRADE HIT

Danger to Americans Decreases as Outside Views of Recent Outbursts Become Known.

TOKIO, June 10 (Associated Press).—More sordid motives than those of patriotism are backing the anti-American agitation which has followed enactment in the United States of the immigration law barring Japanese, according to the views of Government officials and business men here.

According to statements made by them today, the agitation is being supported by some Japanese business men and manufacturers who desire to eliminate foreign competition in the Japanese markets, and who have seized upon the situation as a means to that end.

The same sources expressed the belief that the anti-American agitation had passed its peak in the demonstration at the Imperial Hotel Saturday night. Dangerous elements still persist in the situation, officials admitted today, but they asserted their confidence that the worst was over.

The Imperial Hotel affair has increased police vigilance to a noticeable extent. So-called "patriotic" elements are being observed closely where before Saturday night they were almost disregarded. Official efforts also have been renewed to encourage a moderate and dignified public attitude on the subject of exclusion.

Another reason for believing that the Imperial Hotel demonstration was the climax of the agitation, is that the world-wide comment and attention given to the affair has had a sobering effect, not only upon Japanese officialdom, but also upon the agitators. It is learned in reliable quarters that the agitators are being persuaded by the more thoughtful of their leaders that they are defeating their own purposes.

Officials assert that much of the agitation has been obviously artificial, with the participants mostly from two classes of people: first, young men, mostly students, and second, "Soshi," or class gangsmen, corresponding to political gangmen in the United States. The majority of the people are not supporting the violent demonstrations, according to officials.

The "Soshi" are usually employed here as political ruffians and frequently are able to exercise considerable influence by intimidation methods. The average Japanese has a wholesome fear of them, police protection against them not always proving sufficient.

The "Soshi" at present seem to be working under the names of half a dozen "patriotic" societies, such as the "Black Dragon Society" and the "Great Forward Society," much of the boycott movement being carried out by such groups, officials say, at the behest of hidden influences. The motion picture boycott, in which theatre managers have been forced to cancel bookings of American films, is illustrative.

The resentment over exclusion is looked upon in official circles as likely to have deep and widespread effects, which may be lasting and dangerous to the friendship of America and Japan. Officials are unanimous, however, in declaring that all active anti-American agitation has been the work of irresponsible persons; that none of it has had official sanction; and that the authorities are working unceasingly to restore calm and normal relations with America and Americans.

An interesting point is that the boycotters, in moving about for their demonstrations, have nearly always used American automobiles.

KING GEORGE TAMES HIS TERRIFIED HORSE

Animal Is Frightened by Cheering Crowds After Review and Tries to Bolt.

ALDERSHOT, England, June 10 (Associated Press).—The excellent horsemanship of King George got him out of a tight place this afternoon and saved him from a possible serious mishap.

As the King was leaving the parade grounds on his charger, after reviewing the troops, the horse became frightened at the cheering crowd. The animal "bucked" and nearly collided with a horse ridden by the aged Duke of Connaught beside the Queen's carriage.

The King made a second attempt to force his horse to accompany the procession, but the animal, terrified, plunged until its royal rider was forced to turn back and ride home along a quiet route.

The incident recalls the time the King was thrown from his horse in France during the war and was painfully injured.

BAGDAD RAILWAY GRANT.

Woodhouse Says Ottoman Company Expects Concession.

According to Henry Woodhouse of the Ottoman-American Development Company, which has been interested in the Chester concessions in Turkey and which lately has been negotiating with the Turkish Government for management and equipment rights of the Bagdag Railway, the company now expects to obtain the railroad concession.

Mr. Woodhouse said yesterday that a committee had been appointed by the Ottoman-American Development Company, consisting of himself, Horace G. Knowles and William Whittam, to undertake to consolidate the interests of American financial and industrial groups which would participate in making the offer for the Bagdad Railway concession. Mr. Woodhouse said that he had been advised by cable that the proposed treaty between the Irak and British Governments for the control of the Bagdad Railway from Mosul to the Persian Gulf had fallen through. It has been estimated, he said, that new rolling stock and equipment to the value of $25,000,000 would be required to put the Soutari-Adana-Nibisin branches of the Bagdad Railway in first-class condition, and his report to the company emphasized that action at this time would bring this business to American railroad industries and would lead to a business of from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year thereafter.

ELLIS ISLAND STILL PACKED.

Several Hundred Released by Congressional Action, but Others Arrive.

The congestion at Ellis Island, which immigration officials had hoped would be relieved by the special relief legislation passed by Congress last Saturday and which went into effect at noon Monday, continued yesterday and last night. There were 1,361 immigrants there Monday night and it was estimated that there would be as many, if not more, last night.

Several hundred of those who had been detained awaiting deportation under the Supreme Court's ruling in the Gottlieb case were released from detention yesterday and the day before, but 648 additional aliens were received from the Italian liner Duilio. They had been held on board ship since Sunday.

Countess Amalia Milani, who had been at Ellis Island since her arrival June 4 on the Providence from Palermo, was admitted by the Special Board of Inquiry yesterday. It was held by officers who boarded the Providence that the Countess, who had come first cabin, was an "excess quota case," but it was officially ruled yesterday that she be admitted.

Constipation makes bright children dull—give them relief with Kellogg's Bran

Constipation dulls the youthful mind—makes children backward in their studies—makes them listless—and can lead to serious diseases. Constipation is a dangerous disease.

You cannot afford to take chances in getting relief. You cannot afford to experiment or put off. Kellogg's Bran brings relief—permanent relief if eaten regularly. Even in the most chronic cases of constipation it is guaranteed to bring results. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, has brought relief to thousands because it is ALL bran. Remember, only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran is recommended by doctors. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It causes regular, healthy, normal action. For it works as nature works. It is ALL bran.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the wonderful recipes on every package.

The flavor is delicious—a crisp, nut-like flavor that delights the taste. Different by far from ordinary brans, which are unpalatable.

Begin serving Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, to your children to-day. Eat it yourself. The leading hotels and clubs serve it. Made in Battle Creek. It is sold by all grocers.

MRS. BUZZI RETURNS TO THE BRONX JAIL

Effort Will Be Made for Her Release on Bail If Retrial Is Delayed.

PRISONER VERY CHEERFUL

Death House Inmates Shout "Good-Bye and Good Luck!" as She Leaves Sing Sing.

Mrs. Anna Buzzi, who recently won the right to a new trial on a charge of having murdered Frederick Schneider in the Bronx more than a year ago and who spent several months in the death house at Sing Sing, was brought back yesterday to the Bronx County Jail.

Her attorney, James F. Donnelly, said that if the prosecution did not move to trial at once, he would ask for Mrs. Buzzi's release on bail. He said that under the circumstances it would not be fair to make her spend the Summer in jail. The trial is not expected until next Fall.

Mrs. Buzzi made the following statement on her return to the Bronx:

"My confidence in justice, never entirely shaken has been justified by the great and successful fight made by Mr. Donnelly in my behalf, which has given me new hope that full justice will be done in my new trial. I know now that I will be fully vindicated. My prayers have been answered. My innocence was my courage and in the few dark moments of my stay in the death house, I was buoyed up by the wonderful prayers and advice of Father Cashin, the prison chaplin of Sing Sing."

When she left Sing Sing, Mrs. Buzzi beisred: "Thank God I'm getting out of here." She was the only woman in the death house. The men whom she left behind in that section of the prison heard her as she walked through the corridor to the door which most of them probably will never see.

"Good-bye and good luck," they shouted, fifteen of them.

"Thanks and good-bye," she called back.

"I'm glad to see anybody get out of the death house for a new trial," said Warden Lewis E. Lawes.

"I hope to be exonerated," the woman replied.

Mrs. Buzzi received $3 of her own money and 12 cents pay which she earned by working eight days in Auburn Prison before being transferred to Sing Sing. She wore mourning for her mother who died two months ago.

Taken by taxicab to the Ossining railroad station, Mrs. Buzzi was escorted to New York by Deputy Sheriff John J. Dooley and Matron Catherine DeWitt of the Bronx County Jail. She arrived at the 125th Street Station at 1:38 P. M. and was taken to the jail in a police patrol wagon. Hundreds crowded around the railroad station and jail to catch a glimpse of her.

"As fine as could be expected," was the way Mrs. Buzzi described her feelings when she was received by Warden Thomas McGowan.

Mrs. Buzzi was very cheerful and joked readily. She looked much better and thinner than when she appeared in court dcring her trial last Summer. She was assigned to the same cell she occupied during the trial.

THREE ARMY FLIERS KILLED IN CRASHES

Test Pilot Drops 1,000 Feet in Michigan and Two Die in Virginia Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., June 10.—First Lieutenant John N. Wilson, an aviator of the first pursuit group, was killed this forenoon while testing a Thomas Morse pursuit plane, preparatory to flying it to Cleveland to take part in aerial manoeuvres for the entertainment of the Republican National Convention.

Just before he crashed Lieutenant Wilson was stunting the airplane at an altitude of 1,200 feet. His plane went into a tail spin, from which he was unable to extricate it, and he crashed onto the concrete highway two hundred yards west of the field. The plane was demolished.

Wilson was alive when his fellow officers reached the wreck, but died a moment later. He had been at Selfridge Field Park for two months, coming from the Philippines.

Wilson leaves a widow and one child in Charlotte, N. C., where his body will be sent for burial. His service had covered one year at the Philippines and a shorter period at Selfridge.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Second Lieutenant Harold D. Hall and Corporal Ralph W. Lehman of the Marine Corps were killed today in an airplane accident in Stafford County, Va. Hall was from Crockett, Texas, and Lehman was from Mayodan, N. C.

DETROIT QUARANTINES FIFTEEN CITY BLOCKS

Fifteen Thousand Then Submit to Vaccination for Smallpox and the Ban Is Lifted.

DETROIT, June 10.—A cordon of 150 patrolman, 50 physicians and many assistants effected a smallpox quarantine today about a fifteen block section of the east side, in an effort to prevent any new outbreak of the epidemic, which is now under control.

The quarantine was lifted shortly before noon, after between 14,000 and 15,000 persons in the district had submitted to vaccination.

Six new cases of smallpox and two deaths from the disease were reported to the Department of Health Monday. Other districts probably will be similarly segregated, Dr. Henry F. Vaughan Health Commissioner, announced. The quarantine today was made necessary, according to Dr. Vaughan, because the percentage of smallpox cases in the district was high, indicating, he said a lack of cooperation on the part of the residents in efforts to curb the disease.

No person was permitted to leave the district, which is a residental and business section populated largely by foreigners until he had been vaccinated. Street cars passed through the section but were not permitted to stop.

CONCERNING ANAEMIA

When your blood is becoming thin through overwork, worry, or lack of fresh air, nature's warning is clear—your breath becomes "short," cheeks grow pale, and a tired rundown feeling quickly follows. Wise people don't neglect such indications, for they know that by so doing they lay themselves open more easily to illness; they invest in WINE ELIXIR TONIC GENTIN.

A well-known physician wrote:—"Impoverished blood can be made rich and good by means of Wine Elixir Tonic Gentin, the most effective and desirable tonic. To those who suffer from a deficient quality of blood, Wine Elixir Tonic Gentin will act in a most favorable manner by producing a more natural circulation, which will in turn replenish every part of the system with fresh life, increased energy, greater strength and healthier conditions."

Built with the best quality of wine, WINE ELIXIR TONIC GENTIN is pleasant to take. One bottle is a fair trial. At Druggists, $2.00, also by mail.

What is the difference between an executor and a trustee?

AN executor carries out the provisions of your will. He has many duties—inventory and appraisal of assets, filing tax returns, paying obligations and collecting debts due the estate, selling such property as must be sold (often a complicated task to sell to the best advantage), and distribution of property in accordance with your will.

A trustee is necessary only when you leave property in a trust fund—not to be distributed at once. He manages the principal of this trust; has the duty of investing and re-investing funds and distributing income, as you direct.

A trust endures for the period you specify and then the principal is distributed as your will directs.

PIRATES' 5 IN NINTH DEFEAT GIANTS, 10-6

Pittsburgh Rally in Final Frame Starts With Two Out When Barnes Issues Pass.

CHAMPIONS TWICE IN LEAD

Pound Kremer for Four Runs in the Third, but Bentley Weakens in the Eighth.

That loud crash as if an elevated train had collided with an apartment house heard in the neighborhood of the Harlem late yesterday afternoon was only the Giants playing the ninth inning with the Pirates. The visitors did the bulk of the colliding. They rushed five runs over the plate and beat the Giants, 10 to 6. Immediately after the game John McGraw, who is not well, had a serious relapse, accompanied with a high fever.

Up to the moment of the sad accident everything had been clear sailing for the Giants. True, they had found some difficulty in keeping the Pirates properly subdued. After the McGrawites had acquired a four-run lead the Corsairs tied it up in the eighth. But in the same eighth Snyder walked and Lindstrom ran for him. Arnold Stone, one of the more youthful of the Pittsburgh twirlers, committed a balk and Lindstrom was allowed to take second. Frisch then scored him with a clean single to centre, and the crowd began looking around for the nearest exits. Everybody remarked what a shame it was Mr. Stone had balked his team out of a possible victory.

On the theory that superior numbers might win the battle, Bill McKechnie began sending up droves of pinch hitters in the opening half of the ninth. Jewel Ens was allowed to hit for himself and popped gently to Gowdy. Gooch batted for Schmidt and rolled to Virgil Barnes, who had been sent in to keep the Pirates in hand during the ninth.

Base on Balls Starts Trouble.

With two out nobody would have given a nickel for the Pirates' chances. Carson Bigbee, another pinch hitter, was the last faint hope, and when Barnes walked him things began to look fast and furious. Carey knocked a single to right, sending Bigbee to second. Walter Mueller singled to left and the score was tied. Carey going to third and Mueller to second. Under the circumstances, On Wright's base hit to centre both chased home. Cuyler singled to right and Wright, going to third, continued to the plate when Young's throw to first was arrested off Barnes's shins. This misplay advancing Cuyler to second, who scored easily when Pie Traynor jammed a single off Jackson's foot. Pie was out stealing, and the crowd gave a long Bronx cheer for Ken Griffith.

There you have the bald details of the tragedy. It was much worse than it sounds. Old gentlemen troubled with weak hearts got up and hastened away with averted eyes. The mere stolid spectators just sat and suffered.

The Giants used four pitchers and so did the Pirates. Jack Bentley started in the first and departed in the eighth while the Bucs were tying the score. Claude Jonnard didn't relieve him. Barnes started the ninth and Ernest Maun finished it. For the visitors the twirlers, reading from left to right, were Ray Kremer, Emil Yde, Arnold Stone and Johnny Morrison. The last named mopped up the wreckage in the second half of the ninth.

Kremer was seized with a spasm of weakness in the third and the Giants converted his hits into four nice large runs, the rally starting when Mueller in left played Bentley's fly like a schoolboy and let it skim over his head for a double. Carey couldn't come up with it, but a short lift to centre had him hiking for a two-bagger, scored Bentley. Young went to third on Frisch's long boost to Cuyler and counted on Southworth's single. After Terry's pop to Marsville, Meusel doubled to right, scoring Southworth, and rushed to third when Cuyler threw past the catcher. Jackson's one-base shot to centre scored Irish.

Young Breaks Up Rally.

A smart play by Young broke the back of a dangerous Pittsburgh rally in the fourth. Mueller was hit with one out, Wright walked and Cuyler singled to right, scoring Mueller and moving Wright to third. In the excitement Cuyler strayed too far around first and the quick-witted Young trapped him off the bag. Frisch making the putout in the runner. Bentley pitched cleverly to Traynor and nailed the big hitter on a called third strike.

The Giants recovered the lost run in the sixth on a walk to Young and Frisch's double to left. Young came clear around from first, ignoring the frantic signals of the good Mr. Jennings at third base. The Texan made the plate easily.

In the eighth Bentley was cuffed out of the box and the Pirates piled up enough runs to tie. Moore, a pinch hitter for Yde, walked, Carey singled to left and the bases were packed when Mueller singled to Groh. Wright's hit bounced away from Jackson, scoring Moore and leaving the bases still loaded. At this point Bentley was led away gently by the hand and Jonnard was summoned to dispose of the corpse. He began by fumbling Cuyler's grounder with a double play in sight, and although he threw the batter out at first Carey chalked up a run at the plate. Traynor was a victim on strikes, but Rabbit Maranville smacked a single past Frisch, Mueller and Wright scored and the game was even again.

The melancholy details after that need no repetition.

HOME RUN IN 13TH BEATS RED SOX, 3-2

White Sox Tie Score in Ninth and Win in Extra Innings on Falk's Circuit Drive.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Bib Falk's homer with none out in the thirteenth inning gave the White Sox a 3 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox today.

Piercy was hit hard, but the low score against him was due to fast fielding. Cvengros and Schalk gave way to pinch hitters who tied the score in the ninth.

The defeat sent the Red Sox again into a tie with the Yanks.

ATHLETICS RALLY AND WIN.

Score Three Runs in Ninth and Take Final From Tigers, 4-3.

DETROIT, Mich., June 10.—Scoring three runs in a ninth inning rally, the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Detroit Tigers in the last game of the series today by 4 to 3. For seven innings it was a pitchers' battle between Harris and Holloway. The first five innings were scoreless and each team had only one good opportunity to score, that being cut off in each instance by a double play.

YANKS BEAT BROWNS, AGAIN TIE FOR LEAD

Hoyt Wins, 5-0, and Spoils Day for 24,000 Fans Who See Sisler Get Diploma.

JOHNSON HITS HOME RUN

Utility Player Also Makes Spectacular Stop and Helps Champions Break Losing Streak.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—The Yankees finally beat the Browns. It happened this afternoon and completely spoiled the big Sisler diploma day celebration here. The score was 5 to 0. Hoyt was the winner. He allowed only six scattered hits, and was never in real danger.

The victory gave the Yankees revenge for the 11 to 1 defeat they suffered at the hands of the Browns at the Yankee Stadium last month—a catastrophe that ruined Ruth day, when Babe drew his diploma.

The series just ended went to the Browns, 3 games to 1, but the Yanks were able to depart for Detroit in a good humor, knowing that they were once more tied for first place. They regained the ground lost the day before by the fact that the Red Sox were beaten. The Tigers were also beaten, so the Tiger menace is canceled for the time being.

There were gaudy doings incident to George Sisler getting his neatly framed sheepskin. The stands were flag-draped and appropriately packed for the occasion. There were 24,000 fans in attendance, some of the folks having to stand on the field. The crowd thrilled when the actual act of handing over of the parchment was performed, not by a baseball official, but by a dignitary in gold lace. This was Vice-Admiral W. V. Pratt, Chief of the United States Navy, a veteran of fifty years' service, who was in charge of the Pacific fleet during the World War.

Ruth Catches Ball From Air.

With the navy thus featured, the army tried hard to crowd into even more prominence. Two silver-gray baby blimps surprised the throng by sudden descent during the game, hardly more than 350 feet in the air. From one of these baseballs were tossed down upon the diamond. Ruth caught one without any trouble near first base. He then tried an anti-aircraft gun shot with his powerful right arm, and actually came near hitting the stern of one of the blimps.

The game itself was an easy one for the Yanks. Sisler was not altogether deprived of opportunities. He made two singles in four times at bat and fielded with his usual grace and agility. The flowers he received along with the diploma did not jinx him altogether.

Aside from Hoyt's masterful pitching the best Yankee work was done by Ernie Johnson. He hit a homer off Dixie Davis in the second, with Pipp on base at the time. Johnson also made a sensational back-handed stop in the fourth at the expense of Joe Williams, who went hitless for the day.

Mike McNally replaced Johnson later in the game, when Southpaw Pruett and Van Gilder were trying and partly succeeding in holding the Yanks. Pipp got two hits, and Ruth did Scott.

Meusel and Pipp worked a double steal of second and third in the eighth, and Hoyt and Scott worked the squeeze play in the ninth with Scott tallying.

The Yanks made their seven hits go very far. There were two errors apiece. When each side went out in quick order in the first it seemed as if the game was destined to be purely and simply a pitchers' battle, but in the second, after Meusel fanned, Pipp singled for the first hit off Dixie Davis. Johnson then hit his home run. It was his third homer of the year.

The eighth double play that the Browns made during the series prevented the Yanks from scoring in the fourth. But in the fifth they added two more runs. Witt walked. Duggan fouled out. Ruth walked, for his second time, Meusel drove to the right bleachers for two bases, scoring Witt and Ruth. Meusel was caught at third when he tried to stretch his hit.

Squeeze Play Is Worked.

Pruett replaced Davis in the sixth and held the Yanks to but a pair of hits for three innings. He stepped out in favor of a pinch hitter and Van Gilder worked the ninth, and errors behind him gave the champions another run. Scott was safe at first on Gerber's error. Scott to Sisler. Scott went on to third when Schang's easy roller escaped Robertson. With Hoyt up, the Yanks worked the squeeze play. Waite laid down a pretty sacrifice bunt between the mound and first base, and although he had to be thrown out, while Scott scored.

The Browns tried hard to save themselves from a shutout in the ninth. With two out Jacobson singled and stole second, and went on to third when the reliable Scott juggled McMillan's grounder for an error. But Witt got under Severeid's long fly and the game was over.

ROBINS BEAT CUBS, GAIN ON LEADERS

RUETHER SHOWS BEST FORM

Twirls Effectively in the Pinches, While Teammates Bunch Hits Off Keen.

There is a saying in Brooklyn that the Robins win the National League pennant every four years. They won it last in 1920. That makes them due this year, and, judging by the way they are playing, there is more truth than poetry in the superstition. They beat the Cubs again yesterday, thereby gaining a full game on the Chicago club and likewise on the league-leading Giants. The score was 4 to 2, and the victory made it two out of three from the Cubs, the one game lost being more in the nature of an aquatic contest than a ball game.

Yesterday's triumph was all the more pleasing to the assembled 7,000 because it marked the return to form of Dutch Ruether. The veteran southpaw was not so effective as Vance had been on Monday, but he was good enough, and it comes to the same thing in the records.

With Ruether in shape, the embattled Brooklyn battalion has four first-class pitchers in winning stride. Pennants have been won with less, especially as Dazzy Vance is one of the quartet. But only the future will prove whether the Flatbush team is the real thing or a morning glory. Yesterday it was the real thing, and it set right out to win the ball game with Vic Keen's first pitch.

Andy High, the lead-off man, fired the opening gun by driving the ball over Jack Miller's head for a double, and Jimmy Johnston, who bats second, singled him home with a smash to right. There was no wasted motion about that, or anything else the Brooklyn boys did.

In the fourth they went after the Cubs' right-hander again. Milton Stock singled, Eddie Brown walked and Tommy Griffith tripled to right, chasing two more markers over the plate. Those two would have been enough to win, but even with Ruether sailing along in the smoothest sort of fashion, the Brooklyn lads took no chances.

To make assurance doubly sure, they shoved another one over in the eighth. Lead Jacques Fournier showed the way to it to this one with a safe smash to centre. Stock sacrificed him along a base, and Brown rounded out the score with a single to right which brought him home.

While the home lads were displaying all this activity the invaders were swinging more or less helplessly at Ruether's curve. They could hit it, but not when hits counted. Hits don't win games and Vance was master of all the trying situations. The Cubs scored an earned run off him in the sixth on singles by Grantham, Miller and Vogel, but their tally which came in the ninth was a "gift thorse" which will not stand close inspection. Jimmy Johnston helped to boot it over with the only error of the game. He let Vogel's grounder get away from him, and then, after Ruether's next two batters had been retired, Pinch Hitter Barrett singled Vogel across the plate.

The Cubs used three pinch hitters in all, and two of them, O'Farrell and Barrett, delivered good record innings for pinch hitters. As each of them except Barrett was followed by a new pitcher, Blake and Pierce had a chance to show their wares in addition to the first sufferer, Keen.

Of the Cubs' hurlers said that the team which plays against left-handed pitching does not look as effective as that which opposes right handers. The Chicago outfit has been described as stealing its way to a pennant.

HOMERS HELP REDS TO WIN.

Three Circuit Drives Prove Downfall of Phils—Score, 4-2.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—Three home runs by Cincinnati batters enabled the Reds to take another game from the Phillies today by a score of 4 to 2. The bases were empty when each of the circuit drives was made. Donohue had the better of Glasner in a pitching duel. Glazner gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Carlson, who relieved him, retired the Reds in order in the ninth.

PENTATHLON TRIAL WON BY LEGENDRE

JOHNSON IS VICTOR IN RUN

Pittsburgh Harrier Easily Leads Field in 10,000-Meter Tryout —Henigan Is Second.

Bob LeGendre, former Georgetown University all-around athlete, who as a college student enjoyed the distinction of winning the intercollegiate pentathlon championship three consecutive times, yesterday returned to his own when he carried off the Amateur Athletic Union's national pentathlon championship title in the final Olympic tryout at South Field. Competing as a member of the Newark A. C., LeGendre emerged from the five-event test with the low winning score of 10 points.

Trailing the former wearer of the Blue and Gray were Morton Kaer of the University of Southern California, and Clifford Argue, Occidental College all-around athlete who made the trip here to strive for a berth on the athletic squad which will sail for France next week. They were deadlocked for runner-up position, each with 20 points. A. B. Leggett, U. S. Naval Academy, and Charles F. West, Washington and Jefferson College star, who has won the intercollegiate pentathlon title for the past two years, were tied for fourth position, each with 22 markers. In sixth and last place among the survivors of the original field of thirteen competitors was Anthony Woostroff of the Newark A. C., who finished with 23 tallies.

The return to form of LeGendre was but one admirable incident in a busy day of competition for American Olympic Committee officials and prospective members of the American Olympic team. Following the pentathlon a field of thirty-five harriers were sent from their mark at Van Cortlandt Park in the final cross-country tryout, which witnessed another return to form by a former champion. The hero of this important test was R. Earl Johnson of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, Pittsburgh.

Scores Hollow Victory.

The fleet-footed little negro, who was America's ten-mile and cross-country champion in 1921, before the advent of Willie Ritola, scored a hollow victory in 31 minutes 29 4-5 seconds, finishing the journey of about six and one-quarter miles over a flat course with an advantage of about thirty yards over Jimmy Henigan, veteran distance runner of the Dorchester Club, Dorchester, Mass. Little Johnny Gray of the Enterprise Catholic Young Men's Athletic Union, Philadelphia, who thrilled a crowd of 20,000 people with his admirable running in the 10,000-meter trial at the recent Eastern tryouts, finished third right on the heels of Henigan. A. A. Studenroth, Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia, finished fourth, and August Fager, Finnish-American A. C. of this city, was fifth.

Secretary Frederick W. Rubien of the American Olympic Committee, announced that the selections for the cross-country team and the pentathlon squad, will be made known next Saturday night at the meeting of the American Olympic Committee Team Selection Committee in the Boston A. A., after the final track and field tryouts which are to be held in Cambridge on Friday and Saturday. Rubien declared that four athletes probably would be selected from among the successful competitors in yesterday's cross-country race, while two additional members of the Olympic two and dale squad will be chosen from among the nation's representatives in the 10,000-meter run. Verne Booth, Johns Hopkins University distance runner who holds the intercollegiate cross-country title and is a probable selection for the 10,000-meter run, appeared at the starting line for the hill and dale test, but was advised not to compete in order to save himself for Cambridge. Gray also was advised not to race, but decided to run.

Injuries eliminated some of the foremost contenders for this tryout. Among the stars affected was New Gourdin, former Harvard all-around athlete, now representing the Dorchester Club, who injured himself in a trial broad jump and was unable to compete. Brutus Hamilton, pentathlon and decathlon champion of four years ago, pulled a tendon in the 200-meter dash after tying for third honors in the broad jump, and was forced out of the competition. West also suffered from a pulled tendon, but pluckily continued with the test.

General Borden Is Injured At Polo; Another Also Hurt

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—General Borden of the Rumson polo team was struck a hard blow on the helmet in the game with the War Department four here today. The accident occurred in the fourth period and it was found that the General's head was slightly injured. Lieutenant Jadwin, who made six goals for the War Department, was in close pursuit of General Borden early in the game, and when he rose in the saddle to stop one of the General's shots he broke a saddle stirrup and was thrown over his pony's head. He escaped injury, but later in the match he received a hard blow on the elbow and the game was delayed while the wound was being dressed. The contest was one of the fastest ever seen here.

A. A. U. HEAD ASSAILS OLYMPIC SCORING

President Prout Charges That New System Is Aimed to Deprive U. S. of Many Points.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 10.—William C. Prout, President of the A. A. U., tonight characterized the new system of scoring for the Olympic Games, announced yesterday by the French Olympic Committee, as an attempt to strip the United States of its athletic supremacy. The new system will award 10 points to first, and the next five places, 5, 4, 3, 2 and 1.

"There is no question," said Mr. Prout, "but that the scoring of points has been aimed to rob the United States of many of its points. The winner of an event should be hailed as champion, but why should a winner who has beaten the second-place man by a very close margin in a running or hurdle race or a jumper or weight man who has excelled the second man by a fraction of an inch, be awarded 5 points more? It's all right to give the winner of an event 3 points over the second man, as is sometimes done in this country.

"It's a plan to make countries appear stronger than they really are, and the whole idea is aimed at the United States. We'll have to accept the conditions, but if the representatives of this country live up to expectations at Paris next month, the placing of such a premium on the winners of events may show Uncle Sam is to be benefited."

419 WILL COMPETE IN OLYMPIC FINALS

Record Entry Makes Trial Heats Necessary in Tryouts at Harvard Stadium.

BOSTON, Mass., June 10.—Due to the record number of entrants for the final Olympic track and field tryouts to be held at the Harvard Stadium Friday and Saturday, it will be necessary to hold a great number of trial heats, the Games Committee of the American Olympic Committee announced tonight in making public the program of events. The total entry list is 419, as against 259 in 1920, when the national championships and the Olympic tryouts were combined at the Stadium.

There will be four rounds of heats in the sprints and the 400-meter run, as well as in the high hurdles. There will be trials on Friday in the 800-meter run, and the committee is still considering trials in the 1,500-meter event, in which thirty athletes have entered. If all the competitors do not appear, this event may be held for a final on Saturday, members of the committee said. If the entire field is present three heats will be held, with three runners to qualify for the finals in each.

DUNDEE GETS 2-DAY STAY.

Must Reply to Kaplan's Challenge by Friday.

Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion and holder of the junior lightweight championship, yesterday was granted an extension of two days to reply to the challenge of Kid Kaplan, Connecticut featherweight championship contender, by the State Athletic Commission. The boxing authorities took this action on Dundee's application for an extension. The time limit for Dundee to reply to Kaplan's challenge would have expired today, but under the extension the champion has until Friday.

Tommy Robson, Malden, Mass., middleweight, who was disqualified for fouling Larry Estridge in their recent bout at the Pioneer A. C., escaped with a reprimand from the commission because of his previous good record. Barney Adair, Harlem boxer, was suspended for sixty days for demanding the money before entering the ring of the Steeplechase A. A. for a recent bout, it was announced. Chairman George E. Brower also announced the commission had approved the plans for the Milk Fund bouts on June 26, with the understanding that the sum to be paid the boxers in the contests scheduled was not to exceed a total of $100,000.

It also was announced an effort will be made to arrange a bout between Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, and Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, for the Nostrand A. C. early next month. This match was originally scheduled for June 24, but because Tunney signed to box Erminio Spalla on the Milk Fund card the Nostrand plans were upset.

45 NATIONS IN OLYMPICS.

Only Individuals Can Enter Games as National Lists Close.

PARIS, June 10.—The French Olympic Committee today reported that entries for the games have come in at a rapid rate and that to date forty-five countries have been listed to compete in the Olympics. National entries closed today, but individual bookings will be carried on until June 30, while under certain circumstances individuals may enter until July 11.

The field shooting lists closed today, but no additional names were received. Additional entries for the equestrian events from various countries included the United States, Austria, Norway, Denmark and Finland. The next series of events to be contested in the Olympics will be the polo games. Six nations, including the United States and Great Britain, have entered this division.

FIVE ARE TIED FOR MEDAL.

Seventy-four Have 79 or Better in Southern Golf Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 10.—Five players tied with 74 each for low medal score at the end of the qualifying round of the Southern golf tournament which opened on the links of the Louisville Country Club here today. Twenty-four aspirants for the Southern crown had scores of 79 or better.

The leaders were Robert Baught Jr., Birmingham; Nelson Gidden, Memphis; Leo K. Chase, Miami; Tom Prescott, Atlanta, and Chris Brinks, Louisville, all tied with 74 each. Dan Jarvis, Nashville, 75; T. W. Palmer, Miami, 75; B. F. Jones, Atlanta, 75; Tess Bradshaw, Atlanta, 76; Alex Heyburn, Louisville, 76; Ted Ottman, Louisville, 76; M. J. Condon, Memphis, 77; L. Montidonico, Memphis, 77; Charles Black, Atlanta, 78; John Marshall, Louisville, 78, and Frank Dyer, Memphis, 78, were other leading scorers.

SHOWING OF WILLS A DISAPPOINTMENT

Rickard Doubts Whether Negro Still Can Be Regarded as Opponent for Dempsey.

WILL HOLD FIRPO MATCH

But Says There Must Be a New Financial Arrangement as Result of Madden Bout.

Promoter Tex Rickard yesterday announced that he was seriously considering a revision of his plans for the proposed heavyweight battle between Harry Wills, New Orleans challenger for Jack Dempsey's title, and Luis Angel Firpo, South American giant, as a result of the disappointing showing of Wills last Monday night in his bout against Bartley Madden at the Queensboro Stadium. Rickard did not conceal his disappointment over the failure of Wills to dispose of Madden in a manner befitting a formidable rival for Champion Dempsey or to acquit himself against the rugged Irishman in a manner to impress the crowd which attended the bout mainly for the purpose of inspecting Wills in competition and appraising his chances with Dempsey.

Rickard voiced the conviction that Wills now is not a fit rival for Dempsey, and added that unless the New Orleans negro shows a decided improvement, he probably never will get his long-sought chance at the title because no promoter would undertake to assume the financial burden which would be involved in a Dempsey bout. With respect to Wills's proposed meeting with Firpo in August, Rickard declared that he probably would go through with this match, but under a different financial arrangement. The promoter is convinced that a Wills-Firpo bout has suffered from the financial viewpoint as a consequence of Wills's sorry showing against the courageous Madden. Accordingly, Rickard plans a conference with Paddy Mullins and Wills within a few days for the purpose of effecting a different money arrangement with the negro.

It is understood that Rickard tentatively signed this match agreeing to give Firpo a flat guarantee of $250,000 and Wills a guarantee of $150,000, with a privilege of taking 20 per cent. of the receipts. This arrangement involves an outlay of $400,000, which Rickard yesterday said he regarded as too great a gamble under the circumstances.

Boxing Not Impressive.

"I am as disappointed as were thousands of other people who saw Wills fight Madden," said Rickard. "Making all allowances for Madden's gameness and ability to take punishment, Wills's showing still was disappointing for a man who is being considered as Dempsey's most dangerous rival. He appeared in good condition and was strong and powerful, but his boxing did not impress those who saw him and compared him with Dempsey. I have Wills signed for three matches under my direction, one of which is to be against Firpo, probably will go through with that bout, but it looks now as if it will have to be under a different financial arrangement so far as Wills is concerned. I would prefer not to say anything right now, however, until after I have talked things over with Wills and Mullins. I expect to be in a position to make a definite announcement within a few days.

"Of course, right now I would say, on the strength of his showing against Madden, that Wills does not measure up as a fit match for Dempsey in a title bout, but that would be a far-fetched opinion, because Wills may box altogether differently against Firpo and may be more impressive than he was disappointing last night."

Boxing followers were almost unanimous in the opinion that Wills forfeited whatever chance he had to qualify as a suitable opponent for Dempsey when he not only failed to knock Madden out but failed even to knock the Irishman off his feet. Practically everybody who witnessed the match asserted that Wills has deteriorated to an alarming extent. It was pointed out that Wills apparently has lost all his ability as a long range boxer and relies chiefly on his great bulk and strength in clinches and work at close quarters to bring him victory.

Against Madden, Wills showed that he has lost the left jab which once was one of his favorite and most dangerous blows, and that he lacks in timing and accuracy in attempted punches with his right hand. Defensively Wills was proved by Madden to be susceptible to clean, powerful blows to the body and jaw, because Madden repeatedly scored with a left hook to the body and a desperate, though weak, right to the jaw. Discussing these weaknesses in the New Orleans heavyweight and recalling the terrific power in the left hook of Dempsey and the champion's sharp right, boxing followers were agreed that if Wills showed his best form in the bout against Madden the negro would be easily battered into submission by Dempsey in the event the pair ever clashed.

Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, was among those who expressed the opinion that Wills would be disposed of quickly if Dempsey ever defended his title against the negro. "I guess we'll have to count Harry out of the picture now," was the cryptic remark overheard from Kearns after the battle. Kearns yesterday declined an offer of $150,000 for Dempsey to box Madden in the Queensboro Stadium. The offer was made by Promoter Simon Flaherty, who sought the bout as a July attraction. In declining Kearns stated that Dempsey's movie picture work would keep the champion idle, and added that Dempsey would not risk his title except against an outstanding contender such as Firpo or Wills, if Wills shows an improvement which would warrant a title match.

On one subject there was no dissension. Everybody was agreed that Wills experienced a decided loss in prestige as a result of his latest bout. The negro came out of the match unhurt and unshaken in spirit. He expressed satisfaction with his success in escaping an injury to his right hand which has only recently responded to treatment. Protecting his hands, Wills said, was one of his greatest concerns against Madden. He praised Madden as a game fighter and a smart boxer who presents an awkward, difficult target. Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, echoed the boxer's relief at emerging from the bout without a hand injury. Mullins added that Wills boxed according to instructions from his corner and was careful not to commit any breach of the rules which would antagonize the crowd or draw official censure.

Madden was made the centre of a wild celebration after the bout. The Irishman, smiling through the blood which oozed from his torn eyebrows and split lip, complained of severe head pains and repaired immediately to his home. Charley Rose, manager of Madden, announced the Irish boxer would sail for Europe soon to engage in a bout with Jack Bloomfield in London next month.

ARMY POLOISTS WIN, 11-9.

Danny Frush Signs for Bout With Bretonnel on June 24

PARIS, June 10.—Danny Frush, who on June 1 knocked out Eugene Criqui in the eighth of a twenty-round bout here, has signed articles to fight Fred Bretonnel on June 24. Bretonnel in February was proclaimed lightweight champion of Europe by the International Boxing Union, which gave him the title held by Harry Mason, the British boxer, because Mason was alleged to have ignored a challenge of Bretonnel to defend the championship.

HORAN AND M'BEATH WIN TWO-HOUR RACE

Capture Velodrome Cycle Grind With 61 Points—Goullet-Piani Second.

Harry Horan and Alex McBeath were the winners in the two-hour bicycle team race at the New York Velodrome last night. They won first honors by piling up a total of 61 points. Alfred Goullet and Orlando Piani were second with 58 points and Fred Spencer and Anthony Beckman were third with a total of 47 points.

More than 6,500 persons witnessed the races and saw the twenty-four teams that took part in the match start. McBeath rode beautifully and did much to bring victory. Despite the fact that Goullet made a thrilling finish by winning the last sprint, it was the work of McBeath in capturing the two previous sprints that helped to make a triumph possible. McBeath and Horan picked up the needed points to win by gathering 25 for being among the first four in the final heat.

The point score:

Two-Hour Team Race (Professional)—Won by Harry Horan, Newark, and Alexander McBeath, Australia, 64 points; Alfred Goullet, Newark, and Orlando Piani, Italy, 58 points, second; Anthony Beckman, Secaucus, and Fred Spencer, Plainfield, 47 points, third; Alfred Grenda, Tasmania, and Reggie, McNamara, Newark, 46 points, fourth; Willie Grimm, Newark, and Willie Hanley, San Francisco, 32 points, fifth; Anthony Young, Newark, and Cliff Papworth, Australia, 29 points, sixth; Cecil Walker, Australia, and Willie Keller, Newark, 18 points, seventh; Fred Hill, Boston, and Eddie Madden, Newark, 16 points, eighth. Distance—54 miles.

CANCEL POLO GAMES TO HELP U. S. TRIALS

Third Westbury Cup Tourney Is Called Off to Avoid Conflict With Test Matches.

Everything in polo is making way for the coming matches against Great Britain for the famous International Challenge Cup. This was emphasized yesterday when the United States Polo Association announced the cancellation of the tournament for the Third Westbury Challenge Cup, scheduled to be played on the fields of the Meadow Brook Club the latter part of this month and the first week in July. The Westbury Cup games, always a feature of the early season at Meadow Brook, has been called off because of the fact that the dates selected for the tournament will interfere with the trial matches, from which the American four is to be chosen to meet England's best in September.

However, the other Meadow Brook tournaments, the Hempstead Cups and Meadow Brook Club Cups, will be played, starting on Saturday, and large entries have been received for both of the events. Ten teams have entered for the Hempstead Cups, which are individual prizes, open to teams of four, whose aggregate handicap does not exceed twelve goals, no member of the team to exceed four goals. Among the entries for this tournament received are the Army, Eatontown, Rumson, Green River, Rockaway Ramblers, Great Neck, 101st Cavalry and fours to be formed by David Dows, Marshall Field and Thomas Le Boutillier.

Eight fours have entered for the Meadow Brook Club Cups, open to teams of four whose aggregate handicap does not exceed twenty goals, and some of the leading players in the country will be seen in these games.

MINEOLA SHOOTER WINS.

Cauchois Takes Class D State Title With 96 Score.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 10.—F. Cauchois of the Nassau Trapshooting Club, Mineola, L. I., today won the Class D singles championship in the State championship trapshooting tournament here by breaking 96 out of 100 targets. George Brown, Seneca Falls, won in Class A with 99. L. S. Slade, Rochester, won in Class B with 99. Class C was won by A. G. Vansyke, Johnson City, with 98. In Class E the winner was E. Morrison, Watertown, with 93.

H. J. Pendergast of Phoenix won the doubles championship. Tied with Frank S. Wright and E. J. Laclair, both of Buffalo, at 43 out of 50, Pendergast took the title by breaking 18 out of 20 in the shoot-off.

U. S. SOCCER TEAM WINS.

8,000 See Americans Beat Poland in Warsaw by 3 to 2.

WARSAW, Poland, June 10.—The American Olympic soccer team today defeated a team representing Poland by 3 goals to 2. The game was a well-played one and was witnessed by 8,000 spectators.

The score at half time was even. In second half A. C. Stradan, Philadelphia, made the winning goal, the ball being dribbled from midfield. J. H. Mulholland, Passaic, N. J., fullback, played a wonderful game. The Poles so admired his work that they carried him off the field on their shoulders.

After the game the American players were tendered a banquet and then left by way of Berlin for Dublin, where they will play the Irish Olympic team next Saturday.

ARIZONA FOUR TRIUMPHS.

Beats P. M. C., 6 to 5, and Takes Polo Series, 2 Games to 1.

CHESTER, Pa., June 10.—Arizona University poloists today defeated the Pennsylvania Military College team, 6 to 5, in a game that was fiercely contested in every chukker. The victory gave the Arizona four the series, 2 games to 1.

EVANDER CHILDS NINE WINS.

Takes Divisional Title, Beating Haaren, 17-2—To Meet Newton.

The Evander Childs H. S. nine yesterday won the right to play Newton H. S. for the city scholastic baseball championship at South Field on Friday afternoon by beating Haaren H. S. on the Catholic Protectory Oval by a score of 17 to 2. This gave the victors the championship of the Manhattan-Bronx-Richmond division of the P. S. A. L. tournament. A home run by Guarco, following Dzatsick's single in the fourth inning, gave Haaren its only runs. The winning team in Friday's game will be sent to Chicago for the annual intercity game.

The score by innings:

Evander Childs H. S.	0	1	5	1	0	1	2	1	0	11	21	2
Haaren H. S.	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	0	2	8	3

Flyweight Champion Gets Decision Over Terre Haute Bantam in 12 Rounds.

LEONARD DEFEATS HURLEY

Outpoints Harlem Boxer by Wide Margin—12,000 Pay $23,607 to See Bouts in Henderson Bowl.

Pancho Villa is still king of the ring's little men. The little brown champion from the Philippines went out of his class last night at Henderson's Bowl in Brooklyn and decisively outpointed Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind. Villa is the world's flyweight champion, Taylor a bantamweight. Taylor was the favorite of the crowd of 12,000 at the start, Villa at the finish. The sullen, unsmiling little fellow made the Terre Haute whirlwind miss and miss and then lashed him to the face and body with salvo after salvo of rights and lefts that moved so fast it was hard for the eye to follow them.

There was little doubt about the outcome after the first few rounds. Villa was the master and Taylor the tyro. Taylor was game and good, but he was up against a champion who was a champion in performance as well as name. It was Villa from one end of the twelve rounds to the other. He harassed the Hoosier lad and punished him and he kept coming in and forcing the fighting all the way. Villa clearly won eight of the twelve rounds and one was even.

The meeting was the third between these two little men and last night's bout was the rubber engagement. Villa won the first time they met and he won last night in what may be the last time. Not that the bout was not a good one and interesting enough, but the lads are not evenly enough matched in size to make them logical opponents for each other.

Villa wants to go out of his class and win another title if possible by meeting bantamweight champion Abe Goldstein. On last night's showing he deserves the chance. The receipts of last night's bout were announced as $23,607.

Finds Villa's Style Puzzling.

Taylor found Villa's style extremely puzzling in the opening rounds. The brown boy crouched so that he was only inches above the floor and about the only target he offered was the top of his head. Taylor would aim and aim and then back away in disgust.

"Stand up," the crowd shouted to Villa. There was a bit of comedy in that; the crowd demanding that Villa stand up in the majesty of his five feet and one inch. It seemed only fair that Villa, at a very apparent disadvantage in height and reach, should be allowed to take full advantage of that disadvantage.

If he was hard to hit, then it was also hard for him to hit in turn. He had to leap up to reach Taylor's face, but he did it in the first round and opened a cut inside the blond boy's lip that bled for the rest of the bout. Every round after that the Filipino would open up that cut.

Baffled as he was, Taylor did not jump around and leap in and out as much as he had in his other bouts in the East. He was up against a grim little man that could match his speed and then some. With Villa so thoroughly covered up Taylor had to hit either high or low and in the first two rounds he elected to try the body. Villa several times claimed a foul in these early rounds, but after warning Taylor once Referee Luis Magnolia paid scant attention to his plaints. Villa weighed 113½ pounds against Taylor's 117½.

Leonard Scores Over Hurley.

The semi-final was a slashing affair in which Johnny Leonard, the Allentown, Pa., featherweight, decisively outpointed Lew Hurley of Harlem in twelve rounds. It was a slugging match from beginning to end, with Leonard having Hurley close to a knockout in the three last rounds, but never quite able to put across the deciding punch.

The first three rounds were corkers. Hurley rushed Leonard in the first round and drew first blood. He drove the Allentown lad around the ring, punishing him severely with right and lefts to the side of the head and to the body. The second round also went to Hurley, and it seemed at the bell that he had Leonard close to a knockout. If he did Leonard recovered quickly.

He came out of his corner fighting in the third and turned the tide of battle with a series of smashes that soon had Hurley in full retreat and bleeding from the nose and mouth. Hurley rallied before the session was over, but the round was clearly Leonard's, and from that time on he showed to increasing advantage. Weaving from side to side, but steadily advancing at the same time, Leonard forced the fighting from the fourth round on.

By the sixth it was a question of whether he could stop the game New York boy. Hurley has just come of age and until recently has been limited to six-round bouts by the State boxing rule.

Crowd Applauds Leonard.

Leonard showed himself not only a good boxer but a generous foe as well. When Hurley slipped and nearly fell in the seventh he had him at his mercy, but he backed away, to the applause of the gallery.

Class told in the ninth. After penning Hurley in a corner Leonard clubbed him to the head with an overhand right and to the body with his left. Finally he caught him coming off the ropes with a right and sent him down for a count of nine. From then on to the end Hurley was hanging, but doing it so gamely that he got almost as much applause as he left the ring as the winner.

Len Mealey, Frank Churchill's recent importation from Laramie, Wyo., made his metropolitan debut in the six-rounder which preceded the semi-final and earned a draw with Harry Felix at the east side. The cowboy was wild but willing, and his tendency to mix things earned him the even break. These two are junior lightweights. Nick Quagerelli defeated Marty Sullivan in the curtain-raiser of four rounds.

MOORE WILL MEET GREB.

To Take Delaney's Place in Milk Fund Carnival.

Jack Delaney, Bridgeport middleweight, who was scheduled to box Harry Greb, world's titleholder, for the championship in the feature bout on the Milk Fund boxing card in the Yankee Stadium on June 26, will be unable to meet Greb, it was announced yesterday by officials in charge of the charity boxing carnival. Tea Moore, English middleweight, who has been clamoring for a match against Greb, has been signed to replace Delaney, who is suffering from an attack of appendicitis, according to the announcement of the change in the championship bout.

Billiard Results.

In one of the finest pocket billiard exhibitions ever seen at Lawler Brothers' Academy, in Brooklyn, Tom Hueston of Chicago, former world's champion, defeated Erwin Rudolph in the all-star tournament last night by 100 to 67 in three innings. Hueston ran 47 on his first turn at the table, made 14 and scratched on his second turn and then went out in the third inning with an unfinished run of 40. Rudolph made 9 in his first inning and 58 in his second. Tonight Charles Harmon will play W. Scott.

John Mills was the winner over William Flynn in the handicap 18.2 balkline tournament at the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. The score was 50 to 26 in 28 innings. In the three-cushion tourney George Vopelsang defeated William Bush, 23 to 11, in 46 innings.

Theodore Dick won the handicap rapid-fire three-cushion tournament at the Strand Academy last night. He played for 9 points against a field of fifteen.

MISSIONARY VICTOR IN HARLEM STAKES

MAIBEN GETS A DOUBLE

Wins the Damsel With Belair Stud's Priscilla Ruley and Scores In Fifth With Simoon.

Clarence Buxton's Missionary, five-year-old son of Hourless and Mission, won his second straight race at Belmont Park yesterday afternoon when he beat six others in the Harlem Selling Stakes and earned $3,450 for his owner. Missionary ran the mile in the fast time of 1:37 1-5 on a track that was not unusually fast, but he had a close call and gained the decision by only a nock from August Belmont's Pricemaker, he also a son of Hourless. The Glen Riddle Farm's Dinna Care was third.

The track was in better shape than in several days under the benign influence of a warm sun and brisk breeze and the brilliant weather attraced a large crowd for an off day. Jockey J. Maiben continued his excellent work in the saddle, bringing home two winners. He rode Priscilla Ruley to win the third and had the leg up on Simoon, which won the fifth race.

In the Harlem Stakes, which had the place of honor on the card, the public was about evenly divided between the Glen Riddle Farm's old Dinna Care and J. W. McClelland's Huon gelding Banter. Missionary opened at 3 to 1, but was not much in demand and closed a point higher. Banter broke fast and was quickly rushed into the lead. Dinna Care, on the other hand, was away slowly, but Ponce drove him up to chase Banter. The two raced out in front for nearly seven furlongs, Banter showing plenty of speed. He went to the quarter in 0:22 and to the half in 0:46, the six furlongs being clocked in 1:11 2-5.

Rally, on Pricemaker, rode a waiting race, but unfortunately waited a little too long or he might have won. Missionary had been held in back of the place, and when they turned for home M. Buxton drove him in between Dinna Care and Banter. He could not get through on the first attempt, but finally did find an opening. The two leaders then began to tire and drop back. Pricemaker was taken wide on the stretch turn by Rally, but he came up fast on the outside and challenged Missionary, which just lasted.

Favorites won two of the numbers on the afternoon card, one of them being in the other mile race, the Damsel, for three-year-old fillies, third on the card. The winner was the Belair Stable's Priscilla Ruley, coupled with the same stable's Filomar and held at 9 to 10 at post time. H. P. Whitney's Margin set a fast early pace, only to weaken at the end.

Priscilla Ruley was held behind the pace and Maiben sent her up on the turn, where she caught up with Margin and raced her down in the stretch drive, to win easily by more than a length. J. Davis's Eagerness took third money. The first two carried top weight of 118 pounds. The race was run in 1:36 2-5.

The Damsel was watched closely, as it and as a sort of try-out for the Coaching Club American Oaks, which will feature the closing day of the meeting on Friday. The way that Priscilla Ruley won indicated that she will be able to beat for the money and the Skeleton Cup, which will be the trophy at stake. Both Priscilla Ruley and Eagerness worked out an extra quarter of a mile in preparation for the Oaks, which will be a searching test for the fillies over the course of a mile and three furlongs. It is expected that Outline and Relentless will furnish the most dangerous opposition, although Sunaya is ready for the test.

Mrs. Wightman Twice Victor In English Tennis Tourney

BECKENHAM, England, June 10.—All of the American women tennis players in England, with the exception of Miss Helen Wills, the national champion, are participating in the Kent County championships. Mrs. George W. Wightman, Mrs. Marion Jessup and Mrs. Mollo Mallory were successful in the first round. Mrs. Mallory defeated Mrs. Satterthwaite, 6—3, 8—6. Mrs. Wightman also won in the second round, defeating Mrs. A. D. Stocks, 6—3, 6—4. Miss Elizabeth Ryan advanced to the second round, while Miss Lilian Scharman of Brooklyn defaulted. Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston lost to Miss C. J. Walters, 4—6, 8—6, 6—3.

MRS. GREEN VICTOR IN FOUR MATCHES

Triumphs in Singles and Doubles In Women's Invitation Tennis at Apawamis.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., June 10.—The round before the semi-final was reached in the annual invitation lawn tennis tournament for women at the Apawamis Club today, with seven players occupying brackets in this round. No surprising results marked their advance, all of the favorites being left in the running. In the upper half the survivors are Miss Florence Ballin, Miss Gertrude Hopper and Mrs. Theodore Sohst. The two first-named will meet tomorrow morning, when play will be resumed, while Mrs. Sohst will be opposed to the winner of the third-round match between Mrs. Robert Le Roy, New Jersey State champion, and Mrs. J. O. Blanchard.

In the lower half are left Miss Mayme MacDonald, the national clay court champion; Mrs. H. Stuart Green, Miss Florence Sheldon and Mrs. L. C. Beaupre, champion of Quebec. They will meet tomorrow in the order named. Miss MacDonald and Mrs. Green both played two matches today. The former defeated Mrs. G. R. de Gersdorff in the second round at 6—3, 6—3 and then put out Miss Alice Francis of Orange, N. J., runner-up for the girls' national indoor championship, at 6—1, 6—4. Mrs. Green eliminated Miss Mary Case at 6—2, 6—2 and Miss Mary Heaton of Greenwich at 6—4, 6—3.

The play of Miss MacDonald was the feature of the day. The clay court champion has been acting as physical director at the University of New Hampshire, and the Apawamis tournament marks her first play of the season. Her performance showed that she has not lost any of her skill. She mixed her game up with good judgment and gave a splendid account of herself both from back court and at the net. Against Miss Francis she was called on to show her best wares, and her ground strokes were sent over the net with great pace and full length, forcing error-making on the part of Miss Francis.

In addition to bringing the field into the round before the semi-finals the Tournament Committee started the women's doubles tournament, and before the day was over all the matches in the first round had been completed and only one remained to be played in the second round. Under the direction of William A. Gahley, the club's courts were in splendid condition early in the morning and the matches were run off in clock-like order without a hitch. Mrs. Green, in addition to advancing two rounds in the singles, also played two matches in the doubles, so that she was a winner four times during the day.

The summaries:

Singles (Second Round)—Mrs. Robert Le Roy defeated Miss Penelope Davies, 6—1, 6—2; Mrs. J. O. Blanchard defeated Miss Dorothy Hotchkiss, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Mayme MacDonald defeated Mrs. G. R. de Gersdorff, 6—3, 6—3; Mrs. H. Stuart Green defeated Miss Mary Case, 6—2, 6—2.

Third Round—Miss Gertrude Hopper defeated Mrs. Arden R. Bailey, 6—0, 6—3; Miss Florence Ballin defeated Miss Marion Kerr, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Theodore Sohst defeated Mrs. Gerden B. BOWMAN DEFEATS HARDY AT HARTFORD

N. Y. State Champion Wins 3-Set Match in New England Tennis Championship.

TILDEN ALSO A WINNER

Triumphs Over Smith in Second Round in Easy Fashion—Whitlock Beaten by Chapin.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 10.—William T. Tilden 2d of Philadelphia and H. L. Bowman of New York City, New York State champion, were among those who advanced today in the second round matches of the New England tennis tournament at the Hartford Golf Club. Many of the matches continued until dark and some official returns were unavailable.

G. C. Whitlock of New York succumbed to A. H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield, 7—5 and 6—2. Other feature matches were Tilden's win over young Francis Smith of Waterbury, 6—3 and 6—2, and the three-set match between Bowman and Sam Hardy, Captain of the Davis Cup team of 1920, which Bowman won, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4.

Tilden did not exert himself much today, although the Waterbury boy played splendid tennis and won many rallies. Tilden played a back-court game mostly and contented himself with allowing Smith to beat himself on frequent outs.

The point score of the Chapin-Whitlock match follows:

U. S. L. T. A. ANNOUNCES ELIGIBILITY CHANGES

Alters Rules Covering Candidates for Women's National Title Tennis Tourney.

Changes governing the players eligible to compete in the women's national lawn tennis championship, which will be played this year at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I., the week of August 11, were announced yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, in accordance with recommendations made by the Women's Championship Committee at the last annual meeting of the governing body. The regulations provide that the following are eligible:

1. Players who have been ranked by the United States Lawn Tennis Association in the first twenty during any of the five years last preceding the tournament, or who have at any time been ranked in the first ten.

2. Players who in the current season have won a sanctioned tournament or have won at least two rounds in not less than three sanctioned tournaments, or who have failed to meet these requirements because of circumstances but have made a reasonably good record, which in the judgment of the committee of management warrants acceptance of their entries.

3. Players who do not qualify in any of the above classes, but whose entry is acceptable to the committee of management by reason of residence in foreign countries, promise of skill or other circumstances deemed sufficient to cause exception in their cases. Your committee further recommends that only two players be seeded if the entry is restricted to thirty-two or less and that in no case shall more than four players be seeded.

Jim Barnes Has Lowest Card In Thousand Guineas Golf

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Co.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—An American, Jim Barnes of New York, open golf champion of the United States in 1921, turned in the lowest card on the first day of the Glasgow Herald's Thousand Guineas golf tournament today. He had a score of 70. Ted Ray, who formerly held the British and American open titles; R. G. Wilson of England and Angel de la Torre, representing Spain, were tied for second place with 72s. The card turned in by Barnes is considered an excellent one because of the difficulty encountered on the Gleneagles course. He had eight 3s on his card—four going out and four coming in. The only fault the experts noticed was a tendancy to cut his tee shots, but his recoveries were of the best, and he made excellent use of every opportunity that arose.

BEHR IS DEFEATED ON MONTCLAIR COURT

Seeded Player Loses to De Mott, 11-9, 6-0—Kirkland Wins From Sellers.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 10.—Another of the seeded players in the New Jersey State lawn tennis championship was eliminated today when Allen Behr was defeated by Ralph De Mott in the fourth round of the tournament. For one set the two men put up an exhausting struggle, twenty games being required before a decision was reached. After losing the first set at 11—9, Behr went to pieces in the second and did not take another game. The score was 11—9, 6—0. By his victory De Mott reached the round before the semi-finals.

All the brackets were filled with the exception of two in the round before the semi-final. Fritz Mercur, Lehigh University star; Mason T. Kirkland of Elizabeth, who eliminated Anton F. Von Bernuth, the champion, and L. Gwynne French of the home club were the other players to gain a place in this round. Mercur put out John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., at 6—2, 6—4. Kirkland had a desperate struggle on his hands before he was able to get by Frank A. Seller, veteran of the local club. After two long sets Kirkland won at 8—6, 7—5.

French eliminated Carl Gray at 6—2, 6—3. Lindsay Dunham and Paul Martin gained their bracket in the round before the semi-finals on Monday. Tomorrow afternoon Percy L. Kynaston of Rockville Centre, L. I., the ranking player in the tourney, will meet Edward C. Oelsner of the home club, and Fred Powers of Montclair will face S. G. Hall of Orange, N. J., the winners of the two matches to fill the two remaining brackets in the antepenultimate round.

Hall won two matches yesterday. In the second round he defeated George C. Thomas Jr. at 6—4, 3—6, 7—5, and then met S. V. Brubans. After another three-set match Hall was returned the winner at 5—7, 6—0, 6—4.

Play in the doubles championship was started this afternoon and all the matches were finished with the exception of three in the first round. Among the teams to pass out of the play were Fred C. Anderson of Brooklyn and Jack A. Wright Jr. of the Canadian Davis Cup team, who were seeded at the top of the lower half. Matched against Von Bernuth and Hugh Oakley they lost in three sets after taking the first one in one-sided fashion. The better team work of the local team and their thoroughness in getting everything back overcame the brilliance of their opponents at the net and they won the second and third sets by close margins. The score was 1—6, 6—4, 6—3.

The summaries:

Singles, Second Round—S. G. Hall defeated George C. Thomas Jr., 6—4, 3—6, 7—5.

Third Round—Hall defeated S. V. Brubans, 5—7, 6—0, 6—3; Percy L. Kynaston defeated E. E. Kelly, 6—4, 6—2; Edward C. Oelsner won from Earl C. Backe by default.

Fourth Round—Fritz Mercur defeated John Van Ryn, 6—2, 6—4; Mason T. Kirkland defeated Frank A. Seller, 8—6, 7—5; L. Gwynne French defeated Carl Gray, 6—2, 6—3; Ralph M. De Mott defeated Allen Behr, 11—9, 6—0.

Doubles, First Round—John Van Ryn and Kenneth Appel defeated John C. Neely and Belden G. Noyes, 6—4, 6—3; L. B. Cooper and A. Jewett defeated Fred Powers and S. B. Palmer, 6—4, 6—7, 6—4; A. G. Osborne and W. E. Bishop defeated C. G. Adams and George Reindel, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3; Donald Morehead and J. Schenck defeated R. Hughes and R. Swift, 6—3, 7—5; W. B. Spencer and Frank MacWatty won from V. A. Ely and A. M. Hyde by default, Anton F. Von Bernuth and Hugh Oakley defeated Fred C. Anderson and Jack A. Wright Jr., 1—6, 6—4, 6—3; Edward C. Oelsner and Allen Behr defeated A. F. Wright and A. J. Fleig, 6—4, 6—4; Carl Gray and Wallace Howe won from Alex Iler and Robert Le Roy by default; Philip and Ludlow Vandeventer defeated L. Noel Jr. and R. Haines, 6—4, 6—3; Leonard W. Knox and Carl N. Jolliff defeated Paul Martin and Alfred D. Hammett, 4—6, 6—0, 6—3; Lindsay Dunham and A. F. Pearson defeated G. Furman and G. C. Lewis, 6—4, 6—2; E. C. Hinck Jr. and E. F. Merrick 2d defeated H. B. Van Cleave and S. Bents, 7—5, 6—2, 7—5.

FRENCH WINS GOLF TITLE.

Takes Pennsylvania Open With 304 —Hutchison Tied for Second.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 10.—Emmett French, Youngstown pro, by a brilliant finish won the Pennsylvania State open golf championship here this afternoon with a score of 304. This was just three strokes better than Charlie Rowe, the home professional, who was tied with Jock Hutchison, former British open champion, had. French was five strokes behind the leader when he started out to play in the third round and at lunch time he was only two behind.

MRS. SMITH GOLF VICTOR.

Has Low Gross of 85 in Women's Met. One-Day Tournament.

A field of seventy-six women golfers, one of the largest fields of the season, competed yesterday in the one-day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association held on the links of the Glen Ridge Country Club. Mrs. Cortland Smith of the home club won the low gross prize with a card of 85 for the 18-hole competition. Mrs. Smith was out in 42 and returned in 43. Mrs. Irving Brown of the Knickerbocker Club was runner-up to Mrs. Smith with an 89, 45 out and 44 in.

There was a tie for best net score between Mrs. Herbert Rice of Quaker Ridge, with 97, 20—77, and Mrs. J. Mager of Deal, with 96, 18—78. Mrs. Rice was unable to remain for a play-off, so the prize was awarded to Mrs. Mager.

MET. AMATEUR GOLF WILL START TODAY

Field of 80 Ready to Tee Off in Qualifying Round Over Lido Course.

PROS BOUND FOR ENGLAND

Sarazen, Hagen, Espinosa and Farrell Sail This Morning to Enter British Open at Hoylake.

Two events of more than passing interest to golfers will take place today. Bright and early this morning eighty or so intrepid linksmen will tee off in the qualifying rounds of the twenty-fourth Metropolitan Golf Association amateur championship to be played over the Lido links at Long Beach, L. I. Along toward the middle of the day four equally intrepid members of the salaried brigade of golfers will board the steamship Mauretania, with their baggage marked for the Hoylake golf links, near Liverpool, England, where they will compete in the British open championship on June 26 and 27, provided they succeed in getting past the qualifying tests.

In the traveling party, sailing at noon, will be Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sarazen, newly-weds; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hagen, Johnny Farrell and Al Espinosa. The four male members of the group will constitute two-thirds of America's representation in the British open event, Long Jim Barnes and Macdonald Smith having preceded them. Barnes setting forth immediately after the P. G. A. refused to show any clemency so far as accepting his late entry for the national open, and Smith sailing last Saturday.

For all excepting one member of the departees, Espinosa, the trip abroad will be something of the old story. Hagen has been over so many times that he no longer gets a thrill from the idea, while Sarazen and Farrell learned the intricacies of sea-navigation last year when they went to Troon for the championship. Espinosa is making the trip for the first time. He is a product of the Pacific Coast, a golfer with an enviable reputation, who has recently taken up his abode in the Middle West.

With the quartet's departure, America will have just about the same strength in the British event at Hoylake as it had last year at Troon when Hagen, Mac Smith and Joe Kirkwood finished two, three, four, with Hagen a shot removed from his second successful victory in the British classic. Kirkwood was unable to see his

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1924.

MR. BURTON'S SPEECH.

If it be thought that Representative BURTON did not score a great triumph with his speech at the Republican Convention, let it not be forgotten how hard a job he had. He was called upon to produce harmony where there could be only discord, and to endeavor to reconcile positions radically in contradiction of each other. Mr. BURTON had to praise the President, which he could not do without reflecting upon the Congress, of which he himself is a member, that had thwarted and rebuffed the President at nearly every turn in his policy. No oratory could be expected gracefully to bridge that chasm.

There is a certain ritual part in the speech of every temporary chairman, and this Mr. BURTON got through very well. The more conventional he was, no doubt the more successful he seemed in the judgment of his audience. He burned the customary incense before the Republican altars. He paid the usual tribute to Republican heroes and martyrs. He indulged in the expected panegyrics, and made the stereotyped predictions of party victory. If TENNYSON'S Farmer was among Mr. BURTON'S hearers, he must have gone away feeling that the orator had said what he ought to have said.

As regards the dubious and controversial matters before the convention, Mr. BURTON was at times definite in siding with the President against Congress; at times a little inclined to compromise and gloze over; at times rather futile in trying deftly to evade the burning coals over which he was compelled to walk. Take the question of the bonus. This was felt in advance to be the stiffest of the speaker's difficulties. Senator LODGE was quoted a few days ago as saying that it could be absolutely impossible for Republicans to talk either for or against the bonus this year. Mr. BURTON merely sought to glide over it in a few words. He referred to the fact that the President had vetoed the bill, tried to find comfort in the "substantial minority" in Congress who sought to sustain "the President," and then leaped to the somewhat banal conclusion that the bonus is now the law of the land, and must be "willingly accepted." This is perhaps the best that could be done, but it is a pretty cavalier ignoring of the stand taken by the President. He opposed and denounced the bonus not only as a financial blunder but a moral wrong, and an affront to the true spirit of patriotism. No flowers of rhetoric, whether at the convention or during the campaign, can cover that up so as to make people forget that it is there.

Mr. BURTON, as a man skilled in economics and public finance, had his own self-respect to maintain in dealing with the issue of tax reduction, and did not lower his flag. He stood at Cleveland for what he had advocated in Washington. Despite the mutilation of the Mellon plan by Congress, Mr. BURTON squarely approves of it. He accepts and reiterates its sound doctrines. These are, briefly, that high taxes diffuse themselves upon all consumers and add to the burden as it is passed along; that the clinging to excessive surtaxes is a fallacy at the same time that it is a futility; and that the diminishing revenue from high surtaxes is less serious than their result in withholding funds from investments that would quicken industry. On this subject Mr. BURTON surely took the bold and better part.

Equally explicit and direct was he in coming out for a prompt adherence of this country to the World Court. He had, of course, to speak deprecatingly of the League of Nations, although he himself is one who at first favored our entrance into it with reservations. All this he would now leave for the distant future, while carrying out historic Republican beliefs by our membership in the World Court. This undoubtedly foreshadows the position which will be taken in the Republican platform and maintained by President COOLIDGE. It does not go far, but is sufficient to show how sharp a sword has been thrust between the Senate, or its Republican members, and the President.

On this point Mr. BURTON uttered a word so frank that it must have fairly appalled the time-servers and conciliators in the convention. He himself is a member of the House of Representatives, but he bluntly stated, "truth "compels me to say that by far the "greater share of our citizenship "looks to President COOLIDGE rather "than to Congress for leadership." We fear that this is more double-edged than Mr. BURTON perceives. None will gainsay his implied condemnation of Congress. But if political leadership consists not only in urging the right things but in getting them done, the country has been suffering from a plentiful lack of it at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue.

THE UPSET IN FRANCE.

President MILLERAND has found his position untenable and has submitted to the demand that he resign. He was not able even to get the constitutional question discussed and decided by the Parliament. Both Senate and Chamber refused to have anything to do with a Ministry appointed by M. MILLERAND. Short of an attempt to rule without Parliament, or to set up a dictatorship, there was no course open to the President except to vacate his office. It is expected that his successor will be elected by the National Assembly before the week is out.

Such a crisis has not been unknown in France, and the French will probably pass through it quietly. But however slight the effect may be on domestic politics, the impression made abroad will be unfortunate. Foreigners will fear that France does not hold her organic law in due respect; that the stable element in her Government is too lightly tossed aside; and that the Presidency itself is too easily made the sport of party passions. Doubtless M. MILLERAND gave provocation to his political enemies, but they might well have been content to triumph over him in the popular vote and by parliamentary methods, without proceeding to their final act of personal vengeance. After this outburst, it is to be hoped that the new Government will feel added reason for so comporting itself as to deserve and win the confidence of the friends of France in other countries, who wish to see her march to the discharge of her pressing duties strong and steady.

THE IRREGULAR REGULAR.

Senator LA FOLLETTE as a candidate, with a platform to be rejected, is a familiar performance at Republican National Conventions. Presumably, this is his last year for display in the National Convention of the party which he is apparently going to oppose with a personal party of his own. It is a curiosity of his position that while he is trying to make trouble as usual for the regulars and summoning the Progressives, in Wisconsin he is a "regular Republican." Somewhat over twenty-five years ago, at the University of Chicago, he shuddered at "The Menace of the Machine." He then went to work to build up the most solid and efficient machine in the United States. He has steadily used the Republican name in his efforts to break down the Republican Party. His delegates are at Cleveland to make all the trouble they can and to exhibit him as representative of "the preponderant sentiment of the mass of "the common people of this country."

The mass of the common people has hitherto shown itself singularly ungrateful to its champion. Time passes. This may be his last chance. It would be a good thing in the long run for the Republican Party to get rid of him if it can, and to count the exact numbers of his motley partisans. His strength may be less magnificent when it is known than he imagines. He sends a long series of resolutions of commendation and commination to the convention. He congratulates and thanks himself. He tries to embarrass with praise certain other Republican Senators, mostly of his bloc, but determined to stay in the Republican Party. Since he has long been dependent upon and is still looking for Democratic support, he might have offered a resolution of thanks to Senator WALSH of Montana. Even Senator WHEELER, whose "unwarranted" indictment Senator BORAH is approved for investigating in a "judicial manner," isn't named; he is only "a fellow-member of the Senate." Another tribune of the people, Mr. MCADOO, was more generous. "I want to pay tribute to LA FOLLETTE," he said in Milwaukee. "He has stood "against the most powerful interests "in America for what he thought was "right."

Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S resolutions are amusing, on the whole. Reading some of them, one is reminded of a high school commencement. Those about forever debarring DAUGHERTY and FALL "from holding any position of honor "and trust within the gift of either "the Republican Party or any future "Republican Administration" have the hollow sound of "impeachment eloquence." The future of these gentlemen seems to lie behind them; but why should the undisciplined Mr. LA FOLLETTE wish to discipline them and read them out of the Republican church? They may repent and become Progressive Republicans. Who can tell? Mr. LA FOLLETTE is as eager to get Congress into session again as the country was to get rid of it for some months. If he wants an extraordinary session, he can call his own faithful Congressmen together; and there will be an extraordinary session of friends of the people at Cleveland July 4. All persons who want LA FOLLETTE nominated are friends of the people.

In addition to these many linear feet of resolutions, the Wisconsin delegates are instructed to ask the convention to adopt the long and guttering flim of Wisconsin Progressive principles. "The American people," Mr. LA FOLLETTE solemnly assures Governor BLAINE, "will look to "the delegates from Wisconsin, and "to such other Progressives as may "hold seats in the convention, for a "bold and uncompromising fight on "behalf of the fundamental princi-"ples to which you are pledged." No doubt Mr. LA FOLLETTE believes that the American people are looking to him as the pillar of their hope. At the centennial commemoration of the Battles of Concord and Lexington, GRANT and FITZHUGH LEE and many officials and grandees of great name rode through Boston streets to "tumultuous applause." Unknown, unnoticed, a worthy dignitary, obscured in that multitude of eminences, was passing by. One friendly voice piped out: "Three cheers for the Mayor of Chelsea!" And there was a tempest of guffaws.

PANAMA CANAL PROFIT AND LOSS.

The Budget Director reports "Panama Canal tolls so far this year "have been $25,634,780.39, compared "with only $15,688,447.26 this time "last year." At that rate there will be a handsome addition to the $13,299,292 net earnings by the canal last year. Eventually it may become a commercial success as well as a military necessity. Since the Treasury keeps only a cash account, and makes no entry of capital in a balance sheet, it is difficult to say just when the canal will have earned its cost. By the last report of the Treasury the canal's debit was $453,266,139. The funds were found by the sale of $138,800,869 bonds, with appropriations of $314,665,270 in cash. The upkeep and operation at Panama cost nearly five millions a year, which must be defrayed before there can be any payment toward amortization of the debt. It is clear that the canal must long be a debtor, even though its net earnings should rise to fifteen or twenty millions.

There is, however, a commercial credit which cannot be entered in a mere financial statement. In the ten years since the canal was opened our trade in the re-export of foreign goods has reached a billion dollars, and amounts to three times what it was during the ten years preceding the World War. In 1923 our re-exports were $76,000,000, against the previous maximum of $37,378,000 in 1913. The disturbance of trade currents by the World War was so great that it is impossible to say precisely how much was due to the canal, but it is certain that this waterway played a great part in the distribution of the world's trade. In 1923 our trade with Japan was $611,000,000, against $161,000,000 in the year of the canal's opening. Our trade with China last year was $296,000,000, against $65,000,000 in 1913. There are similar records in our trade with the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and South America. In 1922 the Suez Canal traffic was seven million tons larger than Panama's. In a single year the tonnage via Panama rose to 24,737,000, and Suez traffic increased to only 22,730,000. In both cases the growth was largely due to oil tankers, from California via Panama, and from Persia to English ports via Suez.

The cheap sea route between our coasts has greatly promoted their trade, though at the cost, to some extent, of our interior commercial centres. They are pressing their claim to a rail transportation-cost comparable with water-borne commerce. But it is an economic impossibility that the railways should reduce their rates to such an extent. If there is to be any change, the Panama Canal rates should be increased to an economic basis. Otherwise the Treasury would subsidize one class of trade at the expense of another class and of the taxpayers.

A LITTLE WEST POINT VACATION.

Thousands of young Americans between the ages of 17 and 24 have testified that the best vacation they ever had was spent in one of the Corps Area Citizens' Military Training Camps. The season will be opened today in the Ninth Corps Area at San Francisco. In the Second Area, including Plattsburg (Infantry), Madison Barracks (Field Artillery), Fort Hancock, New Jersey (Coast Artillery), Camp Vail, New Jersey (Signal Corps), and Fort du Pont, Delaware (Engineers), the courses extend from July 1 to the end of August. The Government pays for transportation and furnishes uniform, equipment, quarters and rations. The training is not exclusively military. Candidates are taught hygiene, how to swim, how to ride a horse, marksmanship, athletics, musicianship, first aid to the injured, and they may win gold, silver and bronze medals for proficiency in sports. There is plenty of play as well as training in the school of the soldier.

The instructors are officers of the regular army and of the Reserve Corps, specially selected for their knowledge of military tactics and capacity to lead men into habits of obedience by example as well as by precept. A youngster who takes a course at one of the "Little West Points" benefits in both mind and body and makes friends for life. But what he will always regard as of the greatest importance is the foundation which he lays for military service, if his country should need it. At a call to arms he would join the colors as a soldier who knows how to handle arms and live in the field. There is one thing more: he learns from his preceptors the lesson of good citizenship, which is a part of the course. If he wants to qualify himself to become an officer, the opportunity is given him in three periods of annual training. Nowhere else in the world is so much done for the volunteer candidate for military training. Any young man of good character and sound health is eligible. Blanks are obtainable by addressing Citizens' Military Training Camps, Governors Island.

The War Department has provided for the instruction of 28,000 candidates this Summer. It is estimated that in order to reach this figure there must be 40,000 applicants to allow for changes of plan. Not all who want to attend can be released from their civil pursuits, duty calls some elsewhere, while others are incapacitated by illness or back out. The Second Corps Area will be able to train 3,600 volunteers, according to budget estimates. Few young men who desire to go to any of the camps will be restrained by their employers. It speaks well for companies, firms and individuals in business that there is practically no opposition to the absence of as many employes as they can spare during the term of military training. Seventy-five per cent. of employers, the National Industrial Conference Board reports, allow two full weeks' pay. Twenty-one per cent. do not consider attendance at camp as a vacation, though there must be special conditions of employment to account for this point of view. No sensible youngster would exchange his days full of brisk soldierly work and manly recreation for an ordinary vacation. A long list of prominent men who have sent their sons to the "Little West Points" could be given. Thoroughly democratic are these annual training assemblages.

BATTLE HYMNS.

Against a climatic background perfectly orchestrated to the dominant melody, the Hometown Coolidge Club has been reminding the delegates and natives at Cleveland that to Keep Cool and keep Coolidge is "our country's mighty test." This is probably the first time in history that a song has attempted to set a people's pulses tingling with the firm resolve not to get excited. Armies hitherto have been exhorted to up and at them, or to stand between their loved homes and the foul foeman's pollution, or to let the furrows flow with the invader's impure blood, or to go marching through Georgia, or to follow in the wake of the soul that goes marching on. But during the ensuing months the Republican waves of assault will be exhorted to hurl themselves against the Democratic trenches at a strictly normal temperature.

To be sure, it may not come to pass. Campaigns and wars have a way of neglecting the officially approved battle hymns and exalting some stray Tipperary ditty in their place. For that matter, there is no assurance that Music, heavenly maid, will play any considerable rôle in the campaign. She has been very much out of it for a good many years. Even so vivid and vital a figure as THEODORE ROOSEVELT failed to inspire the election bards. The "Onward, Christian Soldiers," of 1912 was really a threnody and a requiem. Along with the marching clubs and the torchlight processions has gone the campaign song. Only one event is certain to revive it this year, and that would be the nomination of "AL" SMITH. For that eventuality the song is already written. It will be "The Sidewalks of New York." To no small extent Governor SMITH'S chances depend upon what the response of the hinterland delegates will be to the appeal from East Side and West Side and all around the town. That chorus may modify existing prejudices against the streets of America's Babylon.

Not that SMITH'S failure would discourage the bards. Traditions die hard, and campaign songs will be written if only for the brief flicker of publicity. The Democratic song material is obviously the richer. But the nomination of Senator UNDERWOOD would be a lyric misfortune. "Underwood" chants even more awkwardly than "Coolidge." The other names are good. MCADOO would inevitably bring forth a fighting line about "McAdoo and Some One Too," preferably a Vice President in not more than two syllables. RALSTON is sonorous. DAVIS has a clarion incisiveness. GLASS has the inevitable monosyllabic impact. The Democratic Convention is likely to be melodious and fervent. In fact, if there is anything that is worrying Democratic leadership, it is probably how to keep cool against COOLIDGE.

HUMANE TO IMMIGRANTS.

It is good news that the immigration authorities have been enabled by the resolution of Congress to admit the aliens who were being detained at Ellis Island as a result of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Gottlieb case. Under the temporary legislation expiring on June 30, provision was made for the admission of certain classes of non-quota immigrants, such as ministers and teachers. No mention was made of their wives or children. In the case of GOTTLIEB a decision was handed down that the man's wife and children, who left home long after he did, were entitled to admission in excess of the quotas. This was upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals. As a result, thousands of women and children sailed from Europe to join their relatives here. On May 26 the Supreme Court reversed this decision. Hundreds who were on the water when the reversal was made known therefore found themselves excluded when they reached Ellis Island. Instead of deporting them at once, however, the immigration authorities sought a way of admitting them. Inasmuch as the aliens had left Europe believing in good faith that they were admissible, and knowing that thousands in similar cases had been admitted before them, it was manifestly unjust to deport them because of a decision made after they had sailed.

Congress was appealed to, and as one of its last acts passed a resolution admitting all such persons who had sailed prior to May 26. Certain other detained classes also were admitted. Thus is ended what it is hoped will be the last case of unforeseen hardships on immigrants. It is not expected that any more persons affected by the Supreme Court's decision will enter before the end of the month. Fortunately, the new legislation provides, in so far as it is possible, for keeping families together, and has a particular provision admitting the class of people affected by the Gottlieb case. Furthermore, the system of control by visas and certificates on the other side of the water found in the new bill is designed to prevent the possibility of persons crossing the ocean only to face immediate deportation. There will, of course, be certain cases where individuals having made false declarations or showing physical defects at Ellis Island which were not discovered before sailing will be turned back. These are inevitable. But the cruelties and absurdities of the temporary law have been eliminated.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Has No Fear of Education.

President COOLIDGE, in addressing the students of Georgetown University, expressed more confidence than some feel in the impossibility of giving a college education to too many of the country's young men and women. The graduates all will be needed, he said, and places will be found for them all.

Of course, that is true on the assumption that "going to college" and the getting of an advanced or "higher" education are the same thing. Unfortunately, they are not. More than a few college graduates, if they really are educated, are strangely successful in concealing it all through their later life, while, on the other hand, the possibility of acquiring a real education without ever crossing a college campus has frequent illustration among the acquaintances of everybody.

The President admitted that people who are or think themselves highly educated are not inclined to do any of the unpleasant or tiresome jobs upon which the smooth running of the world so largely depends, but he cherishes the comfortable belief that the performance of one after the other of these tasks will be turned over to machinery. There is no doubt a basis for this expectation, and the process already has gone far, but the President's ideal of a world in which there will be nothing unpleasant or hard for anybody to do will not be attained tomorrow, or even next week, and meanwhile there is no end of drudgery to be done, and we are shutting off rather severely the supply of folk of the sort who not yet have revolted against doing it.

For this difficulty the President's immediate remedy was to pay better wages for work which had in itself no intrinsic reward for performance. That is easy enough if you have the money.

Diversity Marks His Mind.

That President COOLIDGE, just this week, should have found the inclination as well as the time for delivering a commencement address must be surprising to people who have supposed that all of his attention was turned toward Cleveland. No doubt his speech was prepared well in advance of these, to him, more or less momentous days, but it is evident that he had taken the trouble to put all the wisdom he possesses on the relation of education to life at the disposal of the Georgetown seniors.

He could be humorous as well as serious. His jest as to his own capacity, on such an occasion, to refrain from giving the good advice for which his young hearers had made no eager demand probably would not have caused much laughter if from another source, but at least it proved that the President is not suffering from the too common malady of a hypertrophied ego.

And whether they wanted it or not, the President's advice was good, especially when he told them that the world gives its good jobs to people who work for it without laying down too many conditions beforehand, and that it "will be a bit cold toward persons who insist on tall and stiff collars as part of the working uniform—whether those collars are of the intellectual type for the mind or of the linen type for the neck." And he added—it must have been gravely—"It has little use for those who are too nice to work."

Those who think the world owes them a living would do well to ponder those words.

Claims Are Declared Premature.

While it is evident that the members of the medical profession are far from ready to admit that Dr. T. J. GLOVER has discovered a serum that either now does or even promises soon to cure cancer, it should mitigate the severity of their criticism of him to see that he promptly has repudiated the claims made in his behalf of having achieved already this most desirable end.

A dispatch from San Francisco, where he now is, quotes him as saying that the announcement just made, to the effect that he has found a "remarkably successful" cure for this scourge, is premature." That implies the belief on his part that he has found something valuable and has hopes of better achievements in the future, but he wisely declares that he will say no more until he has something to tell his professional colleagues.

That is the right and "ethical" position for him to take, and it is to be regretted that the recent publicity accorded to him has raised in the minds of many sufferers from cancer hopes that are without present foundation. That they have had even briefly those hopes may not be a thing altogether bad, as a change from complete hopelessness, but it is only too likely to lead to useless expenditures, and there is, in addition, something to which doctors ascribe great importance—the depression that follows expectations disappointed.

By the majority of physicians Dr. GLOVER, in working on the hypothesis that cancer is a germ disease, is seen as doomed to failure. The available evidence certainly is strongly against his theory, but there is not quite enough of it to be conclusive. As seen both by the eye and the microscope, cancer is an abnormal cell proliferation. What causes it Ris critics are not prepared to say, and hardly to guess, and it seems a little rash for them to accept as proved a universal negative.

One thing is certain—there is nothing as yet in the Glover "cure" or in any other that warrants anybody who even suspects that he or she has a cancer in delaying for a day resort to the one means known to promise relief, and that is surgery.

They Will Not Make That Admission.

A correspondent of THE TIMES, who evidently has been much impressed by the "healing" done by the Rev. Dr. BELL in St. Paul's Chapel, yesterday solemnly exhorted doctors whose methods have failed to "come forward and acknowledge that there are means of healing more potent than theirs and beyond their ken."

The medical profession is prepared to do no such thing. Rightly or wrongly, its members are firmly convinced that they know exactly how Dr. BELL attains his occasional successes and why his efforts often fail. They see nothing miraculous or even mysterious in his achievements, and while many of them would be ready enough to admit his ability, in some cases, to cure after they have failed, they are not ready on that account to confess the inferiority of their own methods as medical diagnosticians and practitioners.

And Dr. BELL, the other day, was earnest in disclaiming similarity between his treatment and that given in what is called "the Emmanuel movement." He was right in that he makes no use of regular medicine, while in the Emmanuel movement there is a commendable and sensible effort to combine the two systems.

POSTAL WORKERS PROTEST.

President Duggan Says Veto of Salary Increase Has Lowered Morale.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Postal Salary bill has been defeated—vetoed, sent back to Congress and lost in the turmoil of filibustering at the last moment, when there was an opportunity for Congress to grasp it and override the veto—beaten after one of the greatest, cleanest and most meritorious campaigns ever waged in Congress, not entirely for ourselves, but for the public who receive the service.

It has cast a gloom over many homes from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast, and it is our wish that this be made known. The morale of the employes is just now at the lowest point, and will continue to be after this severe blow by our "worthy President."

It is not our policy to criticize the President, but his statements in his veto message we do challenge, when he says we are receiving more salary than people outside the Post Office who are performing a similar class of work. We are at a loss as to where he makes or how he makes his comparisons. Also, he states that no provision has been made to cover the expense, when Congress stated explicitly that postage would be raised, but not now, as the salary bill should come first.

The President has been careful in guarding the "taxpayers," but he is unmindful of the fact that these same taxpayers do not and will not receive the service which they are entitled to, and also that these same taxpayers petitioned Congress strongly in favor of our salary bill.

The employes have been loyal to the Government, regardless of their small salary, but that loyalty is now crushed and broken and will remain so until the time arrives when we shall receive from the Government what our position entitles us to.

GEORGE F. DUGGAN,
President N. A. L. C.
Adams, Mass., June 9, 1924.

STRICKLAND GILLILAN.

WHO HAS BEEN FAITHFUL?

Coolidge's Record Is Compared With That of Congress.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article on "The Republican Platform," in the issue of May 31, you assert that "Calvin Coolidge has been faithful to the interests of the whole people. Most Republicans and most Democrats in Congress have been unfaithful." It is bewildering to at least one consistent reader of THE TIMES for the last fifteen years to attempt to understand your blindly laudatory attitude of recent months toward the present accidental incumbent of the Presidential chair. Your editorial of April 23 on "The President's Speech" had seemed to indicate that the spell of adulation for the President was broken at last. In it you stated:

"No definite statement of a precise policy can be extracted from his address. It was a masterpiece of amiable noncommittal. * * * Mr. Coolidge simply mentions the World Court as one of the agencies of peace which ought to be taken prudently into consideration. His only reference to the League of Nations is to say that he regards its rejection by this country as 'final.'"

Who was faithful to the interests of the whole people, the Democratic and Republican Senators in Congress or Coolidge in bringing about the revelations regarding the disposition of our naval oil reserves? Who exposed the notorious financial manipulations of Fall, the perfunctory profligacy of Denby with contracts conceding to private interests valuable portions of the nation's resources, and the degrading, conniving "involvements" of the Department of Justice under Daugherty, with Burns and Jess Smith as his lieutenants? Has Congress or Coolidge been the more zealous for the interests of the whole people in securing the resignations of Daugherty, Denby and Burns, in cleaning out the corruption of the Veterans' Bureau, or in throwing light upon the administration of the prohibition enforcement law by internal revenue officials in the Treasury Department? Mr. Coolidge, on his part, has made it plain that he resents the Senate inquiries into the Washington scandals.

Who has served the whole people most faithfully in reducing taxes for all ranges of incomes, with the greatest reductions for those of smaller income? Clearly, Congress, whose members, in both House and Senate, are in constant communication with the people of all sections of the country, cannot be regarded as wholly unfaithful and wrong in rejecting the Mellon interests' tax bill which proposed a 50 per cent. reduction for the largest taxable incomes and only a 25 per cent. decrease for the smaller; nor can Coolidge be faithful to the people in sponsoring such a bill. As for the endowment insurance adjusted-compensation measure for World War veterans, which was passed easily over Coolidge's veto, does not a majority of two-thirds of the representatives in the House and the Senate fulfill the constitutional requirement for the enactment of legislation? Why should the Presidential will be of a man who has happened to reach the White House through the cemetery supersede the will of Congress? The measure has become law by the votes of men elected and sworn to legislate in the interests of the nation.

Is a President faithful to the interests of the people when at the opening of this 1924 campaign he leads off the discussion of vital issues "with a masterpiece of amiable non-committal"? Is this the stuff of which great tribunes of the people, like Roosevelt and Wilson, were made? Is a President faithful to the public in nonchalantly calling attention in Congress to a constructive piece of international organization, such as the World Court, and then abandoning it to the tender mercies of Lodge, Pepper and the pettifogging partisan policies of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate?

Is a President faithful to the permanent interests of the American people who, after being elected as Vice President in the 1920 campaign by a party promising our entrance into "an association of nations," then later, on succeeding to the Presidency, persists in regarding as a "closed incident" our entering such an association, and pronouncing that very campaign decision as "final"? Coolidge in himself credited with having stated publicly in November, 1920, that the League of Nations was not the issue finally passed upon in the 1920 election.

Can it be that THE TIMES is right in holding Coolidge up as the "faithful" one to the interests of the whole people when he has little power or prestige with Congress, which has flouted him again and again—over the World Court, the Tax Reduction bill, the soldiers' bonus, the exclusion of Japanese immigrants, the exposure and resignation of unfit Cabinet members, and other pressing questions?

New York's Indian Problem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The legislation and the lack of legislation in 1924 was in some ways a disappointment and in others a source of encouragement. The Governor, the Attorney General and the Education Department were for the first time united in a program for the solution of the Indian problem of the State, which has drifted along for many years without much definite progress.

The failure, by an oversight, of the Legislature to pass the resolution asking the Federal Government to transfer whatever jurisdiction it has over the Indian reservations of New York to the State was unfortunate and postpones the matter for a year at least. For there can be no real and permanent progress on the reservations until stable and effective government is established. This essential step has been sidestepped for years.

On the other hand there is much encouragement in the indications of a growing conviction that effective government by the State is essential to the welfare of these isolated Indian communities, now hopelessly struggling against lawlessness and social misconduct.

The Governor has taken the matter up and has caused a law to be passed transferring to the Education Department, in a comprehensive way, the administration of all laws affecting the Indians of the State. While this law is not what some active friends of the Indians favored, and may prove to be difficult to carry out, nevertheless it is right in intent and, properly administered, may result in great benefit to the Indians and their neighbors.

The Indians of New York have been a fruitful theme for romancers, sentimentalists, propagandists of many kinds and trouble breeders. Legislators have listened somewhat indifferently and with more or less incredulity, perhaps, but with a manifest willingness to act if the right solution of the problem is agreed upon and urged.

Oldest Flag in City Sought.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are to be three Masonic celebrations in this city on Flag Day, June 14—at the Manhattan Opera House, the Brooklyn Academy of Music and at St. George, Staten Island. It is greatly desired to obtain the oldest American flag in this city for Masonic use on Flag Day, in order that it may have the most prominent position in the salute to massed colors in the ceremonies to be held at the Manhattan Opera House.

MINOAN AQUEDUCT REVEALED IN CRETE

Sir Arthur Evans Describes It as Most Imposing Structure Yet Unearthed There.

PALACE ENTRANCE FOUND

A Room Preserved 3,000 Years in a Petrified Shell Among the Other Recent Discoveries.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—The London Times has received this telegram, dated at Candia yesterday, from Sir Arthur Evans, who since 1900 has been conducting excavations at Knossos in Crete, the traditional site of the palace of Minos known to the ancient Greeks as the Labyrinth:

"There have been developments of unexpected magnitude and interest in my excavations at Knossos. The first surprise was evidence of the existence of a portico with a rising line of supporting pillars stepping up to the south slope of the palace, forming a prolonged state entrance.

"Facing this on the opposite side of the torrent bed there is a still more astonishing discovery. Here a supposed rock surface, on which were some blocks of road paving, proved to be an alluvial deposit petrified by gypsum springs, and weeks of actual quarrying have now revealed the cyclopean piers of a Minoan viaduct and bridgehead, the most imposing structure that has as yet come to light in Crete. It dates from the foundation of the palace, four centuries earlier than Mycenae, and represents the abutment of the great south road across the island.

"On the terrace level beyond, to which the viaduct pointed, a renewed attack on the indurated surface of the petrified alluvial deposits has revealed beside its course what seems to be a caravansary, with conveniences for travelers and stabling in the basement. The central feature is an elegant little pavilion, within which remains of a fresco are still visible. The pillars are seen supporting a frieze very delicately executed with decorative plants and birds, chiefly partridges, an appropriate subject for the walls of a dining room. There are arrangements for washing the feet in the next room, and a passage leads by descending steps to a little underground chamber, preserved intact in its petrified shell, with fountain, stone benches and basin, ledges for stone lamps and a niche like the false door of an Egyptian tomb.

"The basin had become closed in the latest Minoan age, and the chamber had become the scene of a cult, as masses of vessels of offering and censers coming down to the earliest Greek days were piled within it. It then was finally sealed by natural incrustation and hidden thus for over 3,000 years."

These new discoveries throw light on an important problem connected with the palace of Knossos. Hitherto this magnificent building, as revealed by excavation, seemed to possess no worthy entrance, for the north gate is a narrow passage, and the west porch, in spite of its elegance, is only a side door. It has long been suspected that the main approach was from the south, but unfortunately, this part of the palace lies at the top of a slope leading down to a brook and was long used as a quarry. So, though the state entrance at this point was indicated, its form was unknown.

KILAUEA CAUSES 5 QUAKES.

They Are Thought to Indicate Coming of an Eruption.

HONOLULU, June 10 (Associated Press).—Sunday's promise of further activity in the volcano Kilauea has been borne out. There were five earthquakes yesterday in the section of the Island of Hawaii in which the volcano is located, including a violent one at 11 A. M.

Steam was emitted from the crater all day and last night there was a heavy, dark outpouring, the nature of which could not be established in the darkness.

HILO, T. H., June 10 (Associated Press).—Professor T. W. Jaggar, the volcanologist, who hurried back here to observe the eruption of Kilauea, is of the opinion that a big explosion of the volcano is imminent. This is based on Sunday's explosion and landslide, the first since May 30, and the fact that noises like dashing waves are arising from the pit. The blue color in the steam in the middle of the pit shows the presence of gas.

The cracks in the floor of the pit have widened since yesterday and there have been numerous earthquakes.

Yesterday's explosion was preceded by a short series of earth tremors.

PARADES IN HONOR OF FLAG.

Plattsburg Club Presents Banner to Sons of Revolution.

A parade through the financial district and ceremonies in front of Fraunces Tavern, yesterday marked the presentation of an American flag by the Plattsburg Club of the financial district to the Society of Sons of the American Revolution. The flag was recently presented to the Plattsburg Club by the historic organization, but was returned yesterday for safekeeping in the Sons of the Revolution headquarters.

Brig. Gen. William G. Gates, Vice President of the society, warned against unpreparedness in his address accepting the colors.

Colonel Peter E. Traub, Chief of Staff of the Seventy-seventh Division, presented the banner. Addresses also were made by Irwin Longworth Jr., President of the club, and Robert Olyphant, President of the Sons of the Revolution. In the parade were an escort of mounted police, the Western Union Telegraph Company Messengers' Band, a squad of the Sixteenth Infantry, a platoon from the Police Recruit School and members of the Plattsburg Club.

ITALIAN BUDGET DEFICIT.

This Will Be More Than 2,000,000,000 Lire, Official Estimates Show.

ROME, June 10.—The Government Budget Committee's estimates for the fiscal year of 1924-25 show a deficit of a little more than 2,000,000,000 lire, according to an article written for the Giornale d'Italia by Senator Ugo Ancona.

He explains that the estimates for 1923-24 showed a much greater deficit, but the Government was able to keep the revenue and expenditure virtually balanced through strict economy and stricter methods of collecting taxes, which amounted to much more than was expected.

The estimates on the ordinary budget for 1924-25 provide for revenue of 15,822,000,000 lire; expenditure, 13,206,000,000—a difference of 2,176,000,000. The extraordinary budget, however, provides for a revenue of only 623,000,000; expenditure, 4,833,000,000—a deficit of 4,210,000,000 and a general deficit of 2,034,000,000.

PRINCE VIGGO WEDS AN AMERICAN GIRL

Notable Gathering of Society as Miss Green Becomes Danish Nobleman's Bride.

GREAT THRONG AT CHURCH

Streets and Windows Crowded and Police Are Needed to Clear Way for Guests.

Miss Eleanor Margaret Green, only daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. James O. Green and great-granddaughter of Peter Cooper, was married to H. R. H. Prince Viggo Christian Adolph Georg of Denmark yesterday afternoon in Calvary Church, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, in the presence of a gathering representative of New York society and the diplomatic and military circles. There has probably never been recorded a marriage in the history of New York society of such importance, and it is the first time that a person of royal birth has taken an American bride in this city.

Interest in the marriage was not confined to those bidden to the ceremony, as there were hosts of onlookers outside the church eager to get a glimpse of the bride as she was driven to the church in a well appointed brougham with her brother, Norvin Hewitt Green. Those invited began to arrive a full hour before the ceremony, which was set for 3:30, and the 1,500 or more, some of whom on account of the crowds outside had difficulty in getting into the church, were seated by the ushers headed by W. Dudley Carleton, the others being Dr. Donald Gordon, Elliott C. B. Darlington, son of Bishop Darlington of Western Pennsylvania, who during the World War had been attached to the Danish Consulate in New York; Robert G. Ingersoll Brown, grandson of Robert G. Ingersoll, Edmund J. Stone, Robert Hawthorne Fiedler, Edwin A. Stevens of Castle Point, and Lamont Dominick.

Just in advance of the arrival of the bridal party the music changed from Scandinavian incidental compositions to Wagner's "Processional to the Cathedral" from "Lohengrin," and the bridal carriage proceeded to the chancel to the wedding music from the second act of "Lohengrin." They walked through the main aisle, the pews of which were decorated with large clusters of Annunciation lilies, to the chancel where there were banks of white peonies, lilies and gladioli against a background of lofty palms that contrasted sharply with the scarlet altar cloth heavily embroidered with gold.

The unusual feature of the procession and directly after them was the bride's only attendant, Miss Emily Lewis Stevens, daughter of Mrs. Edwin A. Stevens and the late Colonel Stevens of Castle Point, Hoboken, a life-long friend of the bride. She wore a gown of apricot colored charmeuse draped with taupe colored lace. Her hat, with a crown of Leghorn straw, had a brim of taupe color. She carried a large cluster of Ophelia roses combined with pale blue delphinium.

Bride Wears Mother's Gown.

The bride followed with her brother, Norvin Hewitt Green. She wore a gown of cream colored charmeuse with panels at the front of old point Duchess, which had adorned her mother's wedding gown, she also wore her mother's wedding veil of old point appliqué. It was a gown made on simple lines, the court train being lined with five flounces of white chiffon and edged with a ruching of the same material. Her veil was artistically arranged well away from the face and in place of a bouquet the bride carried an ivory bound prayer book to which was attached a small cluster of orange blossoms. A necklace of well matched pearls was the only jeweled ornament worn.

At the chancel the bride was met by Prince Viggo, who, according to a Danish custom, was attended by his Royal father, Prince Valdemar of Denmark, a brother of the Dowager Queen Alexandra of England, the ex-Empress of Russia and the Duchess of Cumberland. The betrothal ceremony was read by the Rev. Theodore Sedgwick, rector of Calvary Church, the marriage ceremony being performed by the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, who also pronounced the benediction.

Marrying Miss Green, Prince Viggo renounced his royal prerogative and henceforth he and his bride will be officially Their Highnesses Prince and Princess Viggo of Denmark, Count and Countess of Rosenborg.

Following the ceremony Prince Viggo of Denmark and his bride were driven in the same conveyance that took them to the church, to 9 Lexington Avenue, the home of the bride's aunts, the Misses Sarah and Eleanor Hewitt, and the former home of the bride's maternal grandparents, the late Mayor Abram S. Hewitt and his wife, who was the only daughter of Peter Cooper.

The many guests approached the reception rooms by the wide marble staircase and were received in the blue room by the Misses Hewitt and Prince Valdemar. The bride and bridegroom received the congratulations of their friends standing at the north end of the main drawing room at the west of the house where there were masses of Spring flowers, blue delphinium predominating.

It was in this room many years ago that the late Mayor and Mrs. Hewitt gave a reception to the Queen of the Sandwich Islands.

Many Gifts Displayed.

In the long room at the east end of the house, which sometimes is referred to as the theatre, there were displayed the many gifts received by the bride. There were quantities of silver, fine porcelain, linens, glass, books, hunting prints, many superb fans, engravings and paintings, but what seemed to create greater interest were the cable messages from the royal relatives in Europe. There were messages from the King and Queen of Denmark, the Dowager Queen of Denmark, Princess Thyra and Prince Gustav, her children; Rear Admiral Johnke, of the Danish Navy, who accompanied Prince Valdemar to New York last Winter; Count Leon Moltke, whose mother was Miss Bonaparte of New York, Princess Rénée de Bourbon, Lady-in-Waiting to the Queen of Denmark; from the fellow officers of the bridegroom's regiment, the Prince and Princess Christian of Hesse, who were in New York last Winter; Mrs. Cooper Hewitt, aunt of the bride, who now is in Paris; the Swedish Minister to Washington, Prince and Princess Erik of Denmark, now in California, and many other relatives and friends of both, now in Europe or at a distance from New York.

An interesting feature of the reception was the cutting of a huge wedding cake, decorated with the American and Danish colors, which was placed in the dining room. This duty, according to custom, fell to Prince Viggo, who lacking his own sword, which he had not brought from Denmark, borrowed one from the bride's uncle, Erskine Hewitt. The sword has a history. It was presented to Mr. Hewitt by General James H. Wilson at the time of the entry of the American troops in Porto Rico. Mr. Hewitt at that time being on General Wilson's staff. The Prince cut the cake and the portions of generous size were distributed by the bride.

At height of the reception Prince and Princess Viggo went from the drawing room to the entrance of the house to receive the cheers and congratulations of the Danish Society who were assembled on the street fronting there.

Prince Viggo gave his ushers scarf pins of platinum with his monogram set in small diamonds and rubies. From the Danish Officers' Club in New York there were two silver flower vases engraved with the monogram "V and E."

Many of the guests waited after the pair had left the drawing room to prepare for their wedding journey, and when they had donned their travelling attire Prince and Princess Viggo left the house, passing through a double line of friends on the broad stairway, who pelted them with rice, many following them to the limousine in which they left. Prince Viggo and his bride will sail for England in ten days, and while there will visit his royal relatives.

After the ceremony, and owing to the congestion of motors and other conveyances, the guests for the reception walked through East Twenty-first Street, facing Gramercy Park to Lexington Avenue, just a short distance from the church. There were in the gathering many brilliant uniforms covered with decorations and the costumes of the women were of the latest Spring fashions.

Danish Diplomats Attend.

The diplomatic service of Denmark was represented both at the ceremony and the subsequent reception. The Chargé d'Affaires of Denmark, Kai Kai Helmer-Petersen, and his wife, Mme. Helmer-Petersen, came on from Washington. The Danish Consulate in New York was represented by George Bech, the Consul General, and his daughter Miss Elinor Bech; also Johan Oluff and Aage Fensmark, Vice Consuls. Dr. Ejnar Hansen, who is attached to the consulate, and Mrs. Hansen also were included. Immediate relatives of the bride on her father's side were cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green, Mrs. George Floyd Crego, who was Miss Martha Green, and Miss Martha Crego, Mrs. Abram O. Brand, formerly Miss Mildred Green, and her young son, Abram O. Brand.

Among other relatives of the bride were Erskine Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ringwood Hewitt and their son, Ashley Hewitt; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hewitt, Mrs. Charles W. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram and their children, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin and the Misses Mary and Barbara Schieffelin.

Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. Henry Wilmerding Payne, Mrs. Augustus Bradhurst Field, Mrs. Arthur Mason Jones, Miss Mary Osgood Field, Mrs. Henry Whitney Munroe, Mrs. Joseph Larocque, Mrs. Joseph Larocque Jr., Mrs. George W. Forsyth, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy W. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. George Upham Harris, Miss Pauline Robinson, Miss Anna Remsen Alexandre, Mrs. John R. Ogden, Mrs. A. Philippe von Hemert, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich, Mrs. Richard Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. S. Breck Trowbridge, Mrs. Robert L. Stevens, the Misses Mary and Esther Stevens, Miss Juliana Cutting, Bishop James Henry Darlington, Miss Kate Darlington, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Ellis Fisher Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Lenox Banks Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maitland Pedrasi Field, Miss Louise Clinton Field, A. Morris Bagby, Miss Grace Helen Talbot, Mrs. Jacob W. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. A. Fillmore Hyde, Robert Kerr Richards, Mrs. Henry E. Howland, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic O. Spedden, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and Henry R. Sedgwick.

Also among the guests were Mrs. Kearny Warren, Mrs. Morgan Hamilton, Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. De Lancey Astor Kane, Rutger Bleecker Jewett, Mrs. Edward Van Ingen, W. Rhinelander Stewart, Frederic Potts Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tobin Maury, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dana Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. R. Gordon Williams, Commander and Mrs. Lamar R. Leahy, Mrs. Brayton Ives, Miss Frances Ives, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Maynard, Mrs. Frederic Bull, Mrs. Francis C. Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Kane, Mr. and Mrs. R. Gordon Williams, Commander and Mrs. Lamar R. Leahy, Mrs. Brayton Ives, Miss Frances Ives, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Maynard, Mrs. Frederic Bull, Mrs. Francis C. Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maitland Pedrasi Field, Miss Louise Clinton Field, A. Morris Bagby, Miss Grace Helen Talbot, Mrs. Jacob W. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic O. GENE SARAZEN IS WED.

Golf Champion Marries Miss Mary Peck—Other Weddings.

Miss Mary Catherine Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Peck of Miami, Fla., was married yesterday at Briarcliff Lodge, Briarcliff, N. Y., to Gene Sarazen, open golf champion of the United States in 1922. The Rev. Father John Boyle of this city performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by many relatives and friends. The bride was escorted by her brother, Martin Peck, and Mrs. Henry Midgley of Forest Hills, N. J., was matron of honor. Harry Connors of Pelham, a boyhood friend of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Sarazen are sailing today on the Mauretania for England, where Mr. Sarazen will play in the British open championships. They will return to New York late in July.

Isola—Balsarini.

Miss Natalie G. Balsarini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Balsarini of Brooklyn, was married yesterday to Joseph D. Isola of this city. The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Holy Innocents, Brooklyn, and was followed by a reception in the Italian garden of the Ambassador. The bride is a graduate of Adelphi College and received the degrees of Master of Arts from Columbia and Doctor of Philosophy from Fordham University. After a honeymoon trip in Europe Mr. and Mrs. Isola will make their home in Brooklyn.

Dieck—Grady.

The marriage of Miss Katherine Rose Grady, a daughter of Mrs. John Joseph Grady of Waterbury, Conn., to Harry W. Dieck Jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Dieck of Brooklyn, took place yesterday in the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Waterbury. The Rev. William McGurk officiated. A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother.

Felix M. Warburg Hospital Official.

Felix M. Warburg was elected a Vice President of the Neurological Institute, 151 East Sixty-seventh Street, yesterday. Robert Thorne is President of the institute. Miss Mabel Choate is a Vice President also. The Children's Problem Clinic reported that children from all parts of this city, Westchester County, New Jersey and even Connecticut had received attention.

Lawn Fete to Aid Hospital.

The Junior Auxiliary of the Nazareth Branch of Seton Hospital will hold their annual lawn fête on the grounds of the hospital at Spuyten Duyvil on Saturday, June 14, from 2 until 7 P. M. The proceeds will be added to the funds for the care of tubercular women and children. Those in charge of the various booths include Mrs. J. F. Phelan, Miss Virginia Trainor, Mrs. Joseph Hogue and Miss Marie Elise Cuddy.

CITY FLAGS GIVEN TO GUGGENHEIMS

MUSIC BY GOLDMAN BAND

Ten Thousand Persons Attend Exercises in Front of the City Hall.

More than 10,000 persons standing in City Hall Park and hundreds more at open windows in office buildings near by heard the Goldman Band give a concert in front of the main entrance to City Hall yesterday. The occasion was the presentation of flags of the City of New York to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim and Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim in appreciation of their gift to the people of the entire series of sixty concerts by the Goldman Band on the Mall in Central Park.

Mayor Hylan presented the silken banners. They were accepted by Daniel Guggenheim and, in the absence abroad of Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim, by their son Edmund. Wearing Palm Beach suits, the musicians sat on benches in front of the steps, while Mayor Hylan and Mrs. Hylan, members of the Guggenheim families and guests were seated at the top of the stairs. Edwin Franko Goldman conducted the concert.

It started with "The Star-Spangled Banner." Then followed Tchaikovsky's "Marche Solenelle," Ambrose Thomas's "Mignon" overture, Herbert L. Clarke's "The Carnival of Venice" fantasie, Waino Kauppi, cornetist; excerpts from Wagner's "Lohengrin," Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2," and "The Pioneer," a march written by Mr. Goldman. Miss Cecil Arden, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sang an aria from "Samson and Delilah."

In his presentation address, Mayor Hylan said it was City Chamberlain Berolsheimer's plan to give free concerts in New York, although they have been supported by private subscription. Many indoor and outdoor concerts, given under the auspices of the city, are paid for by the people, he said, through budget appropriations.

"This year," said the Mayor, "I received a communication from a family which has been intensely active in the past in giving free musical concerts to the people, in which an offer was made to bear the entire expense of the series of sixty Summer concerts, thus assuring the people of a continuance of this splendid musical entertainment.

"I believe that people who will be the recipients of this family's generosity would wish to extend their appreciation and gratitude, and I therefore consider it fitting to express such sentiments to those who have contributed so handsomely to the cause of good music: Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim and Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim."

In accepting the flags, Daniel Guggenheim referred to Mayor Hylan as the most "popular" Mayor New York has ever had.

"Mayor Hylan's success, in my judgment, is due in no small part to his constant endeavor to do something to make the lives of our citizens happier and better," he said.

MISS BRODHEAD TO WED.

She Will Marry M. J. Bloomer—Other Engagements.

Dr. and Mrs. George Livingston Brodhead of 46 West Fifty-third Street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katharine L. Brodhead, to Millard Jay Bloomer Jr., of this city. Miss Brodhead was graduated from Miss Spence's School in 1923 and made her debut last Winter. Mr. Bloomer is a graduate of Columbia University and attended the Columbia Law School. He took an active part in athletics, being intercollegiate and junior national fencing champion and a member of the 1920 Olympic team. He is a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miller-Halpine.

Mrs. Nicholas J. Halpine of this city has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Rosamond Worthington Halpine, to Dr. Fred W. Miller Jr., professor of Chemistry at New York University. Miss Halpine is the granddaughter of Admiral L. B. Monomb and the sister of Dr. Nicholas J. Halpine and Dr. Graham H. Halpine of the United States Navy, and also of Captain Keenth G. Halpine of the United States Army. Dr. Miller was graduated from New York University in 1915 and took his doctor's degree there in 1923. No date has been announced for the wedding.

Wylie—Flack.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. J. Flack of 37 West Ninety-third Street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Flack, to Robert Stirling Wylie, son of the Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie of this city. Miss Flack attended Miss Mason's School at Tarrytown, N. Y. Mr. Wylie left Stevens Institute to serve in the United States Ambulance Service with the French Army during the World War. The marriage will take place on June 28 at the Hotel Ambassador.

FREDERICK BURLINGHAM.

Well-Known Explorer and Journalist Dies at 47.

Frederick Burlingham, explorer and journalist, died Monday night at his residence, 13 Vandam Street, of an affection of the kidneys with complications. He was 47 years old and a native of Virginia. His widow survives.

Mr. Burlingham had spent most of life abroad, a good part of it in dangerous explorations that on many occasions nearly cost him his life. He had been a journalist in this country for some years, writing for The Evening World, among other papers, when he joined the staff of the Paris edition of The New York Herald. He became a well-known figure in American circles there, partly on account of his unconventional attire, involving sandaled feet.

It was said that he left The Herald after Mr. Bennett had seen him wearing sandals interviewing a prominent American. For a time during the excitement of the Steinheil murders his name came to the fore as a suspect, Mme. Steinheil having described the assassin as possessing a beard and general appearance like Mr. Burlingham's. He produced an unimpeachable alibi, however, and was completely exonerated.

Of recent years Mr. Burlingham had taken many moving pictures under hazardous conditions, climbing Alpine peaks and descending the crater of Vesuvius to a depth of 1,212 feet, being almost asphyxiated on that occasion. He explored Borneo and wrote a book on that country, as well as one on Alpine climbing.

Hal Mackey Fink.

Hal Mackey Fink, advertising manager of The World, died yesterday afternoon in the Park Avenue Hotel of a cardiac embolism. His health had been failing for several months and on Sunday, while dining at the hotel after motoring from Garden City, he collapsed. His home was at 28 East Twenty-eighth Street. Mr. Fink was born in Latrobe, Penn., 47 years ago, a son of the publisher of The Latrobe Advocate. After gaining experience on Middle West newspapers he came to this city, serving on The Mail and then The Herald, until 1919, when he was made advertising manager of The World. He was a survivor of the Johnstown flood. Mr. Fink was a widower, and is survived by his sister, Mrs. Lou Sutton of Pittsburgh.

Francis D. Gallatin, Park Commissioner; Dr. George F. Kunz and others will speak at the unveiling, which has been arranged in the nature of a "Sunset Ceremony." Groups of Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts and other outdoor organizations are expected to attend.

The statue recently received honors at the Spring Salon in Paris.

JAMES D. SPARKMAN.

Yacht Enthusiast Dies of Bronchial Pneumonia at Age of 55.

James D. Sparkman, active for many years as a member of the New York Yacht Club, died at the clubhouse, 37 West Forty-fourth Street, early yesterday morning, after a prolonged illness. The immediate cause of death was bronchial pneumonia, from which Mr. Sparkman had been ill for about a week.

Mr. Sparkman was 55 years old, and had been a member of the New York Yacht Club since 1903 and had served on various committees, at one time being a member of the Race Committee.

Mr. Sparkman had been a member also of the Larchmont Yacht Club for several years, and recently had been appointed Fleet Captain of that club. Drake Sparkman, his son, last year won the Association of Long Island Sound championship in the Victory class with Blue Jacket, owned by Commodore Cornes B. Ford of the Larchmont Yacht Club.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock at Mr. Sparkman's late home at New Rochelle.

TAXI MEN ATTACK ANTI-CRUISING RULE

One Organization Seeks Writ to Stop Enforcement—Other Causes Test Arrest.

ENRIGHT MUST SHOW CAUSE

Petitioner for Injunction Holds Police Regulation Is Discriminating and Illegal.

An attack upon the constitutionality of the new police regulation barring unoccupied taxicabs from Broadway and Fifth Avenue was made from two directions yesterday. The Empire State Taxicab Board of Trade applied for an injunction restraining Police Commissioner Enright from enforcing the regulation and the Taxicab Board of Trade had one of its members arrested for violating the order.

The application for an injunction was made by Leo Oppenheimer of 60 Wall Street, who argued that the Police Commissioner had no power to issue a general order regulating traffic. Such authority, he said, rested with the City Assembly. He further contended that in any event the regulation was discriminatory and, as such, unlawful.

Supreme Court Justice M. Warley Platzek, to whom the application was made, did not grant the injunction, but issued an order to show cause, returnable tomorrow before Supreme Court Justice John M. Tierney.

"We are confident of upsetting this new traffic regulation," said Henry Weiss, Vice President of the Empire State Taxicab Board of Trade, yesterday. "We believe that an unoccupied taxicab has as much right on Broadway or Fifth Avenue as has an unoccupied pleasure car.

"Our membership consists of 13,000 of the 16,000 taxicabs in the city. We realize that the traffic problem must be solved, and we have made the alternate suggestion that taxicab stands be established at the corners of intersecting streets. If that is not satisfactory, let us sit down together and talk it over. We never have done that, and this regulation was drawn up without any consultation, so far as the taxicab interests are concerned."

No Intention of Fighting.

"We do not want to fight the Police Commissioner. That is not our purpose in asking for an injunction. We face the practical situation of having a large membership of independent owners. We represent an investment of $15,000,000 on wheels, and we can't just be thrown off the streets. As a result of the order, today 40 per cent. of our cabs were not in service. The result is going to be a great inconvenience to the public, particularly during the evening rush, when twice as many taxicabs could be used as are in operation."

The man arrested for cruising in the barred zone was Harry Fried of 106 East 151st Street. Fried was ordered to take his cab on Broadway without passengers. He was traveling north at 3:20 P. M. when he was ordered to turn off at Forty-first Street. Fried declined to leave Broadway and a summons was given him to appear in Traffic Court next Tuesday.

"It is our intention to test the constitutionality of the regulation," said Assemblyman Julius S. Berg, President of the Taxicab Board of Trade. "The regulation means ruin for the independent operator, if it is kept in force. The downtown business is the hackman's bread and butter, and Broadway and Fifth Avenue are the cream of the business.

"The order will simply shift traffic from one set of wide streets to another set of narrow streets less capable of accommodating it and where there are no police regulations. Moreover, it is not enforceable. Suppose, for instance, that a man rides to his office on Broadway in a taxicab. When the passenger has alighted and the cab starts up, the driver will be disobeying the law and will be liable to arrest and fine. The thing is absurd.

Get Citizens to Sign Petition.

"We have started to get signatures for a petition to Mayor Hylan. We are not signing this ourselves, but are getting citizens who are not financially interested in the taxicab business to sign it. This petition points out that the regulation is an inconvenience and asks for its cancellation. We are also going to hold a mass meeting next Friday evening at Hunts Point Palace, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, and District Attorney John McGeehan of the Bronx and City Judge Joseph V. McKee have promised to speak to us on this subject."

Drivers charged that the regulation was actually one step in a plan to favor a large corporation operating taxicabs, which has established branches and hopes to see put into effect a system of call cards. Under such a system, the independent taxicab owners, they say, could not survive, as the independent has no telephone call business, but picks up his fares in the street.

ACCUSES KU KLUX KLAN.

Counsel for Ryan Asks Change of Venue for Murder Trial.

Dr. Philip A. Brennan, counsel for Patrick Ryan under indictment for the killing of Ferdinand Downs in Suffolk County will apply to the Supreme Court for a change of venue, alleging that because of the Ku Klux Klan Ryan cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial in that county. A notice of motion requiring District Attorney Hildreth of Suffolk County to show cause on June 20 why the trial should not be held in Kings County was served yesterday by Dr. Brennan.

Ryan is accused of shooting Downs, said to be a member of the Ku Klux Klan, on May 16 on the road between Eastport and Maynorville, L. I. Downs, who was a policeman, with others, was on the lookout for rum-runners when the encounter took place.

Dr. Brennan submitted affidavits alleging threats made by the Klan to hang Ryan. He said that Ryan could not get a fair trial in Suffolk because of the number of Klansmen on the jury lists.

ASKS $1 FOR $5,000 BROOCH.

Hotel Bus Boy Arrested by a Detective in a Pawnshop.

Joseph Villa, bus boy at the Hotel Devon, 70 West Fifty-fifth Street, who tried to sell a $5,000 diamond brooch for $1 to a pawnbroker, was held by Magistrate Max S. Levine in West Side Court in $1,000 bail yesterday for examination Friday on a charge of grand larceny.

The pin was the gift of Joseph May, a broker, to his wife, Mrs. Aimee Ann May, who occupy a suite at the hotel.

Detectives Thomas Conklin and Hugh McGovern of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station were in a pawnshop yesterday at Fifty-ninth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, when Villa came in and laying on the counter the platinum brooch sparkling with 101 diamonds, asked:

"Will you give me $1 for this, please?" Villa was arrested. He said he found the brooch on the street.

The Solid South

Votes alike— Acts alike— Buys alike!

Manufacturers Can Sell To This Solid American Group Of 30,000,000 People, Where There Is Solid Prosperity, Easier And At Less Cost

The South comprises probably the greatest group of people with the same ideas, habits and social customs to be found anywhere in the whole United States. This means that a manufacturer can sell to this mass of people easier, because he does not have to change his package, or change the flavor of his product if it be a food, or change the style if it be an article of which the style changes, for the different states in the South in which he does business. Special copy for his advertisements written for the South would be good in all of the Southern states, with the possible exception of that on a few kinds of articles.

Southerners Are Nearly All Native-Born Americans

The South has a very small foreign population. In some Southern states there are less than 5,000. As everyone knows, in New England and the larger cities of the North, the foreign-born population, with those one generation removed, is gradually outnumbering the native stock. This fact is a very important one to manufacturers engaged in the merchandising and selling of trade-marked goods through advertising.

You Cannot Cover The South With Magazines— You Must Use The Newspapers

The magazines have small circulations in the South, compared to other parts of the country. It is impossible to properly cover the South when the circulation is spread out so thin. It takes Southern newspapers to get your message over to enough people to get reaction that is profitable. Southern newspapers have a particular hold on the Southern people. In the South the newspaper is an institution—it means more than it does in other places. An advertiser will reach more people with similar buying habits that can and will answer his appeal to advertising, per dollar invested, in a Southern newspaper than anywhere else.

The advertising rate per line in newspapers, per thousand population, is much lower in the South than it is in the Northern states. A comparison between the five large states of New York, New Jersey, Minnesota, Iowa and Connecticut and ten Southern states shows that it costs 66c per line per thousand to reach the people in the Northern states; whereas it cost only 14c in ten Southern states.

The South is prosperous now; in fact there is little unemployment and agricultural crops have brought good prices. Maps issued by statistical organizations show that it is a good part of the country in which to sell goods now. Run a special campaign in the South this Fall and get additional business. RADIOGRAMS For Accurate Transmission

Radiograms are accurate because they go direct. High speed automatic machinery sends your message from New York direct to any one of six different countries of Europe. The telegraphic dots and dashes cross the Atlantic in a fraction of a second. In Europe automatic receiving apparatus picks them up. Direct transmission means speed—means the elimination of relays—means minimum possibility of error.

CLERK AND $130,000 MISSING FROM BANK

Farmers' Loan and Trust Company Reports Defalcation of $2,100-a-Year Bookkeeper.

FORGED TWENTY CHECKS

Opened Accounts in Three Other Banks and Fled, Leaving Balances of $14,000.

BONDING COMPANIES LOSE

Five Security Companies, Responsible for Loss, Seek 25-Year-Old James T. Rush.

Details of how a bookkeeper in the branch of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company at Fifth Avenue and Forty-first Street got away with $130,000 from the institution were revealed last night in a statement issued by James H. Perkins, President of the bank. The defalcations were discovered last Thursday, two days after James T. Rush, the bookkeeper, failed to appear and the head bookkeeper in the branch discovered three forged checks that had been made out and cashed by Rush through accounts that had been opened by him in three other banks.

These forgeries led to an immediate investigation of the books which had been entrusted to the care of Rush, who is 35 years old, unmarried, and lived at 106 East Fifteenth Street. The ingenious scheme devised by Rush to get the money from the bank was uncovered after a few hours' work.

Rush, when employed by the bank eleven months ago, was assigned to keeping one of the deposit ledgers in the branch at Fifth Avenue and Forty-first Street. In this capacity he also had charge of checks drawn against the accounts in his ledger. The investigation conducted by the bank officials revealed that on April 28 Rush opened accounts under fictitious names in the three other banks and also leased a safe deposit box in one of them.

Destroyed Forged Checks.

Thereafter he made it a practice of forging signatures of depositors to checks and depositing the forgeries to his account in any one of the three banks. When a forged check passed through the Clearing House from the bank in which he deposited it and it eventually was returned to the Fifth Avenue branch of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, it was turned over to Rush, and he destroyed it. Thus, in each instance Rush was the only person with a knowledge of his thefts through the forgeries, up to last Thursday, two days after his disappearance and when he knew that this week examiners would call at the Fifth Avenue branch to inspect his deposit ledger and other books.

After he fled it was discovered he had a balance of about $14,000 in the three banks in which he had accounts. This money immediately was attached by the five surety companies by whom Rush had been bonded and who will have to stand the loss through the theft from the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. These sureties were the National Surety Company, the Fidelity and Casualty Company, the American Surety Company, the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company and the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland.

In addition to putting attachments against the $14,000 found to Rush's account in the three outside banks, it was reported that officials of the companies placed a guard on the safe deposit box with a view to obtaining a Supreme Court order in a few days to open it to see if it contains any more of the money taken from the branch of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

President Perkins's Statement.

Although the police of this city and detectives in the employ of the five surety companies had been combing the country for a clew to Rush's whereabouts after his disappearance, it was but until Mr. Perkins issued this statement last night that the theft of the $130,000 from the bank became known:

"I regret to announce that the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company has discovered a defalcation of $130,000 on the part of James T. Rush, one of its bookkeepers.

"Mr. Rush, an expert bookkeeper, came to the company about eleven months ago. The references from his former employers, as checked up by both the bank and the surety companies, were satisfactory, and he was assigned to duty at the branch of the bank at Forty-first Street and Fifth Avenue. His work entailed the keeping of one of the deposit ledgers, in which position he had the handling of the checks drawn against the accounts in his ledger. Last Tuesday Mr. Rush failed to report for duty and it was supposed that he was ill. On Thursday, however, three checks with forged signatures against accounts on the ledgers which had been kept by Mr. Rush were passed through the Clearing House and were returned because of forged signatures. Immediately the head bookkeeper went to work on Mr. Rush's ledgers and after a thorough examination has proved his accounts to have been out of balance by about $130,000. The method which Mr. Rush appears to have employed is as follows:

Opened Other Accounts.

"He opened personal accounts under fictitious names at a number of other banks in the city. He then deposited in these accounts forged checks against accounts in the ledgers of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company which he kept. When the forged checks later came back to the bank through the Clearing House and were turned over to Mr. Rush to be charged in his ledgers he destroyed the checks and made no entry in the bank's books against the accounts whose names were forged. By raising the total of the ledger, however, he forced a balance with the general ledger, and by this method the banks in which he had opened his personal accounts received credit. He then drew out cash from the outside banks with which he had opened accounts. No personal accounts on the books of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company were tampered with. Not until the auditors checked up the books as a whole was the defalcation discovered.

"Some twenty false checks were passed in the manner indicated on ten separate days, the entire period of defalcation covering about one month.

"The trust company is insured against loss of this nature by a bond of $1,000,000, so that no loss to this or any other bank is involved.

"Altogether, independent, however, of any money loss involved in this matter, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company regards the incident with the greatest regret. It has been the aim of the company to do all in its power to promote the welfare of its employes, and that this young man should have used his undoubted ability along dishonest lines instead of striving for promotion in the regular way is a source of real sorrow to all those connected with the trust company."

References Were Checked Up.

Rush received $2,100 a year in salary as an expert bookkeeper. He obtained the position through the American Employment Exchange at 115 Broadway. In his formal application he stated that he was a graduate of a high school, as well as a commercial school, and gave as his last employers Terry & Tench, the contractors. In a recommendation attributed to an official of this firm it was declared that Rush had been "found to be absolutely honest and reliable in every way."

Another reference given by Rush was from the Guaranty Trust Company, in which bank Rush had been employed as a bookkeeper from March 10, 1920, to June 30 of the same year. Rush also gave as reference as to his honesty the Indian Refining Company of 244 Madison Avenue, by which he was employed as a bookkeeper from 1916 to 1919.

All these references were checked up by the surety company investigators before Rush was employed by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. Rush said in his application that he was born in this city and that his father was Roger Rush, an engineer, of 569 West Eighty-fourth Street.

Neither Mr. Perkins, President of the trust company, nor any other official connected with the institution would disclose the names of the three banks with which Rush had opened accounts under fictitious names. It was said that the officials of these banks were working in harmony with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company and the surety companies in an effort to recover more of the money Rush obtained through his forgeries.

Seen in Expensive Motor Car.

Rush had gone about his work in the bank in such a businesslike manner that very little attention was paid to his habits outside of banking hours. It was not until after the head bookkeeper at the Fifth Avenue branch came across the three forged checks after Rush's flight that peculiarities of the fugitive, noticed by others among the fifty employes there, became the subject of comment.

One of the clerks was reported to have stated that a short time after Rush became connected with the clerical force of the bank he was seen riding one afternoon in an automobile with a young woman on Fifth Avenue. The automobile, it was reported, passed the branch of the bank in which he was employed about an hour after he had left his work on the deposit ledgers.

It was said that detectives seeking the fugitive have received reports that Rush during his brief period of employment in the Fifth Avenue branch was a frequenter of cabarets and spent much money.

FINDS AT 90 HE'S AN ALIEN.

Man Who Has Voted Since 1855 Nearly Barred at Pier.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday on the Scandinavian-American liner Hellig Olav from Copenhagen was Samuel Peterson, 90 years old, who had lived at Logansport, Ind., for seventy years, and discovered only when he was questioned by the immigration officials that he was not a citizen of the United States. He told them that he had come to this country in 1854 as a boy of 20 with his parents, and never had thought it necessary to take out citizenship papers.

Peterson said he always had voted at each election and that the citizens of Logansport had organized a celebration on his return. He was finally permitted to land at Hoboken on the condition that he leave at once for home. He did so, saying as he departed that he would take out his first papers as soon as he arrived there and that he hoped to become a full-fledged citizen of the United States before he died.

When the Hellig Olav was four days out from Christiania, her last port of call, one of the cabin passengers saw a piece of white paper pop out of a chink in No. 4 hatch on the main deck, wigwag wildly and then disappear. He called another passenger, and when the latter also saw the phenomenon they reported it to the officer on deck. The hatch covers were removed and a stowaway, who gave his name later as Henry Gabrielsen of Copenhagen, was lifted out on deck exhausted and taken to the ship's hospital. When he recovered next day he told the officers of the Hellig Olav that he had been advised by friends to take two bottles of vinegar with him when he stowed away to quench his thirst. He found later that it only made things worse and dried his throat and mouth up so that he could hardly articulate. The surgeon of the liner said that the man would have died of thirst in another forty-eight hours.

Another passenger was Mrs. Caroline Stone Nutting of Beechhurst, Queens, whose husband, William Nutting, sailed from Copenhagen for New York with three companions last Friday in a forty-foot Norwegian "double-ender." She had intended to go with them, Mrs. Nutting said yesterday, but returned because of the illness of her son at their Beechhurst home.

James Campbell's Denial.

James Campbell, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the United Farmer-Labor Party in New York State, was quoted in THE TIMES of May 31 as having said that Senator La Follette was "ready to take advantage of prejudice and fan the flames of class hatred and distrust." Mr. Campbell denies making that statement, although he condemns La Follette for his attitude toward the Communists.

Two Locomotives Named After Veteran Engineers

Two steam locomotives have just been named after two of the Long Island Railroad's foremost engineers, according to an announcement made yesterday by the railroad management.

Engineers Seaman Birchell and Edward W. Hulse are the first men upon whom the management has bestowed this honor. Their names have been painted in large gold letters upon both sides of the cabs of their regularly assigned locomotives, formerly known as Nos. 212 and 2, respectively.

On Monday, after being gold lettered, painted, varnished and polished, both these engines left the Morris Park shops in charge of the pilots whose names they now bear, and were placed in service, the Seaman Birchell hauling Train No. 650 over the Wading River Branch and the Edward W. Hulse pulling No. 42, the Speonk Express, over the Montauk Division.

Birchell has served the Long Island Railroad fifty-three years. Hulse entered the railroad service in June, 1887, as a fireman.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD WILL PLEAD TODAY

State Plans to Try Slayers of Franks First on Kidnapping Charge.

GIRL READY TO AID LOEB

Arraignment Comes on His Birthday—Head of Chicago University Testifies on Mentality.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 10.—First moves in the legal battle to be staged by the State's prosecutors and attorneys defending Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold Jr., confessed slayers of Robert Franks, will be made tomorrow morning.

The two youths will be arraigned before Chief Justice Caverly soon after 10 o'clock and for the first time will hear formal confirmation of the dual charges of kidnapping for ransom and murder on which State's Attorney Crowe will attempt to send them to the gallows. The day will be Loeb's nineteenth birthday. Leopold will have his first experience before the bar at which he had planned later in life to practice.

State's Attorney Crowe will appear in person to direct his assistants, Milton D. Smith, John Sbarbaro and Joseph P. Savage.

On the other side of the table will sit Clarence Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach, retained by the fathers of the prisoners. There will be no additional counsel, so far as could be learned tonight. Mr. Darrow announced some days ago that he would enter a plea of "not guilty" to both indictments and ask that the date of the trial be postponed until after "the mob hysteria dies down."

On the other hand, State's Attorney Crowe has announced his intention of demanding that the slayers be placed on trial on July 15 or as nearly after the thirty-day limit which the law allows to accused persons for preparing a defense.

Whatever be the moves made by the defense at this time, Mr. Crowe has announced his intention of combating them all to the best of his and his assistant's ability and seeing that the two murderers are "brought to justice as soon as possible as an example to others."

It is the intention of the State's Attorney to bring the boys to trial on the kidnapping indictment first. This, like the murder indictment, carries the extreme penalty. By so doing, Mr. Crowe hopes to get a line on what the defense will attempt to do on the question of the defendants' sanity.

The preparations made today included calling before the Grand Jury President Ernest De Witt Burton of the University of Chicago and several professors with whom the two boys were associated in their studies.

While all this was going on Loeb and Leopold were sitting quietly in their cells in the county jail. The former was engrossed in a novel most of the afternoon, while Leopold spent the afternoon and early evening in playing checkers with his cellmate, Edward Doherty.

They were informed at 4 o'clock that their names were on the arraignment call for tomorrow morning. Leopold paid no apparent attention to the fact, but his partner in crime showed himself to be somewhat anxious to learn what "was coming off." Several others in the same tier of cells with him explained what would probably be done.

"It is my birthday tomorrow, you know," he remarked. "Quite an event to have happen on a fellow's birthday, especially his nineteenth."

"I love Dickie Loeb and I'll testify for him if they want me to," said Miss Lorraine Nathan today over the protests of relatives. She and Loeb were sweethearts in college, she said, and she doesn't intend to desert him in the trouble brought on him, she thinks, by Leopold.

Thinks Boy Slayers Insane.

PRINCETON, June 10.—Dr. Stewart Paton, lecturer on neurobiology in Princeton University, declared today that in his opinion both Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, the Chicago students charged with the murder of Robert Franks, were insane, but that their insanity was not the kind recognized by law, and that if they were proved guilty they should pay the death penalty.

"American universities educate their students on the intellectual side only," said Dr. Paton. "The emotional side, which is just as important, is largely neglected. We all have the primitive savage instincts of our forefathers in us. Insanity is lack of power to control these instincts. Control depends upon the last part of the brain to develop in the progress of evolution—the cerebral cortex. Ordinary daily life, wide depth of view resulting from mixing with fellow-students and college athletics, all help to develop the emotional side."

FREE UNION MAN IN KILLING.

Judge Tells Jury Acquitting John Walsh He Is "Greatly Surprised."

John Walsh, business agent of the Stage-Hands' Union, living at 27 Gray Street, Jersey City, was acquitted by a jury in Jersey City yesterday of a charge of shooting to death on Sept. 14 last Joseph Heaney, a stage hand at the Lyric Theatre, Hoboken. The jury was out two hours and forty minutes.

When the jurors announced their verdict, Judge Robert V. Kincaid said with some warmth:

"Gentlemen, I don't wish to comment on this verdict. I will say, however, that it greatly surprises me. I will excuse you until tomorrow."

Judge Kinkaid's remarks were believed to have been caused by the fact that Walsh admitted that he fired as Heaney was backing away and from the fact that there were no witnesses to support his contention that Heaney previously had knocked him down and hit him on the head with a screw driver.

Mrs. Mary Heaney, the widow, was in court with her two children and fainted as Aloysius McMahon, assistant prosecutor, was summing up.

'DAREDEVIL' LOCKWOOD OFF.

Starts on Effort to Break Motor Endurance Record.

Handcuffed to the wheel of his automobile, "Daredevil" Lockwood started out yesterday afternoon in an endeavor to break the world's record of 100 hours and 10 minutes for continuous motor car driving. Lockwood, in a Maxwell sport touring car, left Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. He drove first down Broadway to City Hall, where his left hand was handcuffed to the wheel by Francis P. Bent, representing Mayor Hylan.

The route to be taken will be through Westchester County, and Lockwood said before starting that he expected to get back to Columbus Circle Saturday afternoon.

France Honors Janet Fish.

Miss Janet Fish, a daughter of Hamilton Fish and Superintendent of Nurses at St. Mark's Hospital, received a cablegram yesterday from friends in Paris announcing that she had been named in newspapers there as the recipient of the Cross of the Legion of Honor. For two years and a half during the war Miss Fish served with the French Red Cross.

R. V. Lindabury's Home Looted While 7 Sleep; Silver and Clothing Worth Thousands Gone

The home of Richard V. Lindabury, corporation lawyer, at Bernardsville, N. J., was stripped of thousands of dollars worth of silverware, jewelry and clothing, while Mr. Lindabury, his wife, their son and four servants were sleeping in the house, early yesterday morning.

It is believed that the robbers entered through a window. When a maid discovered the robbery at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, the doors were still locked.

Mr. Lindabury, who has offices in the Prudential Building in Newark and at 71 Broadway, New York, had to attend to his law business yesterday in the only suit of clothes the burglars left him. The thieves got into his dressing room, adjoining his bedroom on the second floor, and removed every suit in the closet. The only one they missed was the one he had worn Monday.

Besides this fortune in clothing, they stole all of Mr. Lindabury's jewelry, which was on the dresser, and his wallet. The latter contained less than $50.

The robbers, apparently knew the interior of the large, three-story home, for they did not enter any of the bedrooms. Mrs. Lindabury and their son, Richard V. Lindabury Jr., were sleeping in their rooms on the same floor and the four servants were on the top floor. They thoroughly ransacked the dining room and stole every piece of silver in the house, except a highly-prized loving-cup which the citizens of Bernardsville had presented to Mr. Lindabury on the fiftieth anniversary of his entering the legal profession, two and a half months ago. Mr. Lindabury thought the silverware was worth $10,000.

"They were a pretty nice lot of fellows, though," the lawyer explained. "Mrs. Lindabury had perhaps a half dozen high silver vases in the dining room, filled with fresh flowers. The burglars took the flowers from the vases and threw them on the floor. They took the water, however, with the silver, not spilling a drop on our rugs. That was rather considerate of them, anyway."

Among Mr. Lindabury's clients are the Prudential Insurance Company and the United States Steel Corporation, for which he is general counsel. At Bernardsville he has a 600-acre farm with one of the finest herds of blooded Guernsey cattle in the county.

DAVIS TO SEEK LAW TO REGISTER ALIENS

Secretary Has a Plan to Have All Enroll Annually or Be Subject to Fines.

EMERGENCY ACT EXPLAINED

Officials Say 13,000 Will Be Permitted to Remain Here in Excess of Present Quotas.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—An amendment of the nationalization laws requiring all aliens in the United States to register annually with the Department of Labor will be sought by Secretary Davis upon the reassembling of Congress in December. Registration of aliens, in the opinion of the Secretary, is one way to successfully cope with the problem involved in the smuggling of immigrants.

Secretary Davis, who came to the United States in the steerage when he was 8 years old, holds that registration would be a protection to aliens who honestly seek to comply with the laws. He also is of the opinion that it would aid the department in its work of Americanization among foreigners.

Mr. Davis's purpose was revealed today when the department was asked to elaborate on a letter written by the Secretary to Senator Harris of Georgia. In this letter, Secretary Davis answered questions of Senator Harris relative to the effect of the immigration law which becomes operative July 1.

The plan proposed by the Secretary involves the payment by aliens of a small fee to defray the expenses of enrolment. Failure to register would be punishable by a small fine for the first offense and a larger one for subsequent offenses. The registration under the Davis plan, would be carried on throughout the country by the Naturalization Service and interested individuals and organizations.

Mr. Davis, it was stated, would have no police system set up to pursue aliens who failed to comply. A final check-up would be made when a foreigner applied for his citizenship papers.

There is a precedent for the registration plan in the act of Congress which required all aliens in the United States in 1893 to enroll as a result of claims that the Exclusion act of 1882 was not accomplishing its purpose.

Under the present law aliens are officially recorded only at the decennial census. If aliens were required to register each year, Secretary Davis said, the department could keep in direct touch with them, thus facilitating its work of Americanization.

The registration card also would be of service, the Secretary pointed out, as proof of the eligibility of an alien to citizenship. Due to their movements from place to place it frequently happens, officials say, that those who have lived in the United States for a long time find it difficult to give proof of that fact.

One of the most important results, Secretary Davis believes, would be to check illegal immigration across the Canadian and Mexican borders. Aliens who were arrested for any cause would be required to bear the burden of proof as to their right to remain in the United States and the registration card would be accepted as such proof.

From the very nature of this illegal traffic, Secretary Davis said, the Department of Labor cannot present accurate statistics as to the number of aliens who are smuggled across the Northern and Southern borders. Another source of entry, of which the registration would afford a check, is that of desertion of seamen in American ports. During the fiscal year 1922, 6,879 such desertions were reported; in the following year there were 23,194 such desertions, and in the first nine months of the current year, 26,680.

Officials of the Department of Labor estimate that approximately 13,000 aliens are affected by the Joint resolution passed in the closing days of Congress permitting certain persons to remain who are here in excess of the quotas fixed by authority of the Immigration act of May, 1921.

Unofficial estimates had placed the number of aliens against whom deportation proceedings would be suspended as a result of the recent act of Congress as high as 20,000, that figure is not correct, Department of Labor officials assert.

They are of the opinion that final returns will show that the number of aliens now in this country under bond, who are beneficiaries of the emergency law, will not, in any circumstances, exceed 15,000, and they are inclined to the opinion that it will not go beyond 13,000.

Steps have already been taken under the new law to land aliens who have been detained at immigration stations with a view to deportation and to cancel the bonds of others scattered throughout the United States.

Of the immigrants concerned approximately 8,000 are Italians and 3,000 are Jews. The rest are contributed by many other countries.

TWO DRY FORCES BATTLE IN DARK

Ten Agents, Guarding Seized Barges, Mistake Seven tOhers for Raiding Gunmen.

TWENTY SHOTS DO NO HARM

Six Men Arrested and Liquors Seized in Lower Manhattan Warehouses.

Twenty shots were fired in a battle at North Bergen, N. J., early yesterday, between ten New Jersey prohibition agents and seven agents from New York, who mistook each other for bootleggers. The fight was stopped by Chief of Police Marcy of North Bergen, who notified both groups that they were all Federal agents. No one was hurt.

The New Jersey agents were on two barges, which they were guarding. Containing liquor valued at $350,000, and said to belong to men prominent in politics and social life in New York and New Jersey, the barges were seized Monday night. After the seizure, Adrian Chamberlain, Prohibition Director for New Jersey, notified the New York prohibition offices, and invited the New York agents to go over to inspect the barges. He did not expect them to accept the invitation until yesterday afternoon.

About 3 o'clock in the morning the agents from New York suddenly appeared at the Lord Drydock in North Bergen. Not expecting these visitors, the New Jersey agents took them for gunmen hired by bootleggers to get back the seized liquor. The agents on the barge started firing, and the men from New York, thinking that bootleggers had got possession of the barges, returned the fire. Then the police intervened.

Federal officials in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Newark and Washington are cooperating in an effort to trace the owners of the two barges. According to Federal agents, the barges were traced from Brooklyn, to Hoboken and then to North Bergen, within the past week. "The metropolitan district will receive a distinct shock when the names of the owners of this stock are revealed," one agent said. At the time of the seizure Chamberlain said that the liquor was owned by "high State officials."

Prohibition agents raided two warehouses in lower Manhattan yesterday, arresting six men and seizing 280 cases of rye whisky, 100 cases of alcohol and some imported French liqueurs. The prisoners said they were August Gradalone, Henry Katz, Emile F. Marks, William Murray, Frank Fischer and Herman Ettachel. According to the authorities, Gradalone and Katz are the owners of the warehouses, and the other truckmen.

One of the warehouses is at 291 West Street and the other at 456 Canal Street. They had been under surveillance for some time. The prohibition agents said the places were "dropping places" or transhipment warehouses. The liquor had originally been first-class stuff, but had been "cut," the agents said.

WOULD TAG WEE RUNAWAYS.

Colonel Coulter Cites Case of Little Boy Who Cannot Be Identified.

Ernest K. Coulter, general manager of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, suggested yesterday at a meeting of the directors that parents of children with "chronic runaway tendencies" tag the garments of such youngsters for identification purposes. He reported the failure to identify a 3-year-old boy known on the records as "John Doe," whose case, it seems, never will be solved. It might be, Colonel Coulter said, that this child was abandoned, or, again, the parent or guardian might have met with a serious accident and might have been unable as yet to make himself or herself understood.

The report submitted to the directors showed that during the current year the society had acted on 1,639 complaints, 627 children were received for shelter, and the average daily population of the society's home was 180.

Quinn Demands Honest Bonus Rule.

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—Passage of the soldiers' bonus over President Coolidge's veto has placed on the shoulders of the American Legion the duty of insisting on an "honest, efficient and economical administration" of the Adjusted Compensation law, John L. Quinn, the National Commander, told members of the Legion in an address here last night. The need for immediate action on behalf of disabled veterans and the purpose of the Legion's child welfare program also were explained by the Commander.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The House of Delegates of the American Medical Association today passed a resolution calling for legislation which would repeal those sections of the Volstead act which limit the amount of alcohol physicians may legally prescribe.

The action followed a warm discussion in which Dr. Thomas Clark Chalmers of New York, preponent of the resolution, declared the "dry" laws interfered with the "sacred relations between physician and patient."

"The framers of the Volstead act must have thought physicians were bootleggers," said Dr. Chalmers in presenting his resolution. This brought the delegates to their feet to cheer for five minutes.

"We all know," continued Dr. Chalmers, "that the saloon has been taken over by the drug store. This has not been due to our consent, but is due to the ever increasing demand for money. There is not a drug store in the whole United States that is not dispensing alcohol in some form or other as a beverage."

"I wish it understood that I am not in any way appealing for alcohol as a beverage. We physicians neither ask nor desire that any exception be made, either to us or our patients, in this respect. The present restrictions, on the other hand, are absurd. When a person is confronted with an epidemic of pneumonia or influenza the physician will want to prescribe alcohol, and he will do it when he feels it necessary.

"There are certain severe conditions when alcohol determines the outcome, the life or death of the patient. In other cases it is invaluable as an agent for the relief of chronic suffering."

"Because there are violators is no reason why a law should be permitted to stand which violates the sacred confidence between the physician and his patient by requiring the former to make public the patient's ailment. The physician in such cases will violate the law when he sees fit."

While the representatives of the association were passing resolutions more than 500 of its members were in attendance at the Municipal Pier at a demonstration of the electric stethoscope by Dr. C. J. Gamble of Philadelphia. They were able to listen to the beating of the same heart at the same time. The apparatus, developed in the laboratories of the American Telephone and Telegraph and the Western Electric Companies, consists of a chest piece or transmitter, a three-stage amplifier, a group of electric filters and receivers as required.

Dr. H. C. Williams of New York and Drs. Richard C. Cabot and Paul D. White of Boston operated the parts of the instrument, which is used to detect heart sounds, murmurs and lung sounds.

NEW YORK-ALBANY BUSES.

Company Plans a Daily Service Between the Two Cities.

CORTLAND, N. Y., June 10.—Judge Charles Anderson of Croton, N. Y., announced today that the Town Board of Cortland had granted permission to the Hudson River Tourist Bus Company to operate motor buses through the streets of the town.

The company, which is headed by Augustus Schneider of Albany plans to operate a through line of buses between New York and Albany. Two buses carrying twenty-four passengers will be run each way every day. The northbound vehicles will not accept passengers between New York and Wappingers Falls, which is about half way to Albany. Southbound buses will not take on passengers south of the same town.

TROLLEY CARS CRASH.

One Critically, Several Seriously, Injured Near New Brunswick.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 10.—One man was probably fatally injured, a woman and a high school boy were seriously hurt, and several other persons were less seriously hurt, when two Public Service trolley cars collided head-on at Dunham Hill, near Raritan Arsenal, today.

William Renner, motorman of a car operating between Metuchen and New Brunswick, is at the Middlesex Hospital here with one leg torn off and a fractured skull. Hospital authorities expect him to die. Mrs. Murrey Rice, Raritan, was injured internally. Alexander Legiesy, Lindineau, N. J., received a broken shoulder. Both are also at the Middlesex Hospital. A Metuchen-New Brunswick car collided with a Trenton-Newark so-called "fast line" trolley.

QUEENS TRANSIT PARLEY.

Gen. Andrews and Maurice Connolly Fail to Reach Solution.

General Lincoln C. Andrews, receiver for the New York and Queens County trolley lines, conferred again yesterday with Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens, concerning the proposed abandonment of service and surrender of the corporation's franchises, but the conference appeared to be fruitless.

The Board of Estimate, in executive session behind closed doors on Monday, had repeated its suggestion that the city take over and operate the lines, dividing the profits on a 50-50 basis. General Andrews declared the company's bondholders had definitely rejected that proposal.

Application by the receiver for permission to abandon operation comes up in the Queens Supreme Court next Monday.

Bigelow Co. Delays Resumption.

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., June 10.—Notices were posted today by the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Company that the tapestry department, which it had been announced would reopen June 16, will not resume operations until July 7. This department, which employs several hundred hands, has been shut down ever since the entire plant was closed, May 24.

Swedish Cabinet to Hold On.

STOCKHOLM, June 10.—The Cabinet headed by Ernst Trygger has now definitely announced its intention to remain in office despite the failure of the Defense bill, which was expected in well-informed quarters to cause the downfall of the present Government.

To Broadcast a Program From the Leviathan Tonight

A radio program will be broadcast this evening from the main dining salon of the United States liner Lethan, which is docked at the foot of West Forty-sixth Street. This will be the first radio program to be broadcast from any vessel while in this port, according to the publicity department of the United States Shipping Board.

The radio program will follow the dinner to be given aboard the vessel in honor of 600 steamship agents of the United States Lines. Among the speakers will be Grover A. Whalen, two Commissioners of the United States Shipping Board, Newton Plummer and Meyer Lissner; T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the Shipping Board, and E. E. McNary, the general traffic passenger manager of the United States Lines.

JERSEY WETS LOSE BY NUGENT'S DEFEAT

Heher Wins Place on Resolutions Committee at Democratic National Convention.

VICTORY FOR SILZER MEN

Senator Edwards, Siding With Nugent, Says He Will Not "Pussyfoot" on Prohibition.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 10.—Extreme wets in New Jersey's delegation to the Democratic National Convention received a setback today, when James R. Nugent of Essex County was defeated by Harry Heher of Trenton as the State's representative on the Resolutions Committee. This step was taken, it was explained, in order not to weaken the Presidential candidacy of Governor Silzer.

In the face of strong opposition by Nugent, the Silzer adherents, who dominated the meeting, put through a resolution binding the delegation to the unit rule. The vote was 21 to 9. Nugent had declared that he was not going to the national convention with "a halter around his neck," and demanded to know if the organization were attempting to read Essex County out of the party. Under the unit plan, the delegation is bound by a majority vote, and Nugent saw his prospects fade for getting a wet ratification from the delegation.

Mayor Donnelly of Trenton, one of the delegates-at-large, refused to stand with Nugent and voted for passage of the resolution. Senator Edwards, however, was one of the nine opponents of the unit rule and in registering his vote against it declared he did not intend to "pussyfoot" on prohibition. The refusal of Nugent and Edwards to support the unit plan is taken as an indication that they may make a fight for a wet plank on the floor of the convention.

Convention committee members named at the meeting today include, besides Heher, Senator Edwards on the Committee on Permanent Organizations; Judge Alfred E. Stein of Elizabeth, on the Committee on Credentials; John A. Matthews on the Committee to Notify the Presidential Nominee; Mrs. Lilian K. Devanny of Atlantic City, on the Committee to Notify the Vice Presidential nominee; Congressman Elmer H. Geran on the Committee on Rules. William Conklin of Englewood, was elected Chairman of the delegation. Charles E. Cook, secretary of the Mercer County Tax Board, was elected sergeant at arms, and Miss Thelma Parkinson of Cumberland, secretary.

Governor Silzer had lunch with the delegates and made an informal speech.

YOUNG DAILY GIVES BAIL.

Chicago Manufacturer Aids Son Held as Washington (Pa.) Robber.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 10.—Milton H. Daily, 22 years old, who had been held in jail here since last Friday on a charge of holding up a store, this afternoon was released under $2,500 bail furnished by his father, J. W. Daily, a Chicago manufacturer. The prisoner is said to have confessed to passing a worthless check in Indianapolis and to fleeing from that city in a stolen automobile. The youth and his parents will return to Chicago tomorrow, and he will be arraigned on the hold-up charges at the August term of Criminal Court.

The amounts involved in the bogus checks are said to have been refunded, but the automobile theft charge has not been settled as the owner of the machine has left Indianapolis temporarily.

BARING TRIAL ON JUNE 23.

Poison Charge Defendant in Court in a New Brown Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 10.—County Judge William F. Bleakley today fixed June 23 for the trial of Clarence O. Baring, inventor and amateur chemists, indicted on charge of attempting to poison his wife, Sarah Griffith Baring.

Charles Edward Long, counsel for Baring, said he had arisen from a sick bed to appear in behalf of Baring. He said he would be unable to prepare his case by June 16, which Assistant District Attorney Farris said was the date District Attorney Rowland suggested. Baring appeared in court wearing a new brown suit. He sat next to a newspaper reporter, but would not discuss the charges against him. He is on $25,000 cash bail, furnished by himself.

QUESTION CHAPLIN'S BOILER

Dry Agents Are Informed It Is Only to Soften the Water.

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—Members of the District Attorney's "dry" squad raided Charlie Chaplin's home in Beverly Hills yesterday and found that the motion picture actor's cellar was crowded with queer copper pipes and a contraption with a gas flame burning beneath it.

They learned, however, that the queer boiler and the copper coils constituted a water softening device.

Beverly Hills water is too hard for domestic use, Chaplin's representatives explained.

Seek to Halt Science Church Hearing.

BOSTON, June 10.—A petition asking that the Board of Directors of the Christian Science Church be temporarily enjoined from holding hearings tomorrow on the standing of two members, William H. Taylor and Nellie H. Taylor of New York City, was heard by Judge Lowell in the United States District Court today. The petitioners asserted that complaints had been filed against them because they were followers of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson.

$100,000,000 TIE-UP MENACES BUILDINGS

2,000 MEN MAY LEAVE JOBS

IRON LEAGUE'S DEFENSE

Secretary Denies That Members Were Responsible for Any Injuries.

Plans for a voluntary walkout by bricklayers, laborers and hoisting engineers on buildings where the unions say incompetent iron workers are being employed were completed yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Aberdeen, where seventy-five representatives of the unions affected discussed the situation. Today the business agents of the unions will visit those jobs which have been certified to them by the striking iron workers as employing incompetent men and will permit the bricklayers, laborers and others to quit if the wish to do so.

"This is not a sympathetic strike," said J. J. Donnelly, business agent of Local 34 of the Bricklayers' Union, after the meeting. "We are taking this action for the protection of our men. This action is not one that would withdraw men from all jobs against their will. Some of our members have already taken action to protect themselves from the possible injury or death that might result due to incompetent iron workers on jobs. Two weeks ago the crew of bricklayers on a job in Seventy-second Street, between Park and Madison Avenue, quit because they felt their lives were endangered by the kind of iron erectors employed.

"Remember that we are not pulling a strike of any sort. The decision to permit the bricklayers to leave jobs was taken by the representatives of all the bricklayers in New York."

1,000 Bricklayers Affected.

About 1,000 bricklayers will be affected by the decision and the same number of laborers, according to Donnelly. The number would be augmented, he declared by mechanics in the other crafts for they would be unable to work very long once the bricklayers are out. In addition, he added, the hoisting engineers, by their defection, would make it impossible for materials to reach the upper floors of buildings so that the ironworkers considered as incompetent and other mechanics will not be able to go on with their work.

"The action taken at today's meeting means a tie-up of $100,000,000 worth of construction," said P. J. Morrin, President of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, who is handling the strike of iron workers which began on May 1.

"My objection as a practical ironworker is that it is just as unsafe for workers to labor in buildings where incompetent iron workers are employed as it is for the public to use the sidewalks in front of such buildings. An incompetent man might miss catching a rivet which would drop through the openings and possibly strike another mechanic. Incompetent men may load steel carelessly and jeopardize the lives of persons on the street."

Iron League Statement.

An investigation by the bricklayers will show that no lack of care is taken for the safety of mechanics on buildings operated by the Iron League, said Secretary R. B. Thomas in a statement yesterday.

"No bricklayer has been injured on any of the jobs of members of the Iron League of New York," he said. He disputed the assertion of Morrin that the man killed Monday at Thirty-fifth Street and Seventh Avenue was "swept off the work by a derrick." He said that the man walked off the end of a plank into a hole in the floor, and that there was no derrick at that end of the job.

"The derrick which fell at Public School 116 did not 'tear down half of the building.' The fall was caused by a slip in the guy rope and was gradual and did not injure anything but the derrick itself. No report of any accident on the Corona subway extension resulting in injury has been received at the office of the company doing the work. At Grand and Havemeyer Streets, Brooklyn, a man did have his foot slightly injured. The facts in the case are that this man has been a structural iron worker for upward of eighteen years, that for three years he was a member of the local unions here in New York, and he is a perfectly competent man. A roller under a piece of steel on which he was working caught one of his toes by accident and as a result he has lost two toenails. He is back on the job working today.

"We are informed over the telephone by the Fegan Iron Works of Jersey City that they have made no agreement with the Iron Workers Union nor have they any intention of so doing."

William A. Garriguez of Lavering & Garriguez, iron contractors on the building at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, where a man was killed on Monday, said yesterday that the mechanic was an experienced and competent workman and that his death was not in any way attributable to the iron workers strike

Ex-Crown Prince Not to Quit Germany.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 10.—A report that the German ex-Crown Prince intends to settle in Florence, Italy, is denied by his official representative, Major von Mueller, who declares it a fabrication. The report stated that the ex-Crown Prince's reason for leaving Germany was that he was tired of the constant surveillance to which he was subjected.

MISSING PHYSICIAN FOUND NEAR HOME

Dr. Bulger, Who Disappeared From Brooklyn, Is Traced Through a Telephone Call.

Special to The New York Times.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 10.—Dr. Kenneth Scott Bulger of Brownsville, who disappeared from a Brooklyn hospital and for whom a nation-wide search has been made, was found here last night.

At a late hour last night a telephone call was received at the home of Dr. Bulger's family in Brownsville. Members of the family, suspecting that Dr. Bulger was the party on the line, immediately notified the local police, meanwhile continuing the conversation with him. The call was traced to a booth in the Pennsylvania Station here.

When taken into custody Dr. Bulger was asked what he was doing and replied in an irrational manner.

Lawrence Bulger, a brother of Dr. Bulger, is in the East conducting a search for his brother, not knowing that he has been found here. The physician was seen in Philadelphia on Wednesday of last week. Since that time his whereabouts have been a mystery.

The Bulger family is one of the most prominent in Fayette County.

ACTS TO EMPTY TOMBS.

Talley Orders Banton to Offer Inducements for Pleas of Guilt.

Judge Talley yesterday in General Sessions ordered Distriict Attorney Banton to offer opportunities to 240 prisoners in the Tombs to have their cases disposed of immediately or take chances of remaining there during the Summer. It was the first time such an order had been issued to a prosecutor by a judge, and District Attorney Banton, who was in court, announced that it would be complied with immediately.

The court, in assuming "full responsibility" for the order, also instructed the Prosecutor to make similar offers to indicted persons on bail awaiting trial. It is hoped by the court that the effect of this order will be to induce many of the accused to plead guilty immediately in lieu of standing trial.

When Mr. Banton appeared in court Judge Talley said:

"Mr. District Attorney, I direct you—I do not leave it to your discretion—to let every prisoner in the Tombs know at once that if his case is not disposed of this month it is unlikely to be disposed of before October. Let him and his lawyers know that they may confer with the court on the matter any day.

"I believe that I am rendering greater public service by doing this—in listening to proposals of defendants and their attorneys—than in trying an occasional case. You can say to them that they probably can make better arrangements now than later.

"And what I have said about prisoners in the Tombs applies as well to those on the bail calendar. The court will take full responsibility."

Judge Talley, after remarking that there were 240 prisoners in the Tombs yesterday and but 188 on the same day last year, added that he believed many of them could be induced to take advantage of the offer, so that the prison would be relieved of overcrowding in July, August and September, when but three of the nine Judges of General Sessions will be available each month for the trial of cases.

In reply Mr. Banton said:

"I shall gladly take up the matter, with the hope that we may reduce the Tombs population to seventy-five for the Summer."

ON TRIAL FOR FORGERY.

A. A. Bowen Accused in Connection With Advertising Contracts.

The trial of Arthur A. Bowen on an indictment for forgery in the third degree in connection with contracts for advertising in a business directory, began before Supreme Court Justice Mahoney in the County Court House yesterday. The prosecution is in charge of Burton Smith, designated as Special Deputy Attorney General, who was named because District Attorney Banton at one time represented Bowen.

Complaint against Bowen was made by Sylvan I. Stroock of S. Stroock & Co., who stated that he signed what appeared to be an application for free advertising, or free listing in a directory, and who was later notified that he had signed an advertising contract. The charge is that the original top of the paper was cut off and another, which turned it into an advertising contract, was pasted on, in which way the alleged act of forgery in the third degree was committed.

Detective Sergeant Joseph Daly testified that he arrested Bowen as he left the office of a negro printer in Harlem, and found in his pocket an envelope containing a number of application blanks of the kind Mr. Stroock said he had signed and which are alleged to have been altered into contracts later. John F. Wharton, the printer, testified that he had set up the forms for both the original application blanks and the "revised" blanks. The trial will continue today.

NEW LUCHOW WILL FIGHT.

Brother Declares Restaurateur Was Mentally Incompetent.

A new contest of the will of August Luchow, Fourteenth Street restaurateur, who left the bulk of his $300,000 estate to a nephew, was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday by his brother, Ludwig, of Hamburg, Germany, whose suit filed some months ago was rejected on the ground that the attorney who made it had not obtained sufficient authority. In the present action power of attorney designating George A. Hopkins to file the contest was executed by Luchow before the American Consul at Hamburg.

The contest is based on allegations that the decedent was mentally unbalanced when he made the will on March 31, 1923, at Wiesbaden, Germany, not long before his death. An affidavit by Leo Kallman, now of Wiesbaden, who had known Mr. Luchow for forty years, said he accompanied Mr. Luchow and his sister, Olga, when they went to Germany in the latter part of 1922 for their health. He declared that both showed indications of mental derangement when they arrived, and that the sister was removed from a hotel in Wiesbaden to a sanitarium, where she died on Jan. 14, 1923.

ROB 19 HOMES IN 2 HOURS.

Burglars at Flushing Ransack Fifteen Houses in One Block.

Nineteen homes in the Murray Hill and Broadway sections of Flushing, Queens, were entered by one or more burglars between Monday midnight and 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Jewelry, silverware and other articles were ignored, but cash ranging from $2 to $10 was taken in each case.

Fifteen of the homes entered are on South Thirtieth Street, between Cypress and Francenia Avenues. The burglars entered all but two houses on this block. They then went to South Seventeenth and South Eighteenth Streets, where they entered four other homes. All food was removed from the ice box in one house.

4,000 PUPILS HEAR MAYOR ON SAFETY

Tells Children to "Stop, Look and Listen" Before Crossing the Streets.

SCORES RECKLESS DRIVERS

Makes Address to Forward Barron Collier's Campaign Against Traffic Accidents.

Massed on the plaza in front of the City Hall, 4,000 children of the public and parochial schools of the city heard Mayor Hylan yesterday afternoon urge the adoption of the "Stop, Look and Listen" attitude before venturing to cross the streets.

The occasion was the awarding of seventy-five silk banners to schools that have done exemplary work in a campaign inaugurated by Special Deputy Police Commissioner Barron Collier to reduce the alarming number of street accidents.

The children were accompanied by their teachers and the Superintendents and those of the parochial schools by members of the clergy and the teaching sisterhoods. Led by the Police Department Band, they sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the Police Glee Club later sang wartime songs and other selections. Mayor Hylan, Police Commissioner Enright and other city officials sat on a small dais built at the foot of the City Hall steps. In his address the Mayor scored the recklessness of many drivers.

"We all realize," he said, "how little regard for human lives these drivers have. Therefore, I urge that you children do not depend upon the drivers of vehicles or upon chauffers to protect you. Don't place yourselves in positions where you are likely to be run down. This murder rush of vehicles through our city streets must be stopped in some way, but as yet I don't know just how."

The Mayor said that almost daily he himself had narrow escapes as he sought to cross Park Row near the Post Office. "I sometimes wonder," he said, "what some of these drivers are thinking about as they skim past, just missing hitting some pedestrian by a few inches."

Justice Cullen had once told him, the Mayor said, that he never stepped from the sidewalk without lingering a little while on the curb and looking in all directions. Mr. Hylan asked the children to be no less careful than Justice Cullen. In closing he said:

"We public officials are just public servants. We are happy when you are happy and we are most vitally concerned in seeing to it that you get proper protection for your precious lives and limbs."

Skirting the crowd, which cheered the Mayor lustily, stood children holding up banners and placards with safety slogans. One which attracted especial notice ran:

"A jay there was who took a chance—
They carried him off in an ambulance."

SCRATCHED HYLAN'S AUTO.

Mayor Files Complaint Against a Wagon Owner Who Let Boy Drive.

Charged with permitting a minor to drive a horse attached to a delivery wagon, Samuel Rosen, 54, of 38 Beaver Street, Brooklyn, was paroled until tomorrow by Magistrate James V. Short when he appeared in the Bridge Plaza Court yesterday in answer to a summons given to him at the direction of Mayor Hylan.

Henry Werner, 14, of 248 Stagg Street, is the minor in the case. With Rosen seated beside him, the boy was driving on Boerum Street Monday evening. As he turned into Bushwick Avenue an automobile proceeding on the latter thoroughfare loomed up in front of him. According to Rosen, the lad did all that he could to stop the wagon, but despite his efforts the shaft struck the side of the auto and scraped off some paint.

Rosen and the boy were surprised when they learned, after some hot words, that the indignant occupant of the car was the Mayor. The latter instructed Policeman John Van Hauten of the Stagg Street precinct to issue a summons for the appearance of Rosen in court.

2 ESCAPE CHAIR IN JERSEY.

Court of Pardons Denies Clemency to Five Other Murderers.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 10.—The Court of Pardons commuted to life imprisonment today the death sentences of two murderers but refused to save five others from the electric chair.

Manfredo Grasso, convicted with Anthony Bagdonowitz of the slaying of William Bishop, a Camden taxicab driver, and Arthur Lindsey, convicted in Hudson County of the murder of Harry Moore in a hold-up in Jersey City, were the two whose sentences were commuted. It was argued in Grasso's behalf that he was only 16 years old and had borne a good reputation prior to the killing. In the case of Lindsey the jury had recommended mercy, but had failed to specifically designate life imprisonment as required by law. The entire jury signed a petition for clemency.

Anthony Bagdonowitz, referred to above; Anto Staub, sentenced to death in Passaic County for wife murder, and Edward Allen, Tony Brigiia and Frank Taylor, convicted of the murder of Walter Crozier, a farmer, near Woodbury, are the men who must die.

Bagdonowitz, Allen, Brigiia and Taylor will be put to death here during the week of July 13, while Staub will go to the chair the following week.

WILL OF MRS. SARAH RIVES.

Bulk of Large Estate Goes to Her Son and Daughter.

The will of Mrs. Sarah Rives, filed for probate yesterday, leaves $10,000 to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and $20,000 to Trinity Church in Newport, R. I. Trust funds of $350,000 and $250,000, respectively, go to her daughter, Mrs. Mildred Godwin of Katonah, N. Y., and her son, F. Bayard Rives of Hewlett, L. I.

Elizabeth McGinn and John J. Sullivan, employes of Mrs. Rives, receive $1,000 each. After gifts of jewelry to several relatives and friends, the residue of the estate is divided equally between the son and daughter. The value of the estate is not disclosed. Mrs. Rives died on May 29 at her residence at 907 Fifth Avenue.

Plea Filed in Estate of Policeman Who Quit to Wed Miss Morosini.

Arthur W. Werner, former Bronx Park mounted policeman, who left the force to marry Miss Giulia P. Morosini, who had the marriage annulled later, left an estate of only $990 when he died in a sanitarium on March 27.

This was disclosed yesterday when an application for letters of administration was filed in the Surrogate's Court by Jules J. Coelho of 68 West Fifty-first Street, acting for two sisters of Werner. Mrs. Alice Redding, first wife of Werner, who divorced him in Reno in 1910, a year before his marriage to Miss Morosini, asked that Charlotte E. Henriques be named.

The applications will be acted upon later.

RED STRIKE BECOMES COMPLICATED IN LONDON

More Workers Go Back, but Power House Engineers Now Threaten—Ministry Acts.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company, By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—With the return to work of 1,500 more members of the Underground Railway's employes, the situation caused by the unofficial strike of the power station workers and railway shopmen was further improved today as regards train services.

The real problem, however, is an improvement in the output of power, which is essential to an augmentation of traffic, and in view of this a threat tonight by the power station engineers' section of the Electrical Trades Union brought a new and serious complication into the dispute. The station engineers asserted that, failing a satisfactory settlement of the dispute, they would instruct their members employed by the Underground Railway to cease work.

The Strike Committee claims that the effect of the stoppage will only be felt a few days hence, when repairs to rolling stock, which is piling up because of the cessation of work by the railway shopmen, will begin to cripple the steam as well as the electric traffic.

The Ministry of Labor, at the request of the strikers, has taken a first step toward intervention by consenting to arrange a meeting between the unofficial Strike Committee and the National Union of Railway Men, who refused to recognize the stoppage.

MRS. WANAMAKER TO WED.

She Will Become Bride of Major Viney Today.

Cable messages from Paris received by friends yesterday in this city announced that the marriage of Mrs. Cruger Wanamaker, former wife of Rodman Wanamaker, to Major Hope Brankston Viney of London will take place today in Paris. Announcement of the approaching wedding was made when Bertram Cruger, brother of Mrs. Wanamaker, sailed on May 17 to attend the ceremony. He will give his sister in marriage today.

Major Viney has a number of friends in New York and is a member of the Lotos Club. He has known Mrs. Wanamaker for only two years. He is the eldest son of one of the founders of Hazell, Watson & Viney, Ltd., printers and bookbinders, of London and Aylesbury, Bucks, England, and is himself a director of the company, which is one of the largest magazine and book printing concerns in Great Britain. Major Viney enlisted as a private early in August, 1914, serving in France and Belgium until March, 1918, when he was severely wounded. He later obtained a commission and served for three and a half years in Egypt and Palestine, being awarded the Military Cross, with special mention in General Allenby's dispatches. He was demobilized in 1919 with the rank of Major.

Mrs. Wanamaker is a daughter of Mrs. J. Frederic Tams of Tuxedo Park, N. Y. She met her first husband while she was traveling abroad with her mother. They were married July 27, 1909, in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster. They were divorced in Paris, announcement of the decree being made last November.

TEST PADLOCK ORDER.

Palais Royal Receivers Seek Modification of Court Stay.

The first attempt to fight the Government's policy in getting padlock injunctions against cafes and cabarets that persistently violate the Volstead law was taken yesterday by the owners of the Palais Royal, who sought to have the injunction against that place modified. It was interpreted as a test case which will be used as a precedent by the various places which have been closed by the padlock method.

Henry B. Singer and Harry V. Chasan, receivers for the Russell Hotel and Restaurant Corporation, former operators of the Palais Royal, obtained an order to show cause why the injunction should not be changed to allow a transfer of the Palais Royal lease at 1,578 Broadway. The receivers seek to dispose of the lease and equipment of the restaurant to persons other than those connected with the former management, so that it may continue as a restaurant.

The order was served upon Assistant United States Attorney John Holley Clarke, who said that the Government would fight the application and insist that the place must not be reopened as a restaurant. He said that the Government would not object to having the doors unlocked so that the place could be used as a store.

Defendant Freed; Witness Jailed.

A youth on trial in Judge McIntyre's part of General Sessions was acquitted by order of the Court yesterday of a hold-up charge when the complaining witness admitted that he had accused the defendant falsely. Jerry Gagliano, 19 years old, of 415 East 105th Street, the witness, thereupon was ordered under arrest by the Court at the request of Assistant District Attorney John Joyce, and was taken to the Tombs under $1,000 bail, while Michael Mencuso, 20, of 2,022 First Avenue, whom he had charged with robbery, was leaving the court.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Dramatists' Theatre next season will produce "Silver Apples," a new play by Katherine and Struthers Burt, following the September opening of Rida Johnson Young's "Cheer Up."

The matinees of "Vogues" will be omitted during the Summer months.

Joanna Roos will play the title role in "Saint Joan" at the Garrick at tomorrow's matinee.

L. Lawrence Weber announced yesterday that there will be four companies of "Little Jessie James" on tour next season.

PRINCE OF DENMARK IS HONORED BY N. Y. U.

Made Doctor of Laws at Dinner of the Council as Part of Commencement Exercises.

DR. WHITNEY GETS MEDAL

Graduates Hold Hall of Fame Mock Ceremonial and Parade With Torches at Midnight.

1,600 GET DEGREES TODAY

Presentations Will Be Made on the Campus Beginning at 10:30 by Chancellor Brown.

Prince Valdemar of Denmark received the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the dinner of the Council of New York University last night, at the Waldorf-Astoria, in the presence of those who will receive honorary degrees at the commencement exercises on University Heights today, and other invited guests. Another feature of the dinner was the presentation to Dr. Chester F. S. Whitney, a New York University graduate who organized the first N. Y. U. University ambulance corps to go to France, of the French medal of honor, by A. Brouzet, acting Consul General of France.

A mock Hall of Fame ceremonial by graduating students, in which Faculty favorites had their names handed down to fame, was the most ambitious event of the Class Day exercises yesterday on the campus. All the details of the placing of memorial busts to the nation's illustrious dead were duplicated in burlesque from students' recollections of the event as they have seen it annually during their college course.

As part of the exercises, keys of Phi Beta Kappa, the scholarship fraternity, were awarded as follows:

Raymond Zimmer, 1,901 Mulitner Avenue, President of the senior class; Manuel Gelles, 1,420 Prospect Avenue; Isidore Rubiner, 361 East 179th Street; Artur Wachtel, 846 Prospect; John J. Quigley, 2,426 University Avenue; Irving Strumpf, all of New York; Meyer Berger of Brooklyn and Charles A. Landshof and Arthur H. Hirschfield of Jersey City.

Awards by Iota Alpha, the honorary engineering fraternity, were as follows: Melville Bachrach, Frank C. Jain and Robert H. Wells of New York City; Walter H. Koch, Mahopac, N. Y.; Ambrose C. Seaman, Yonkers, N. Y.; Albert R. D'Heedene, Hempstead, L. I., and Gonzalo Gaboldon of Venezuela.

Class Day Dinner.

In the evening the class day dinner of the College of Arts and Pure Science and the College of Engineering was held at the Hotel Woodstock, while the graduates from the schools of the institution downtown held exercises at the Washington Square Centre.

Class day wound up with a midnight torchlight procession around the campus and what the program called "bedtime stories" afterward in all the dormitories.

Degrees will be conferred upon approximately 1,600 graduates of the various schools in the ninety-second commencement of the institution, which will be held on the campus at University Heights today, beginning at 10:30. Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown will preside and Dr. Jeremiah W. Jenks, Research Professor of Government at the university, will deliver the address to the graduates on the topic, "America's Rôle in Europe."

Honorary degrees will be conferred by the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, President of the university's Council, as follows:

Master of Humane Letters—Sarah Cooper Hewitt, granddaughter of Peter Cooper, who has carried on many of the philanthropies begun by Peter Cooper.

Master of Arts—Professor Alberto Stasseel, director of the New York Oratorio Society and head of the Department of Music at New York University.

Doctor of Letters—Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews.

Doctor of Humane Letters—Dr. Lucius Chapin, Dean of Arts and Sciences at Peking University, and Rabbi Joseph Silverman, Rabbi Emeritus of Temple Emanu-el.

Doctor of Laws—Edmund L. Mooney, lawyer, graduate of New York University in the class of 1886, and Professor Michael Pupin of Columbia University.

The list of those to whom degrees upon examination will be awarded today follows:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Sharp Drop in Unfilled Steel Orders and Low Money Rates Emphasize Business Hesitation.

The cross-currents, not only in the market but in most industrial and financial lines, were emphasized by yesterday's developments. The budget of news which the markets had to consider included a renewal rate of 2 per cent. for call money—the lowest since Aug. 6, 1917—a decline in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation of 580,000 tons, bringing them down to the lowest figure since Nov. 30, 1914, and an indicated out-turn for grain at the lowest figure in twelve years. Quite evidently, previous markets had discounted some part, at least, of this news. The grains, as expected, were rather violently higher. Stocks as a whole moved into moderately higher ground and started to move, curiously enough, following the Steel Corporation's announcement of its unfilled tonnage. Probably most of the buying which came into the stock market was nothing more nor less than the repurchase of securities by those who had sold for the decline and who were inclined to take in their short lines "now that the news is out." Such a development is not a new or unnatural one.

Emphatic reflection of the manner in which buyers have hesitated about placing new forward orders was to be found in the statement of the United States Steel Corporation that the business on its books at the end of May amounted to 3,628,000 tons, a loss in a month of 580,000 tons. One must follow the records back to Nov. 30, 1914, when the industry was in the doldrums because of the outbreak of the war, to find unfilled tonnage so low. As compared with the same period last year, the decline amounts to something more than 3,300,000 tons, or almost as much as present unfilled orders. It is quite evident that this corporation and, if it may be taken as a criterion, many others have suffered in the last two months from heavy cancellations. Possibly some light is thrown on the decline by the May statement of the 19 per cent. reduction in automobile production and of the 47 per cent. decline in New York building activities during that month.

The markets, however, appeared to take these figures as a matter of course. A great deal of momentum was gathered overnight, of course, for the commodity markets, at least, in the Government's statement on the condition of the grain crop, due to unseasonable weather, which has played havoc with agricultural plans. December wheat opened the day at $1.11 as compared with the previous close of $1.07⅞, and before the day was over had run up to $1.12⅝. Similar gains were made by other active months and in smaller proportion in the corn, oats and rye markets. Of course, the June 1 figures do not preclude the possibility of fair weather bringing a complete revision of the possible outturn of grain crops before the next Government report. They do, however, indicate a very considerably restricted acreage and a generally backward crop, and possibly this development will serve to eliminate from immediate political consideration such agricultural subsidies as have been suggested.

All classes of money now are at practically a pre-war basis. Some of this ease in money is to be attributed to slack capital demands and to the natural flowback to the financial centres therefrom, some of it to our steady influx of gold and some of it to the fact that all of the credits, frozen solid in the deflation following the war, now have been completely thawed. The market for first-class securities, particularly Government issues and gilt-edged bonds, continues to take emphatic cognizance of this situation.

The day's political developments had small effect on the markets and the news from the Cleveland convention no effect whatever because of its inconclusive character. The Cabinet crisis in France brought irregularity to the foreign exchange market, but brought no sharp declines, and, like the stock market, it appears to be doing little more than marking time, awaiting the developments of the next two or three days.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1924.

Epoch-making charges for money again appeared in rates for both demand and fixed period accommodation, business money as well, the Stock Exchange renewal rate of 2 per cent. being lowest since Aug. 6, 1917, while in the outside market business was reported at 1¾. For time money, 90-day funds were placed in fair amount at 3¼ per cent., unequaled since late in March, 1917, with four to six months' offered at 4, but there were no takers for the latter. Call loans against acceptances at 1¾ per cent. have never before been quoted, but discount on futures up to 120 days remained at 2¼@2¾, as on Monday, when it was new low ground. Merchants' paper moved quietly without variation.

Money in London ¾ off, at 1¾ per cent.; short bills unchanged, at 2⅛@2⅜ per cent.; three months' bills unchanged, at 3⅛ per cent.

Gold bullion unchanged, at 95s 9d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a London price of 112⅝.

Highest for the year to date, 115 1-8, on Jan. 21; lowest, 110⅝, April 28. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 140⅝, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102⅞, on Feb. 21, 1923.

GERMANY SENDS TRADE BILLS HERE

$1,000,000 Taken Up by Score of Banks Participating in $5,000,000 Credit.

The first of the German trade bills to figure in the effort of American banking institutions to keep the German-American commerce alive pending a final settlement of the reparations problem have been received in New York. They totaled $1,000,000, or one-fifth of the total credit set aside for the purpose of fostering German trade to offset the action of Great Britain, which, in establishing a new gold bank in Germany, has taken the lead in anticipating Germany's revival.

The bills received in the $5,000,000 American credit operation were drawn by industrial corporations of Germany on some of the large German banks, then endorsed by the new gold rediscount bank of Germany and forwarded to the United States. Through the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., of 19 Pine Street the bills were distributed among the twenty or more institutions participating in the credit. Bankers were not at liberty, they said, to tell what the proceeds would be used for other than that they were purely of a commercial nature. Before the war America's trade with Germany ranked next to its commerce with Great Britain.

Added interest attached to the actual inauguration of the work of the credit by reason of the recent report of the Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve Board, which said, in effect, that it rested upon private American banking effort to keep the dollar alive in Germany in competition with the pound sterling. The English bankers, with Bank of England support, took the lead in organizing the Schacht rediscount bank and through this strategic move established the pound, which made it the virtual successor of the old German mark. A channel through which German industrialists could do business on a dollar basis, it was explained, could be opened only through the advancement of dollar credits and the new $5,000,000 credit was a step in that direction. The new German trade bills, it was learned yesterday, are now eligible for rediscount by the Federal Reserve banks.

To Reduce Number of Directors.

Stockholders of the Producers and Refiners Corporation at their annual meeting to be held June 30 will vote to reduce the number of directors from eleven to five.

STEEL CORPORATION BUSINESS DECLINES

Reduction of 580,358 Tons in Amount on Books at the Close of May.

The United States Steel Corporation yesterday reported a reduction of 580,358 tons in the volume of forward business carried on its books at the close of May, bringing total business on hand down to 3,628,089 tons, the smallest total reported since November, 1914, when forward business aggregated 3,242,892 tons. The decrease reported yesterday was about what had been expected in the financial district as recent estimates called for a drop of between 500,000 and 600,000 tons. The reduction compares with a decrease of 574,340 tons reported a month ago.

The total of 3,628,089 tons, reported as of the close of May, compares with unfilled orders aggregating 4,208,447 tons reported at the close of April, 4,912,901 tons reported at the close of February and with 6,981,801 tons reported at the close of May last year.

It is estimated that shipments of steel products based upon average operations last month aggregated 1,000,000 tons, or about 37,000 tons daily for the twenty-seven working days. At the same time it was estimated that new business aggregated 600,000 tons, or between 22,000 and 23,000 tons daily. These figures account for about 400,000 tons of the reported reduction, and the rest, it is understood, resulted from cancellations of orders.

A further reduction in unfilled orders is expected to be reported as of the close of the current month, due to the continued inactivity on the part of consumers to place new orders. But the reduction for June is expected to be smaller than that reported for May, due to the fact that the company's plants are working on a much more reduced scale than was reported for May.

The following table gives the unfilled tonnage of the Steel Corporation at the close of each month for the last three years:

Beginning March 22, 1923, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty Bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

MONEY RATES DROP TO NEW LOW POINTS

Call Loans Are Renewed at 2 Per Cent., Bottom Figure Since Back in 1917.

NEW HIGHS FOR LIBERTIES

Bankers' Acceptances Establish a Record—Financial District in Hopeful Mood.

While Liberty bonds were again firm in yesterday's market, two issues going to new highs for all time and another going into new high ground for the year, chief interest in the financial district centred in the further reduction of money rates in several important classes.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent., the lowest quotation for the renewal rate since 1917, and on the outside market at 1¾ per cent. At these figures considerable business came into the market, brokers reporting the most active day in several days.

Ninety-day loans were made at 3¼ per cent., the lowest figure touched since March, 1917. One broker reported a loan for four months at the same rate, this figure having been the lowest for such accommodation since 1906. For six months loans money brokers asked 4 per cent., but no business was done at that figure, borrowers asking for one-eighth to one-quarter of a point less.

Bankers' acceptances again established a new record at 1¾ per cent., a figure that betters even the pre-war record for this class of security, which is rated as being of the best commercial description.

Evidences that the money market was near bottom, if not actually at bottom, were said to have been furnished, but bankers were reluctant to predict how long the present abundance might continue. A moderate rally covering a broad area of the stock market contributed to a belief that business conditions were shaping up better than a short time ago, and some significance was attached to the fact that the price of United States Steel Corporation common stock advanced in the face of a "poor" month-end report of unfilled orders. This was attributed by a number of brokers in their market letter to the belief that the steel industry had touched bottom, as claimed by Judge Gary and others, and now would improve. Bankers said the change in sentiment was apparent, although confirmation was lacking of a definite change in industrial trend, and none can be obtained until at least two or three weeks more shall have elapsed.

The Government bond group, which now affords an index of money conditions that is as reliable as the actual rates posted in the money market, showed record highs in the case of the third 4¼s and the Treasury 4¼s, while the first 4¼s advanced to a new high for the year. Other bonds of this group held near their high records of Monday.

TELEPHONE EARNINGS GAIN.

April Report Shows $6,142,250 Gross—$24,685,541 for 4 Months.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company report for April shows gross earnings of $6,142,250, compared with $5,937,193 in the same month last year. Operating income was $2,615,226, compared with $2,561,492.

For the four months to April 30, gross was $24,685,541, an increase of $793,275 over the same period last year, while operating income was $10,508,550, a decrease of $280,720.

The New England Telephone Company for April reported a deficit of $148,000 after dividends. Added to the first quarter's deficit of $319,000, this makes a total of $467,000, which it has been necessary for the company to draw from surplus. For 1923 the company had a deficit after dividends of $2,123,-893. The company began the current year with a surplus of $4,859,003. Dividend requirements for the balance of the year have been increased 25 per cent. in comparison with last year, as the result of the offering of $16,691,000 par value of new stock on April 2.

VOTE CONFIDENCE IN DOHENY

Pan-American Stockholders Approve His Leases With Government.

Stockholders of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday adopted a resolution "reiterating their unshakable confidence in the honor and integrity of the Chairman of the company's Board of Directors, Edward L. Doheny," and declaring their belief in the fairness of the contracts and leases entered into between the company and the United States Government. The resolution was presented by T. O. Dunlap, a stockholder.

J. M. Danziger, a Vice President of the company, resigned from the Board of Directors and was succeeded by P. H. Harwood, a Vice President and mine superintendent. Mr. Danziger will continue as a Vice President in charge of operations in California. The change was made, it was explained by representatives of the company, because Mr. Danziger's activities will prevent him from attending many of the directors' meetings in this city, and his absence at times would have resulted in the lack of a quorum.

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

Trading Quiet and Prices Move in Irregular Fashion Abroad.

LONDON, June 10.—Trading was quiet and prices moved irregularly on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols 57⅛. British 5 per cent. war loan 100⅝, 4½ per cent. war loan 97⅝; all unchanged.

Rand Mines unchanged at 8⅛; De Beers Mining ¼ lower at 12¾.

PARIS, June 10.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 10 centimes lower at 52 francs 80 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan 86 centimes lower at 67 francs 45 centimes.

Exchange on London declined 45 centimes to 85 francs 80 centimes per sovereign; the American dollar was quoted at 19 francs 87½ centimes, against 19.80 on Friday.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York has been appointed trustee, registrar and paying agent under the New York Central lines equipment trust of 1924, also of the Indiana Harbor equipment trust of 1924 and the Rutland Railroad equipment trust of 1924, also transfer agent for certificates of no par value of the Seaboard Oil and Gas Company, issued in exchange for securities with a par value of $5 each.

The American Exchange National Bank has been appointed trustee under deed of trust securing mortgage sinking fund gold bonds of Utilities Building Corporation amounting to $2,500,000 dated May 1, 1924, maturing May 1, 1944, of which $700,000 are to be issued presently.

Robert M. Remick, formerly with Kimball, Russell & Co., has become associated with March & Kimball, Boston, and will assume charge of their trading department July 1.

Foster, McConnell & Co. are offering a list of State and municipal bonds exempt from all Federal income taxes yielding from 4 to 4.40 per cent.

Baker, Kellogg & Co., Inc., announce that Albert B. Kastan has become associated with them as manager of their foreign exchange department.

A. E. Murray is now associated with Horwitz & Co. and will assume charge of the trading department.

W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., have prepared a chart which shows the comparative net income value of tax-free and taxable bonds under the Revenue act of 1924.

Shields & Co. have issued for distribution to investors a circular describing the 7 per cent. cumulative convertible preferred stock of the A. & W. Grocery & Lunch Co. (Inc.).

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

List Steady on Moderate Business —French Franc Opens Lower, but Later Recovers.

European exchanges were generally steady in a quiet market yesterday, the volume of business falling considerably below that done on Monday. Sterling was again maintained within narrow range, finishing unchanged at $4.80⅝. French franc started weak, on Paris selling, the rate going off to 5.00½ cents, a decline of 7 points, but Amsterdam buying to take care of mid-month obligations turned it back to 5.09½ cents. Offerings increased at the close, however, with the result that the franc finished at 5.04½ cents. Bankers said that the resignation of President Millerand, announcement of which was received late in the day, would hardly have any effect on the franc rate since this action had been forecast by the elections. They further pointed out that the decline from 5.95 cents, to 4.90 cents, touched about a week ago, adequately measured the rejection of the Poincaré Ministry and the acceptance of the Socialist regime.

Continental rates were uniformly maintained, while in the Easterns, some of the Chinese currencies yielded, while the Japanese yen was firm. There was another jump in the quotations for the Russian rubles, both the 100 and 500-ruble notes rising to new high levels. This business, it was found, represented mostly bids with offerings scarce, and in one quarter was attributable to speculation by Chinese operators on top of recognition by that Government of the Soviet nation.

Utah Power Seeks Higher Rates.

The Utah Power and Light Company has applied to the Utah Utilities Commission for a new schedule of rates in all territory outside Salt Lake City and Ogden. The desired schedule names a 10-cent lighting rate and $1.11 gross minimum bill, both subject to 10 per cent. discount for prompt payment. Ogden and Salt Lake City rates are 8.1 cents a kilowat hour and 90 cents minimum.

Good Fruit Crops Expected.

Reports to the Douglas-Pectin Corporation, packers of fruits, are to the effect that there is every indication of good fruit crops this year in all parts of the country. Low-priced sugar and a good out-turn in crops are expected to have a very considerable effect on [illegible]

Two Bulwarks
Stand Between You and Loss

Our Guaranteed Mortgage Certificates have behind them, First, the real estate security required by law for trust fund investments and, Second, our entire Guarantee Fund (Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits) of $11,000,000, both of which would have to be dissipated before you could lose a penny.

It should be plain to you that strong security with a strong guarantee is better for you than less security with a higher return and no guarantee. High rates indicate risk—moderate rates safety.

The issues we do not offer

A GOOD investment banker often discovers facts that seriously affect the soundness of a proposed issue—and protects his customers by refusing to offer it.

Nickerson engineers, auditors, and legal staff are known for the thoroughness of their investigations. If we reject an issue, our findings never go beyond our own organization. But if we offer an issue to investors, we lay all the facts before them.

RAILROAD OFFERS $26,058,000 IN BONDS

Nickel Plate Will Take First Step Today in Consolidating Indebtedness.

SECURED BY PROPERTY LIEN

Company's Paper Is Now at Insurance Standard—Other Financing in the Market.

The new plan for consolidating the bonded indebtedness of the units composing the new Nickel Plate Railroad System has been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and as a first step, public offering will be made today of an issue of $26,058,000 of bonds. The bonds are refunding mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, Series A, and are due April 1, 1974. They are secured by two mortgages on properties owned by the Nickel Plate Railroad Company or, as legally known, the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Company. The offering is by the Guaranty Company of New York, Lee, Higginson & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co. and Dillon, Read & Co.

The proceeds will be applied to reimburse the company for capital expenditures made for additions and betterments and new equipment. It is the first issue to come out under the new blanket mortgage which covers the properties of the old New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Company, the Lake Erie and Western Railroad Company and the Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company (Clover Leaf), which were welded into one system by the Van Sweringens of Cleveland.

Security consists of a direct mortgage lien on railroad property and equipment, including 1,673 miles of road subject to $68,914,000 of underlying bonds and outstanding equipment obligations, and by a first morigage on 637 acres of land to be used for terminal development, situated in Chicago and Cleveland and costing originally more than $5,000,000. The company intends, in connection with the refunding of the Toledo, St. Louis and Western prior lien bonds, which mature on July 1, 1925, to issue and pledge under the refunding mortgage the Toledo, St. Louis and Western first mortgage bonds reserved to retire the prior lien bonds.

Legal for Insurance Funds.

Bringing the Nickel Plate bonds to such a standard that insurance companies may legally buy them will be accomplished through the new arrangement and it will also increase the amount of funded indebtedness that the Nickel Plate can have outstanding at any time without losing this privilege. The ratio to be maintained is three times as many bonds as capital stock. The road's capital stock now amounts to $56,271,630 and total funded debt $111,885,000, leaving considerable leeway for whatever new bond issues might be needed to finance the further development of the system. On the three to one basis, the road could have approximately $169,000,000 of bonds outstanding.

The bonds are being offered at 94½ to yield about 5.84 per cent.

Potter & Co., and Harris, Forbes & Co. are offering $1,000,000 Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company first and general mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, series B, due May 1, 1966, at 98½ and interest, to yield about 6.10 per cent. Previous issues of these bonds are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and an application will be made to list these bonds.

Eldredge & Co. are offering the remaining unsold $800,000 bonds of an original issue of $1,600,000 Oklahoma City, Okla., gold 5 per cent. water works bonds, due serially, Jan. 15, 1938 to 1943, inclusive, at prices to yield 4.50 per cent.

A. B. Leach & Co., Inc., the Detroit Company and the Illinois Merchants Trust Company are offering a new issue of $600,000 City of Asheville, N. C., 5 per cent. gold bonds, dated May 1, 1924, and due May 1, 1925 to 1949. The bonds are issued for various improvement purposes. They are priced to yield from 4.40 to 4.70 per cent.

A new issue of $457,000 Greensbord, N. C., 5 per cent. gold bonds, due serially, 1932 to 1964, inclusive, at prices to yield 4.70 per cent. to 4.65 per cent., according to maturity, is being offered by A. M. Lamport & Co., Inc., and C. W. McNear & Co.

An Issue on Detroit Building.

S. W. Straus & Co. are offering an issue of $400,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. two to fourteen year serial coupon gold bonds, secured by the Farrand Park Apartments, Detroit. The bonds are a direct obligation of the Siegel Land Corporation.

An issue of $300,000 State of West Virginia sinking fund 3¼ per cent. gold bonds is being offered by Eldredge & Co., and F. E. Calkins & Co. The bonds are offered at 93 and interest. They are dated Jan. 1, 1919, and mature Jan. 1, 1939.

Stephens & Co. are offering a new issue of $190,000 4¾ per cent. bonds of the City of Superior, Wis., at prices to yield from 4.25 to 4.40 per cent. The bonds mature $9,500 annually from July 1, 1925, to July 1, 1944, inclusive.

J. S. Rippel & Co. are offering a new issue of $60,000 Glen Ridge, N. J., sewer bonds, bearing 4½ per cent. interest. The bonds are dated May 1, 1924, and mature $2,000 annually, beginning May 1, 1928. They are offered at prices to yield 4¼ per cent.

W. R. Britton & Co. are offering State of Florida, Everglades drainage district 5½ per cent. noncallable gold bonds, maturing 1924 to 1948, at prices to yield 5.15 per cent.

LOWERS CRUDE OIL PRICES.

Standard of Louisiana Posts New Schedule—Texas Co. Meets It.

The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, announced a reduction of 15 cents a barrel yesterday in the price of Smackover crude oil. The Texas Company immediately met the reduction except in the case of heavy crude oil under 24 gravity, which it had previously posted at 85 cents a barrel, while Louisiana's price for this grade was $1.

Under the new schedule of prices oil of less than 24 gravity is posted at 85 cents a barrel; 24 to 24.9 gravity, 95 cents; 25 to 25.9 gravity, $1.05, and 26 gravity and over, $1.20 a barrel. Both companies are now posting prices on the same basis.

Reports Austria Now Pays Way.

William Ford Upson, Commercial Attaché of the United States at Vienna, who recently returned here, gave out an interview at the custom house yesterday afternoon, in which he emphasized the improvement of Austria under the two years of its present Administration. Austria is now able to meet all obligations, pay the interest on the recent loan and still have a small surplus, he said.

Credit Corporation Reduces Rates.

The Commercial Credit Corporation, Park Avenue and Forty-second Street, announced yesterday that it has reduced its rates for purchasing active open accounts receivable from wholesalers and manufacturers from 1-23 of 1 per cent. a day to 1-30 of 1 per cent. a day., plus the usual charge of $5 a thousand for the first $100,000 of business within each year.

SURPLUS IN FIRST YEAR.

Pittsburgh Utilities Earns $234,742 Besides Dividends.

The report of the Pittsburgh Utilities Corporation for the year ended March 31, its first year, shows net income of $1,369,242 after expenses and interest. Under the participating provisions of the shares, this is equivalent to $1.50 a share (par $10) on $3,850,000 outstanding preferred stock. After $1 a share shall have been paid in any half year on the common, the directors may declare additional dividends out of any remaining surplus and profits, the preferred and common participating equally in the total amount declared as extra dividends. The common stock is owned by the United Railways Investment Company.

Total income was $1,977,305 and expenses and interest $608,063. After preferred and common dividends, there remained a surplus of $234,742. Assets are listed as $25,659,578, including $24,000,000 of Philadelphia Company common stock.

GAMEWELL STOCK SOLD.

Sixty Thousand Shares Offered by a Syndicate at $50.

The Gamewell Company, which specializes in the manufacture of fire alarm and police signal systems, and which is credited with having installed these systems in 90 per cent. of the 1,500 towns and cities in this country, has announced the sale of 60,000 shares of common stock through a local banking syndicate. The stock which is being offered at $50 a share, is being sold by Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., Jackson & Curtis and B. J. Baker & Co., Inc.

According to the announcement of the bankers, the stock is entitled to dividends at the rate of $5 a share annually before any dividends are paid on the management shares. They are further entitled to an additional amount of dividends equal to any dividends declared on the management shares as a class. The company has been in business for fifty-five years.

PLAN POWER PROJECT.

Hydroelectric Development in Pennsylvania Said to Be Under Way.

The Philadelphia Electric Company may undertake a hydroelectric development in which the United Gas and Electric Corporation will participate, according to advices received in the financial district yesterday. Provision may be made for the transmission of power to Lancaster and Harrisburg, Pa., as well as to Philadelphia.

With a view of protecting its Pennsylvania properties in their future power needs, the United Gas, through the Susquehanna Power Company, several years ago acquired control of the proposed hydroelectric power development on the Susquehanna at Conewingo, Md., which is about sixty or seventy miles from Lancaster and Harrisburg, where it owns properties.

AMERICAN ICE PLAN WINS.

Stockholders Approve Issuance of Notes for $3,875,000.

Stockholders of the American Ice Company yesterday approved the proposed issuance of $3,875,000 fifteen-year 7 per cent. convertible gold debenture notes. The proceeds will be used to extend current facilities and improve plant.

The new securities will be offered to stockholders, and the time limit for subscribing was extended at yesterday's meeting to Aug. 15. The notes, however, will be dated July 15. Stockholders may subscribe to the extent of 15 per cent. of their holdings of stock, both common and preferred. Success of the issue is assured, as a group of prominent stockholders has underwritten the issue without commission or fee.

Standard Gas Dividends.

H. M. Byllesby & Co. announced yesterday that the directors of the Standard Gas and Electric Company had declared the initial dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the 7 per cent. cumulative prior preference stock of the company, payable July 25 to stockholders of record June 30. A quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share was also declared on the common stock, payable July 25 to stock of record June 30.

Heads Commercial Congress.

Phinehas W. Stephens has been appointed director general of the Southern Commercial Congress, Dr. Clarence J. Owens announced yesterday. Invitations have been sent out to the Latin American countries to send delegates to the convention, which meets in Atlanta, Oct. 1 to 4, for the purpose of promoting closer commercial relations between North and South America.

Output of Lead Increased in 1923.

Lead production in the United States last year, as announced by the Geological Survey, was 618,322 short tons, compared with 582,685 in 1922 and 445,650 in 1921.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC GETS EL PASO ROAD

Control of Southwestern Property Acquired From Phelps-Dodge Mining Interests.

HAS 1,140 MILES OF TRACK

Officials of Both Roads Decline to Disclose Amount Involved or How Transfer Will Be Made.

Confirmation of the acquisition of the El Paso & Southwestern Railroad by the Southern Pacific Company was made yesterday in statements issued by J. Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Southern Pacific, and T. M. Schumacher, President of the El Paso & Southwestern. An addition of 1,140 miles of railroad is thus made to the present Southern Pacific system of 11,223 miles.

"It is true," said the statement issued from the office of Mr. Schumacher, after a conference with Mr. Kruttschnitt yesterday afternoon, "that negotiations between the Southern Pacific and the El Paso & Southwestern, looking toward the bringing of the two properties together, have been practically completed. No formal contract has yet been executed between the parties and full details cannot therefore be yet furnished to the public. Of course any such arrangement will have to be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for its approval and authorization, and such application will immediately follow the agreement now being negotiated. The negotiations include a substantial development of railway facilities in the Southwest and particularly in Arizona."

Officials of both roads declined to say what amount of money is involved or how the transfer of ownership would be carried out.

Controlling interest of the El Paso & Southwestern Railroad is held by the Phelps-Dodge interests. The deal means that the Southern Pacific will obtain a strip of railroad from Tucson, Ariz., to the coal fields in the vicinity of Dawson, N. M., where the Phelps-Dodge interests have large coal mines. It will also connect the Southern Pacific directly with the Rock Island at Tucumari, N. M. Much of the freight and passenger business from the Pacific Coast over the Southern Pacific and Rock Island to Chicago has been handled over the connecting link formed by the El Paso & Southwestern. The addition of the El Paso & Southwestern will give the Southern Pacific a double-tracked system from Tucson to El Paso, and will add materially to its mineral traffic. Lines and mileage controlled by the El Paso & Southwestern Company include:

El Paso & Northwestern, 169.45; Alamagordo & Sacramento Mountain, 31.23; El Paso & Rock Island, 127.51; Dawson, 131.98; Burro Mountain, 13.09; El Paso & Southwestern of Texas, 4.69; El Paso & Southwestern, 568.81. Besides this the El Paso has through lease trackage rights over the Chicago, Rock Island and El Paso Railroad from Santa Rosa to Tucumari, N. M., a distance of sixty miles, and over the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway from Deming to Burro Mountain, a distance of 33.27 miles.

Estimates of the values involved in the transaction were put as high as $90,000,000, although the balance sheet of the El Paso & Southwestern for 1922 showed total assets of $53,705,623.

Surety Executives Organize.

A Surety Executives' Association was organized yesterday by the heads of a number of leading companies at a meeting at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The functions of the new association will be largely consultatory and advisory and will in no way infringe upon the activities of the Surety Association of America. It will have no officers.

Hudson Motor Output.

HALTS SALE OF OIL STOCK.

Restraining Order Issued Against Campbell Refining Corporation.

State Attorney General Carl Sherman announced yesterday at his New York office, 61 Chambers Street, that Supreme Court Justice M. Warley Platzek had granted an order restraining the Campbell Refining Company, with offices at 250 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York City, from the further sale of its stocks and bonds until the hearing of a motion to have the injunction made permanent. The motion is made returnable on Monday, June 16, in Special Term, Part I., of the Supreme Court.

The Campbell Refining Company was incorporated for $3,000,000 in Delaware on April 7, 1919, for the purpose of refining and marketing petroleum. The officers of the corporation are C. Albert Campbell, President, and Cyrus J. Rankin, Secretary and Treasurer.

The application for the court order was granted on the affidavits of Deputy Attorney General Maurice G. Lynn, who conducted the investigation; H. N. Randall, 74 Genesee Street, and Evan R. Jones, 52 Pearl Street, New Hartford, N. Y., and Hugh H. Smith of the Better Business Bureau of Utica, N. Y. The Campbell Refining Corporation also has offices and warehouse at 186 Genesee Street, Utica, N. Y.

According to the affidavits of the complainants, the Campbell Corporation falsely represented that it owned real estate to the value of $3,019,500. The only real estate that the corporation owns, according to the Attorney General, is property in Utica, valued at $19,500, and a mortgage of $14,500, it is declared is held against it.

The affidavits also state that Jack DeLeon, a salesman, and C. Albert Campbell, the President, falsely represented that they were the owners of tanks, trucks and machinery for refining oil in their efforts to sell bonds in this State. Other claims attributed to the corporation and denied in the complaint, are that there is "$10 in assets back of every dollar subscribed"; that the Campbell Refining Corporation is the fourth largest oil company in the world; that a certain bank agreed to buy the entire bond issue; that the company has a secret process for refining oil; and that its financial statement shows a surplus of approximately $2,000,000. The complaint states that the corporation, if not actually insolvent, is in a very doubtful state.

RADIO SUIT WILL BE TRIED.

Court Denies Freid-Eisemann Motion for Dismissal.

Judge Robert A. Inch in the Federal Court in Brooklyn denied a motion yesterday to dismiss the case of the Hazeltine Research Corporation and the Independent Radio Manufacturers, Inc., against the Freid-Eisemann Radio Corporation. The motion had been made on the ground that the court was without proper jurisdiction, as some of the parties to the suit are not residents of this State. Judge Inch directed that the trial proceed.

The defendant company has a contract with the plaintiffs for the manufacture of radio receiving sets, and the latter are suing for cancellation of the contract. Two months ago former Governor Nathan L. Miller, attorney for the Independent Radio Manufacturers, Inc., applied to the court for an injunction to restrain the defendant from manufacturing the receiving sets pending trial of the action to rescind the contract. The injunction was denied, but Judge Inch directed the defendant to pay the royalties on the sets manufactured to the court pending decision on the suit.

Compiles a Banking Encyclopedia.

Glenn G. Munn, associate editor of the Bankers Magazine and railroad editor of Standard Statistics, is the author of an "Encyclopedia of Banking and Finance," just published by the Bankers Publishing Company. The book, which purports to be the first American encyclopedia in its field, contains more than 3,000 terms relating to banking practice, history and law, money credit, foreign exchange, trusts, investments, speculation and brokerage. The text also includes the most important banking laws brought down to date, such as the Federal Reserve act, the Federal Farm Loan act, Agricultural Credits act, Bills of Lading act and Negotiable Instruments law.

NORTHWEST ROAD DEFERS DIVIDEND

MAY YET TAKE ACTION

Directors, Who Meet Again in September, Will Consider Earnings of Line This Year.

Directors of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway deferred action yesterday on the preferred dividend. Unless there is a special meeting called, the directors will not assemble again until September.

For forty-three years the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway has not failed to pay a dividend on its preferred stock. From 1881 to 1884 the rate was 7 per cent., dropping from then until it reached 3 per cent. in 1889. It went back on a 7 per cent. basis in 1893, and has been at that rate since.

From 1905 to 1916 the company paid 7 per cent. on its common stock. This was reduced to 6 per cent. in 1917 and to 5 per cent. in 1918, where it continued until February of the present year, when the company passed the common dividend.

Following the meeting yesterday it was learned that the action on the preferred dividend would depend upon the earnings of the company this year. Last year the company earned 5.54 on its preferred stock, compared with 7 per cent. on the preferred and 2.10 on the common in 1922. For the first four months of this year the gross earnings of the company have been $9,130,366, against $9,282,265 last year. Net operating income for the period was $1,006,875, against $923,613 last year.

As the Chicago & Northwestern owns $5,380,000 worth of preferred stock of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway, the declaration of a dividend will have an important effect on the investment income of the former company.

Directors of the Chicago & Northwestern declared the regular 2 per cent. semi-annual dividend on the common stock and 3½ per cent. on the preferred stock. Both are payable on July 15 to stock of record on June 19.

Despite the rumors to the effect that the directors of the Rutland Railroad Company might resume dividends on the preferred stock yesterday, no action was taken. The last payment was 2 per cent., on Jan. 23, 1918. Accumulations on the preferred stock are more than 30 per cent.

COPPER STOCK INCREASE.

May Output Exceeds April's Despite Efforts to Curtail It.

Surplus stocks of copper metal increased approximately 4,000,000 pounds in May, according to figures published yesterday. This is the first increase in surplus reported since the beginning of the year. Stocks on June 1 aggregated 225,000,000 pounds, according to the estimates, against 221,000,000 pounds on May 1, and 311,000,000 pounds on Jan. 1, 1924. On June 1, last year, surplus stocks aggregated 204,000,000 pounds.

Shipments for both export and domestic consumption aggregated 222,000,000 pounds last month. This is the fifth largest monthly total in the history of the trade. Domestic shipments last month were estimated at 136,000,000 pounds.

Despite the efforts of producers to curtail production, the output last month was larger than in April. May production, according to the figures, aggregated 226,000,000 pounds by both North and South American companies, and compared with an output of 216,000,000 pounds in April and 220,000,000 in March.

Gas Co. Not Moving to the Bronx.

An official of the Consolidated Gas Company denied a report yesterday that the company was planning to sell its Manhattan properties and move to the Bronx.

Insure His Education!

Consider this plan, outlined to us by the successful business man who devised it:

"Seven years ago when my son was two years old, I set aside $5000 worth of bonds for him, with a determination to use the income thereof for re-investment, through the purchase of $100 bonds on the installment plan.

"Today, I find that through this systematic plan, the principal has increased to well over $8000.

The rate of growth is very much more rapid now than it was at first; and within the next two or three years, the fund will very likely cross the $10,000 mark."

The full success of any investment plan depends upon the permanent safety of the securities that build it. This far-sighted parent invests through the Compton Company. Behind the various issues we recommend are 37 years of experience and responsibility.

Legal investment for savings banks and trustees in New York, Connecticut and other states

The State is required by the provisions of the Act to retire annually from January 1, 1919 to January 1, 1939, at least one-twentieth of the authorized issue ($675,000 per year) by redemption at 100 and interest or by purchase in the open market at not more than 100 and interest.

The entire net bonded debt of the State of West Virginia is less than 1½% of the assessed valuation of taxable property.

In view of the very unusual sinking fund provisions attached to this loan as shown in the above paragraph, it is our opinion that it will be necessary for the State to pay very close to par within the next few years, to carry out its terms. The State has already retired approximately $4,500,000 of the total issue of $13,500,000, but the bonds are becoming increasingly difficult to obtain and we believe will advance independent of their relative value to other bonds, and to the conditions of the money market.

GREENSBORO, the County Seat of Guilford County, is one of the important commercial and industrial centers of the State. In 1923 its limits were extended so as to include its natural suburbs, subjecting them to taxation without, however, increasing the City's bonded debt.

These Bonds, issued for water, sewer, municipal building and street improvement purposes, constitute direct general obligations of the entire City of Greensboro and are payable from unlimited taxes on all the taxable property therein.

Successful Management Of Coal Properties

There are no secret or mysterious processes involved in Peabody Coal Mine Management. Its success can be attributed entirely to the application of:

—Commonsense business methods and wise handling of funds, both in saving and spending

—Tested systems of development that promote future economical operation

—Proven methods of mining evolved by long and varied experience

—Daily comparison and detailed analysis of mining costs with immediate correction of irregularities

—Standardization of equipment and supplies and the natural economies of a large buying power

33 CORPORATIONS DECLARE DIVIDENDS

Thirty of Them to Pay the Same as in First Quarter—Three Are to Give Extras.

ISLAND CREEK COAL RAISES

National Licorice Co. and Macfadden Publications Are the Others Which Increased Payments.

Thirty-three railroad and industrial corporations and banks made dividend declarations yesterday for the current quarter. In all but three instances the dividend declarations were the same as declared for the first quarter of the year. The three companies which declared extra payments were the Island Creek Coal Company, the National Licorice Company and Macfadden Publications, Inc.

Directors of the Island Creek Coal Company declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1. They also declared the regular quarterly payment of $1.50 a share on the preferred. All three dividends are payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

The National Licorice Company declared an extra dividend of 2½ per cent., in addition to the regular semi-annual payment of 2½ per cent. The company also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the preferred stock. The two dividends on the common stock are payable July 10 to stockholders of record June 23, while the preferred dividend is payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 23.

Directors of the Macfadden Publications, Inc., declared an extra dividend of 5 per cent. on the capital stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 5 per cent., both dividends being payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 30.

Directors of the First National Bank here declared the regular quarterly dividend of 15 per cent. on the capital stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 30, and the directors of the Bank of New York and Trust Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent. on its stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record July 1.

Hudson's Bay Again Prospers.

According to advices from London, the Hudson's Bay Company, probably the oldest company in the world, declared a dividend of 5 per cent. on the ordinary shares, which, with the 5 per cent. bonus, makes a total distribution of 20 per cent. for the current fiscal year, against 17½ per cent. declared for the previous year. The company did not declare a "land dividend."

The following corporations yesterday announced the declaration of the regular dividends due at this time of the year:

Borg & Beck Company, 50 cents quarterly, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 20; British American Oil Company, 50 cents quarterly, payable July 2, to stockholders of record June 21; Brunswick-Balke-Collender 1¾ per cent. quarterly on the preferred stock, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 20; Burns Brothers, 1¾ per cent. quarterly on the preferred stock, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 20, and 1¾ per cent. quarterly on the prior preference stock, payable Aug. 1, to stockholders of record July 15; Canadian Locomotive 1 per cent. quarterly on the common stock and 1¾ per cent. quarterly on the preferred.

Chandler Motors Car Company $1.50 a share quarterly, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 20; Chicago & Northwestern Railway, $2 semi-annually on the common stock and $3.50 semi-annually on the preferred, both payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 15; Daniel Boone Woolen Mills, 75 cents quarterly, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 24; Electric Storage Battery, $1 quarterly, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 20; Elliott-Fisher, $1 quarterly, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 16, and $1.75 a sare on the pre-Company, 1½ per cent. quarterly, payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 27; Manhattan Railway, $1, payable July 1, and 15 cents on account of accumulated dividends payable the same date.

Famous Players-Lasky.

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, $2 quarterly on the preferred stock payable Aug. 1, to stockholders of record July 15; Gulf Oil Corporation 37½ cents a share on the capital stock payable June 20, to stockholders of record June 16; International Telephone and Telegraph Company, 1½ per cent. quarterly, payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 27; Manhattan Railway, $1, payable July 1, and 15 cents on account of accumulated dividends payable the same date. Northwestern Yeast Company, 3 per cent. quarterly, payable June 16, to stockholders of record June 12; Panama Power and Light, 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 14; Pennsylvania Edison $2 quarterly on the preferred stock payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20; Singer Manufacturing Company, $1.75 quarterly, payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 10; Tide Water Oil Co., $1 quarterly, payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 20; United Fruit, $2.50 quarterly, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 6; Utah Idaho Sugar, 1¾ per cent. on the preferred payable June 30; Western Pacific $1.50 quarterly on the preferred, payable July 2 and Western Union Telegraph, 1¾ per cent. quarterly payable July 15, to stockholders of record June 25.

Suger Up ¼ Cent a Pound.

A firmer tone prevailed in the markets for refined and raw sugar yesterday. An advance of one-quarter of a cent a pound to 6.65 cents a pound for fine granulated was made by the American Sugar Refining Company, National Sugar Refining Company, Warner Sugar Refining Company and E. Atkins & Co. Arbuckle Brothers are quoting 6.50 cents a pound.

FINDS $400,000,000 HOARDED IN NATION

Treasury Official Says There Are 8,000 Misers With $44,000,000 Hidden Away.

Estimates by Joseph S. McCoy Put Farmers Next, With $125,000,000 Kept in Homes.

Hoarded money in the United States amounts to more than $400,000,000, and there are 8,000 hoarders that can be classed as misers, with $44,000,000 hidden away, according to estimates prepared by Joseph S. McCoy, United States Treasury Actuary, for the current issue of the American Bankers Association Journal.

"Those who withhold money from circulation are children, who save in the toy banks; foreigners, who are afraid to trust their savings out of their possession; dwellers in rural districts, who, from their isolation and distrust, retain possession of their earnings, and genuine misers, who want immediate and continuous possession of their treasure for the pleasure it gives them to see and gloat over it," says Mr. McCoy. "The Treasury issues a statement showing the total stock of money supposedly in existence. Evidently the Treasury may be confused by the amount hoarded. It is impossible to ascertain with any great degree of accuracy this amount. In arriving approximately at it, we can only base the estimate upon the number of persons likely, together with their ability, to hoard.

"The number of persons of foreign birth in the United States is about 15,000,000. Some 6,000,000 of these are wage earners. These are much more frugal than are our native population. It is fair to say that of these 2,000,000 hoard their savings. One-half save 50 cents per week and have been doing this for an average of about three years. This would total about $75,000,000. The other half would average about twice this amount, or $150,000,000; a total, as the hoard of our foreign element, of $225,000,000.

"In addition our rural population, especially those in remote districts, are addicted to hoarding. This is evident from the fact that when a bank is started in such locality, as soon as its advantages are understood, personal deposits increase, made up largely from former deposits in the old stocking. In 1920 about one-fourth of those engaged in gainful occupations were on the farms. It is fair then to estimate the savings of these at one-fourth of the total savings. The increase in deposits in savings institutions was about $1,000,000,000; of this $250,000,000 was deposited probably by farmers. In addition, we may assume that a sum equal to only one-half of this amount was hoarded by farmers; that is, a total of about $125,000,000.

"In addition to our foreign-born and rural population, we have yet to consider the miser, and the provident person who keeps cash on hand with which to meet an emergency. Probably about 8,000 are genuine misers. A total hoard of $5,500 each is a fair estimate. This gives a total of some $44,000,000. There are some 500,000 persons in the United States who keep a certain cash amount on hand for emergencies. Say that this average $75, we have $37,500,000 representing this form of hoarding. The children's toy banks represent a trifling amount. Probably 2,500,000 have such toy banks. The average amounts contained therein is not in excess of say 60 cents, or a total of $1,500,000."

5,000 MORE MINERS STRIKE.

10,000 Are Now Out in Pittston Coal Field, Alleging Pay Cut.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 10.—The number of employes of the Pennsylvania Coal Company on strike in the Pittston district was increased to 10,000 today when 5,000 men quit work, alleging that their wages had been reduced. Last week a strike of 5,000 employes of the same company went into effect because of a similar protest.

The 10,000 miners struck without the sanction of the district union. The General Grievance Committee of the company met last night and voted to tie up all collieries of the company today. The strike is 100 per cent. effective.

ABE GHARLOF, President.

MANHATTAN RENT PAID AT 4% RATE

Interborough Directors Base It on Earnings of the Previous Quarter.

EXPLAINED BY HEDLEY

April Balance of Subway and Elevated Lines Combined Was $461,163.

The Directors of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company directed yesterday the payment on July 1 of the rent of the Manhattan elevated railroads for the quarter ending June 30 at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on the stock of the Manhattan company, Frank Hedley, President and General Manager, said the payment was based on the earnings of the previous quarter in accordance with the requirements of the readjustment agreement of 1922.

"On July 1, 1923, the rental was not paid in full at the 8 per cent. rate agreed upon for last year, because estimates made at the time indicated that it would not be earned to the extent of 15 cents per share of stock," Mr. Hedley explained. "The exact earnings now having been ascertained to have been at the 3 per cent. rate, the Board of Directors directed payment on July 1 next of this amount in addition to the regular quarterly rental above mentioned (one-fourth of 4 per cent.), thus making a total of $1.15 a share of Manhattan stock.

"On Jan. 1, 1924, the rental for the quarter then just ended was deferred, because the earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1923 (which was the measure provided by the agreement) showed a deficit and an estimate for the remainder of the year did not seem to warrant the belief that the year would show earnings at the rate of 4 per cent. This deferred rental has been given careful consideration by the Directors, and they have concluded that in view of the increase in taxes and contingent liabilities it is more prudent to await the ascertainment of the exact facts as to the earnings for the year ending June 30 next, than to base any action upon estimates at this time. Definite action will be taken, however, in time to permit the payment on Oct. 1 next of the deferred quarter's rental or such part as may be found to have been actually earned in case the earnings for the year shall not equal 4 per cent. upon the Manhattan stock."

The Interborough made public its earnings for April, showing for the subway and elevated combined a balance of $461,163, whereas for the ten months there was a deficit of $270,917, with the Manhattan rent accrued for that period at the rate of 4 per cent. The figures for May are not yet available.

1924 STATE CROP IS CUT.

10 Per Cent. Lower Than 1923 and Worst Since 1903, Experts Say.

ALBANY, June 10.—The condition of the crop in New York State is the poorest since 1908, according to estimates of the New York State Department of Farms and Markets and the United States Department of Agriculture. There has also been a decline in acreage of 10 per cent. compared with last year.

Growing conditions forecast a crop of 23,090,000 bushels on the 915,000 acres sown if conditions are averaged during the remainder of the season, the report stated, and adds that increased barley acreage will make up part of the decrease in oats.

Cold weather and wet ground during May made most of the sowing very late, and in many cases damaged early sown oats, according to the estimates.

Pork Values Lowest Since February

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Hog values broke ten to fifteen cents, to an average of $7.05, the lowest since last February, with a late top of $7.30. There was a total supply of 48,000, including carryover which proved materially in excess of the demand. Beef steers generally sold at unchanged prices but demand was slow. Top steers were $11.50 and best yearlings, $11. Eastern dressed beef markets were slow and easy. Lambs advanced 25 cents with top Idahos $17.25, with best natives at $17.15. Hogs steady to strong. Receipts so far this week 16,500 against 29,000 last week.

SEES ONLY ONE WAY TO DODGE TAXES NOW

CONGRESS SAVED THEM

Defeated Treasury Proposal That Non-Business Deductions Be Limited by Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—With one exception the new Revenue law which President Coolidge signed on June 2 closes all known methods of technical tax avoidance under the law, in the opinion of high officials of the Treasury Department.

This fact was developed by a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES this afternoon from Acting Secretary of the Treasury Garrard B. Winston, in charge of fiscal offices, who is acting head of the Treasury in the absence of Secretary Mellon at the National Convention in Cleveland.

In a statement explanatory of his attitude toward the revenue bill when he signed it, President Coolidge stated that the experience of the few years during which the high surtaxes had been in effect showed the increasing failure of these taxes as a source of revenue. He said:

"There are many means of escaping the tax, and with the settlement of conditions abroad we may anticipate the movement of capital from this country to other parts of the world where income is not penalized. Ways will always be found to avoid taxation inherently excessive."

Tells of Ruses to Escape Tax.

Acting Secretary Winston was asked what are some of the other ways of escaping the surtax than investing in tax-exempt securities, a question which some of the leaders at the Capital who were actively identified with the enactment of revenue legislation professed to be unable to answer. Mr. Winston explained that the subject was highly technical and complicated, but that the principle of legal avoidance of high taxation was generally the same in most instances, although there were numerous variations in its application.

In his interview Mr. Winston said:

"The Treasury has no information of new undisclosed technical methods of avoiding new income tax.

"A revenue bill must be drawn so as to produce revenue and at the same time not unduly hamper the industrial development of the country. To draw a bill which would make substantially impossible the lawful avoidance of taxes would without question bring with it such economic harm as to destroy the source from which the taxes were to be taken.

"An example of what is meant was the Jones amendment to tax undistributed surplus of corporations. The purpose of this amendment was to compel a corporation to distribute more surplus than sound business principles justified, and the result ultimately must have been so to weaken the corporation that in the next depression it would go bankrupt, having no fat on which to live in the lean years.

"A revenue bill must, therefore, recognize the legitimate needs of business and not attempt to force uneconomic methods on industry in order for a year or so to get a higher revenue from taxation.

"The Revenue act of 1924, with one exception, closes all known methods of technical tax avoidance under the law. The exception was the failure to adopt the recommendation limiting deductions for non-business interest to the amount that such interest exceeded the tax-exempt income of the taxpayer. There are, however, certain fundamental principles involved in any income tax law which provide ways by which a tax can be avoided. Any method which prevents the taxpayer from realizing a taxable income accomplishes this purpose. For example, a man with $2,000,000 of principal could put $1,000,000 in non-income-producing property which would increase in value, say, $50,000 a year.

Says High Tax Means Tax Evasions.

"If his other million was invested in bonds yielding him $50,000 a year, he would be taxed only on $50,000 of income, although he could spend that $50,000 plus $50,000 of his bonds and still have at the end of the year the original principal of $2,000,000.

"As another example, a taxpayer could organize a corporation in some foreign country which would invest and reinvest abroad, declaring no dividends. The taxpayer would receive no income from the corporation and the corporation could not be reached by this country because not in this country.

"Frequently, of course, taxpayers will not make improvements to their properties which would increase the income therefrom because the Government takes such a large proportion and none of the risk. The properties are, therefore, left unimproved and allowed to accumulate the increases in value usual in well selected properties in this country.

"Based on the principle that the individual taxpayer must in some way avoid realizing a taxable income and considering the possibilities of corporate organization under the laws of forty-eight States, means of avoidance will probably always be found.

"The whole question is one of relative inconvenience. If the tax is high the taxpayer will go to a great deal of inconvenience to avoid the tax. If the tax is low, it is more convenient to pay the tax than to go to all this bother."

Acting Secretary Winston's statement that the Revenue act of 1924, with one exception, closes all known methods of technical tax avoidance under the law, and that the exception was to be found in the failure to adopt the proposal of the Treasury limiting deductions for non-business interest to the amount that such interest exceeded the tax-exempt income of the payer, bore reference to the defeat in Congress of the paragraph which the Treasury was very anxious to have enacted as part of Section 214.

This administrative feature read:

"The amount of the deduction provided for in Paragraph (2) of sub-division (a), unless the interest is upon indebtedness paid or incurred in carrying on a trade or business, and the amount of the deduction provided for in Paragraph (5) of sub-division (a) shall be allowed as deductions only if and to the extent that the sum of such amounts exceeds the amount of interest on obligations or securities, the interest upon which is wholly exempt from taxation under this title."

The provision was sponsored by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania and in the Senate it went in and out of the bill several times. It was stricken out when considered by the Senate in Committee of the Whole by 37 to 36 and was restored in the Senate by 45 to 40, but was not incorporated in the bill in its final conference form as approved by both houses and sent to the President. The Treasury regarded this as a most important administrative provision, and many of the Democrats took the view that it was an attempt to levy upon tax free securities issued by the States.

Resumes Ship Board Investigation.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The first of a dozen or more investigations to be conducted during the recess of Congress, went under way today with the resumption of hearings by the House Committee investigating the Shipping Board. There will be practically no let up in the committee's deliberations during the Summer and Fall, including its six weeks' inquiry in Europe in July and August.

PROVIDE FOR REFORM IN FOREIGN SERVICE

Orders by President and Hughes Put the Rogers Act Into Effect.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The machinery for putting into effect the provisions of the Rogers act reorganizing and consolidating the foreign service of the State Department is provided for in an executive order by President Coolidge and two departmental orders by Secretary Hughes made public at the State Department this evening.

The President's executive order provides for the setting up of a foreign service personnel board, with an executive committee and a board of examiners, and of a foreign service school, the purpose of which is to prepare the personnel for duties in the foreign service.

The personnel board is to be composed of the Under Secretary of State, as Chairman; an Assistant Secretary of State, to be designated by the Secretary of State; the Director of the Consular Service, who after July 1 is to have the title of Assistant Secretary of State, and the members of the Executive Committee of the foreign service personnel board.

Duties of the Personnel Board.

This board will examine the character, ability, efficiency, experience and general availability of all members of the foreign service personnel and submit, before July 1 to the Secretary of State such information as he may require concerning their records.

As vacancies arise the Personnel Board will submit to the Secretary of State lists of foreign service officials whose records entitle them to advancement and the names of all officials and employes of the State Department who after five years of continuous service are recommended for transfer to the foreign service.

The board will also submit names of foreign service officials believed to have demonstrated capacity for promotion to the grade of Minister or to the grade of counselor of embassy or legation, as well as recommendations for transfer of any office in the service. The board is also charged with the duty of considering controversies and delinquencies and recommending appropriate disciplinary measures.

The Executive Committee of the Foreign Service Personnel Board is to be composed of a chairman and two other members who shall be foreign service officials of high rank, representing both the diplomatic and consular branches of the service. The chief of the Appointment Bureau of the Personnel Board with the approval of the Secretary of State, who is authorized to prescribe the duties of this committee.

Make-Up of Board of Examiners.

The Board of Examiners is to be composed of the Under-Secretary of State, an Assistant Secretary of State, the Director of the Consular Service, the Chairman of the Active Committee of the Foreign Service Personnel Board and the Chief Examiner of the Civil Service Commission or some one designated by him. The Board of Examiners will formulate rules and hold examinations of applicants for commissions in the Foreign Service and determine from among the persons designated by the President for examination those who are fitted for appointment.

Examinations are to be in subjects regarded as necessary to the work and will be both written and oral. No one is to be certified as eligible who is less than 21 or more than 35 years of age, or who is not a citizen of the United States and of proper character and habits for the appointment.

The foreign service school is to be established under the direction of a foreign service school board, composed of the Under Secretary of State, an Assistant Secretary of State, the Director of the Consular Service, the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Foreign Service Personnel Board and the chief instructor of the school.

The chief instructor will be selected by the other members of the school board from among officials of the foreign service, with the approval of the Secretary of State. Other instructors are to be selected from among the officials of the Department of State, the foreign service, the other executive departments of the Government and other avauable sources at the discretion of the school board.

Term of Instruction a Year.

The term of instruction in the school is one year, which will be considered a period of probation during which the new appointees are to be judged as to their qualifications for advancement and assignment to duty.

Under the terms of the President's executive order, the following regulations are operative:

1. Vacancies in all classes from 1 to 9 shall be filled by promotion from lower classes, based upon ability and efficiency as shown in the service.

2. All admission to the service shall be to the grade of foreign service official unclassified.

3. Officials and employes, after five years of continuous service in the State Department, are eligible for appointment by transfer to any class in the foreign service on the recommendation of the foreign service personnel board and with the approval of the Secretary of State.

The two department orders issued by Secretary Hughes prescribe the duties of the executive of the Foreign Service Personnel Board and state the regulations governing the Foreign Service School.

The Executive Committee is charged with the duty of keeping and consolidating all records and material relating to the personnel, keeping efficiency records, submitting to the Personnel Board recommendations for assignment of officials to posts and their transfer from one branch of the service to another and is required to recommend the granting of leaves of absence, to interview applicants for the service, to recommend the appointment of applicants to subordinate posts and to maintain contact with foreign service officials and employes while the latter are on visits to the United States. All personnel records are to be held strictly confidential and revealed only to the Secretary of State, members of the Personnel Board and the Board of Review.

At least once a year, the personnel records are to be examined impartially by a Board of Review and a report rendered. The Board of Review is to be composed of five members, of whom the Chairman of the Executive Committee is to be Chairman.

Duties of Chief Instructor.

The departmental order respecting the Foreign Service School provides for the selection of the chief instructor from among foreign service officials of Class 5 or over. His duty is to submit complete schedules of work to be covered during the term of instruction, to select instructors, to maintain the discipline of the school and bear the responsibility for it, to keep a record of attendance and make an impartial rating of all attendants, and to make reports on the work of the school.

Officials of the State Department believe the machinery thus provided is admirably calculated to carry out in the most efficient manner the intention of the Rogers bill.

Tax Suit in $1,500,000 Estate.

Surrogate O'Brien reserved decision yesterday on the question of whether the $1,500,000 estate of the late Mrs. Julia Seligman is subject to the transfer tax. Mrs. Seligman had a town house at 11 East Sixty-ninth Street and a country home at Deal, N. J., where she spent the greater part of each year. Counsel for the executors told the Surrogate that on her income tax return Mrs. Seligman had declared herself a resident of New Jersey.

COOLIDGE PUSHES BONUS PAYMENTS

Gives Instructions to Be Ready for Cash Disbursements by Jan. 1.

2,500 CLERKS ARE READY

War Department Will Assume Administration Expenses Pending Appropriations by Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—President Coolidge is making plans to put the Bonus act into effect notwithstanding the defeat of the Second Deficiency bill on the last day of Congress. This announcement was made at the White House today as the explanation of a series of conferences which the President held yesterday and today with General Lord, Director of the Budget; Assistant Secretary Davis of the War Department, and other subordinates.

All the necessary machinery of the Government will be employed for the bonus and other administrative activities for which funds were carried in the defeated measure. The President instructed the Budget Bureau and the War Department to proceed with all haste within the law to get ready for the payment of the cash by the first of the year.

Arrangements have been made for the use of unappropriated balances of the War Department, Assistant Secretary Davis announced, for the purpose of continuing the task of administering the bonus until July 1. After that time certain appropriations will be utilized for defraying expenses until Jan. 1. It is confidently expected that by that time Congress will provide the money necessary.

Adjt. Gen. Davis has worked out plans for handling the work, one of the biggest administrative tasks since the selective draft at the outset of the war. By the end of this week he hopes to be able to increase his clerical force. Plans are being made to handle applications at the rate of 30,000 a day at the outset and later at the rate of 60,000 a day.

A force of 2,500 clerks will be necessary for investigating the applications, passing upon their validity and otherwise preparing them for the Veterans' Bureau. The Civil Service Commission will be asked to supply the personnel.

Fortunately for the bonus plans, the appropriations for clerical forces in the War Department were made in a lump sum. This will make it possible to utilize the appropriations for taking care of the personnel. The Attorney General's office was consulted with regard to the legality of proceedings deemed necessary, as there was some doubt as to the regularity of the proposed step.

Some officials privately criticized the action of Senator Pittman of Nevada, who conducted a filibuster, because certain items he desired for reclamation work were not included in the Second Deficiency bill.

Estimates are that approximately $2,000,000 will be required to pay the expenses of the bonus administration up to next January. It will be necessary, it was said, to purchase some office furniture and to rent additional quarters in which the extra personnel may work. Part of the needs can be cared for with the surplus equipment in the possession of the War Department.

While the War Department is making plans for handling its share of the bonus the Navy Department is making similar preparations, although naturally on a somewhat smaller scale.

The need for funds will not be felt so heavily in the Veterans Bureau as in the War and Navy Departments, as the bulk of the work will reach the bureau much later.

President Coolidge also is making plans for taking care of other activities that would have been provided for in the Deficiency bill. He is determined that there shall be no extra session if it can be possibly avoided.

WHEAT AND STOCKS HELP LIFT COTTON

Uncertainty Over Mid-Monthly Figures From Private Sources Induces Covering Demand.

SPOT PRICES UNCHANGED

Less Selling Pressure Than in Previous Session Brings Gain in General List of 2 to 24 Points.

A sharp advance in wheat and a stronger stock market influenced cotton yesterday. The tenor of the Government report on progress of various crops this Spring served to emphasize difficulties surrounding cotton and the actual recovery which has occurred the past fifteen days. Half the interval between May 25 and June 25 has passed and uncertainty over mid-monthly figures from private sources caused more covering demand. Several stations showed heavy rainfall and while liquidation of the July position operated toward reducing the premium over October, there was less selling pressure than during the previous session and prices gained 2 to 24 points. For the first time this season, New York and the ten principal Southern markets all reported unchanged spot quotations for the day.

As there had been a decline of three-quarters of a cent on this side while Liverpool closed, more than the usual interest prevailed in the course of prices at the reopening there yesterday. After a 35-point early loss, the tone steadied at a recovery of 10 English points prior to the local opening. This steadiness combined with heavier rainfall in the cotton belt than either of the two previous days served to start a recovery in both New York and New Orleans. Though initial quotations proved only slightly above Monday's closing, the covering of contracts increased as the morning advanced. Shorts were reported at so many points that selling pressure diminished, and it was not until prices had recovered about $2 a bale that the market ran into a larger supply of contracts at 28 cents for July, liquidation of that position became a most unsettling factor. New Orleans interests sold July here and outside liquidation cut the premium to 220 points over October, narrowest differences since the movement began.

The final report on production and distribution of cotton for the year ended July 31, 1923, has been issued by the Department of Commerce. Owing to the fact that accuracy of census figures on stocks remaining at the beginning of the current season had been called into question, a special committee was appointed on March 24, 1924, to examine the returns. The committee reports an aggregate supply for the year of 15,186,000 bales and a total distribution of 13,536,000. The excess of reported distribution over reported supply is placed at 356,000 bales. The committee states its conclusions in the following words:

"The important point is not to bring this discrepancy between the figures of supply and distribution into relief. The committee, therefore, recommends that in future statements of the Census Bureau no attempt be made to balance figures of supply and distribution. The Census Bureau should issue figures which are the result of enumerations, avoiding estimates."

Vigorous Upswing in Values of Cash Grains—Sugar Higher, Firmness Elsewhere.

A sharp forward movement in the contract market for the grains yesterday resulted in a series of robust gains for the cash staples, some of which touched new high points for the year. Wheat advanced 3¾ cents, to $1.25½; corn moved up 1½ cent, to $1; oats gained 1 cent, to 61 cents, both new levels for the year, while flour rose 10 points, to 6.60 cents, matching the year's previous best price touched on Feb. 5. Sugar refiners generally marked up this staple to 6.65 cents, an improvement of ¼ cent, while eggs and lard revealed higher values. Other provisions, metals and textiles were unchanged.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Tuesday, a week before and a year ago:

Troy Sunday Budget Is Sold.

TROY, N. Y., June 10.—The sale of The Troy Sunday Budget to Joseph J. Murphy, Democratic leader of Rensselaer County, by Thomas F. Curry and Albert A. MacNaughton, was announced today. The paper had been a Republican standard-bearer for fifty years, but will now support Democratic policies.

WHEAT GOES UP FOUR TO FIVE CENTS

Prices of Corn, Oats and Rye Also Rise as Market Broadens.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The something needed to jar the grain markets out of the rut in which they have been for some months was found in the Government report on wheat given to the trade after the close on Monday. A material broadening in the speculative interest followed the issuance of the most sensational showing in years, and the finish was at the top with net gains of 4 to 4¾ cents on wheat, while corn was up 1⅝ to 2⅝ cents, oats 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents and rye 2⅛ to 2¾ cents. Opening sales of wheat were 1¾ to 4½ cents higher. It was a market such as bulls have been dreaming of for a long time and it came when only a few of the leading operators had anything bought. Many of the pit element were short and rushed to cover, some turning to the long side on the way up.

Foreigners were active buyers of futures here and at Winnipeg and there was also some buying by cash houses, with unconfirmed reports, after the close, that 640,000 bushels new-crop hard Winters had been sold at the Gulf. Exporters bid 9 cents over Chicago July for No. 2 hard for June-July loading during the day. Talk of a strong world's situation is regarded as having accentuated an already strong situation, and cables telling of drought in Southeastern Russia, with a practical crop failure expected, helped along the advance. As was natural, Winnipeg lagged and gained 2¼ to 2⅞ cents for the day, with July there only 1¼ cents over Chicago at the last.

Kansas detailed crop report showed declines ranging up to forty points in the condition in some counties during the past month. Heavy frost occurred late in May after the reports to trade statisticians had been mailed. This showed up in the Government report, as did further deterioration due to drought, fly and chinch bugs.

Primary arrivals today were 572,000 bushels; week ago, 483,000; last year, 568,000. Shipments were 370,000 bushels; week ago, 557,000; last year, 584,000.

Trade in corn and oats also broadened materially with commission house demand for December much more aggressive and it went to 5⅞ cents under September, against 10 cents recently. The late and unfavorable start of the crop is the main influence. All December deliveries of grain went to a new high for the season today, while July and September corn were within 2 cents of the top so far, and July oats within ¼ cent of the outside price on the crop. It is expected that the Kansas corn acreage will show an increase of 6 per cent. this year and will aggregate around 5,967,000 acres, against 5,629,000 acres in 1923, as shown by the Government report. Condition is 70 against 79 on June 16 last year. Replanting is still in progress.

Corn receipts today were 935,000 bushels; week ago, 861,000; last year, 501,000, and shipments, 1,113,000 bushels; week ago, 510,000; last year, 557,000.

FINDS CAMPS AID EMPLOYES' MORALE

Benefits of Military Training Shown by National Industrial Conference Survey.

EMPLOYERS IN SYMPATHY

Let Their Men Get Instruction and Continue Their Pay During Absence.

The Citizens' Military Training Camps have improved the morale of the young men who attend them, according to some employers whose views were obtained by the National Industrial Conference Board of 247 Park Avenue. In addition to benefits ascribed to the camps the board has found that employers in the territory covered by the survey were unanimous in permitting their men to attend them and that more than 75 per cent. of those consulted gave full pay for the time passed there.

The results of the survey were made known yesterday, forty-eight hours before the opening of the first of the camps, that of the Ninth Corps Area, San Francisco.

"The survey of the Conference Board centred mostly among the prominent business houses and banks in the vicinity of New York, although a few replies were received from the Middle West and Far West," the statement of the board declared.

"A number of concerns have stipulated that their men going to military camps should take the time off at their own expense, but the majority made no discrimination between these two classes of workers. Some of the firms approached employed only salaried men. Most of those covered in the survey have ruled that the military vacation should be in lieu of regular vacations, although a few give the customary vacation as well.

"The companies were divided in their opinions as to the benefits obtained from military training. The greater majority had not yet been able as yet to advise definitely what benefits they and their men have derived from it, largely because the proportion of those attending camps is too small to permit definite conclusions, and also because this plan of vacation for military purposes has been operative for a short period of years. A number feel, however, that the employe's morale has been definitely improved by this training, and for this reason both the employer and the employe would be benefited. A few concerns have noted good results in their employes as the result of military training, but have not been able to discern any benefits accruing to themselves."

BUSINESS NOTES.

David Nemerov of Russek's was chosen Chairman of the committee having charge of the Fall fashion show of Garment Retailers' Association at a meeting held yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria. A tentative list of about seventy-five manufacturers was drawn up, and from these the exhibitors at the fashion show will be chosen. The show takes place at the Hotel Commodore on July 22.

Alfred G. Kesahan, who recently resigned as Vice President of the Sonar-Phelps Company, will become associated with the Mallery Hat Company, beginning July 1. He will serve as manager of the local office and in an executive capacity as assistant to Frederick T. Joy, Vice President and general manager of the concern.

Clifford Whitehead and Adolph Mendel will open a specialized department store in New Haven tomorrow to be known as Whitehead's, Inc. Mr. Whitehead was formerly associated with Mendel & Harris for a period of years. Mr. Mendel has sold his entire holdings in that enterprise.

Burlap Shipments in May.

Shipments of burlap to Atlantic Coast ports during May were 78,000,000 yards, with Pacific arrivals 11,500,000 yards, making a total for the month of 89,500,000 yards, according to figures issued yesterday by C. H. Rockstroh & Co. In May, 1923, the total was 84,896,000 yards. For the first five months of this year, shipments amounted to 409,287,000 yards, as against 424,197,000 for the same period in 1923. The average monthly shipment this year was 81,585,000 yards, compared with 84,822,000 in 1923. Total shipments from Calcutta for May amounted to 116,500,000 yards, of which 37,000,000 yards went to the Argentine.

Use of Guimpe in Neckwear.

A new type of guimpe has been put on the women's neckwear market for use with the sleeveless jacket or one-piece frock. It is made of lace and net, with very short lace-edged sleeves. Attached to the front is a detachable belt panel which makes the new guimpe practical for wear either with a coat or the kind of dress that makes the front of it only partly visible. Fine silk braid, applied in loops for button fastenings and extending around the edge of the collar, is used for trimming a white silk guimpe that is very popular just now. Business in general lines of neckwear continues active.

New Type of Listening Devices.

One of the local department stores has recently installed a new method of letting prospective buyers of phonograph records listen to them before purchasing. It makes use of a device resembling a small ear trumpet, which is attached to a tube connecting with the machine that plays the record. The machine is under the counter, and to hear the record the customer merely raises the "trumpet" to his ear after the machine has been started. When not in use the "trumpet" stands upright in a kind of socket in the top of the counter. About a hundred of the devices have been installed, and they may be used simultaneously if required. They are said to do away with the need of sound-proof booths, with the resultant saving in valuable floor space, as well as to reduce damage to the machines that demonstrate the records. They also reduce the amount of record breakage.

Voile Underwear to Repeat.

Voile underwear, which has been among the season's best sellers, has not only proved its staying power as a mid-Summer feature, but has undergone a change of style. The early models were almost exclusively tailored. Many garments still show bound edges and other tailored details, but according to a bulletin from the United Underwear League of America, manufacturers have also found it profitable to work this material up in transitional models that are close limitations of the higher-priced georgette garments. "Val." lace is favored for this trimming. The colors lean toward bright yellow and tomato red, with a plentiful showing of flesh tints.

***

Silk Association Favors Rayon.

Announcement was made yesterday that the results of the recent questionnaire indicate that a majority of the Board of Managers of the Silk Association of America approves "rayon" as the new name for artificial silk. This rescinds the former action of the Silk Association accepting "glos" as the designation for the product. The National Retail Dry Goods Association has also recommended the use of "rayon," and it is expected that following the action announced yesterday immediate steps will be taken to carry out a campaign to familiarise consumers with the term. There is, however, a considerable body of opinion which continues to favor artificial silk as the sole name, particularly in the knit goods trades.

The Straw Hat Situation.

So far, the straw hat turnover this season has been very much of a disappointment. The large retail distributers, for example, are understood to be seriously behind in the volume of business up to the present compared with the same time last year. And last season was not a particularly good one, as the same deterring factor of the weather was also operative. Contrary to belief, the lightweight felt, it is said, is not benefiting to any great extent by the dullness in the straw hat situation. Manufacturers are now giving their attention to the 1925 lines and, despite the slowness this season, the salesmen are scheduled to go out at the usual time in early July. Prices, it was said yesterday, will be on about the same level as for this year.

Furnishings Wholesalers Meet.

Howard G. Law of the Cooper Underwear Company was elected President of the National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association at its annual meeting held yesterday at the Aldine Club, succeeding W. K. Meyer. In his acceptance Mr. Law outlined plans for the association during the next year. These include the appointment of a committee to shape the policies and operations of the credit-reporting department, improvement of the collection service, the furnishing of legal advice and the further establishment of the budget system of buying by retailers. The latter, he said, will change hand-to-mouth buying to hand-to-mouth shipments based on the retailer knowing what he needs in advance. J. G. Gage of the Hickey-Freeman Company and W. C. Morgan of Cluett, Peabody & Co. were elected Vice Presidents. Willard B. Stevens was chosen Secretary and Treasurer, both offices being combined. Mr. Stevens urged that the manufacturers of the desired trade-marked merchandise use the weapon of not selling anything, even for cash, to those guilty of fraudulent failures.

Look for Lower Toy Prices.

That dealers in toys, more particularly the retailers, have still to buy a good portion of their needs for the holiday season is attributed to the fact that many of them found prices too high for their liking when they were in this market several months ago. While a nice business was done in the aggregate at that time, many of the manufacturers who had displays here did not sell as much as is normally the case. This is said to be especially true of makers of dolls and wheel goods, on which prices were found high. From all accounts, with the result that quite a good deal of business has yet to be placed on these classes of goods. It is understood that buyers will find prices more to their liking when they come into the market to supply the remainder of their needs.

Gray Goods Again Dull.

Trading in gray goods continued limited in this market yesterday, with second hands doing the bulk of the business. The best that buyers of print-cloths could do on 38½-inch 64-60s was 9 cents, with 10¼ cents reported on 39-inch 68-72s. Reports were current of trading in the latter construction, however, at 10 cents. For 38½-inch 60-48s buyers paid 7⅞ cents, and they also paid 7¼ and 6 cents, respectively, to second hands for 38½-inch 48-squares and 44-40s. Among the sheeting sales of the day were 37-inch 48-square four-yards at 10½ cents and 36-inch 5-yards at 8⅝ cents. For 37-inch 3.95-yard drills buyers paid 10¼ cents. Sales of 72-80 pajama checks were reported at 11 cents.

Tailored Trend in Fall Gloves.

As tailored effects will predominate in women's apparel for Fall, the Style Committee of the National Association of Leather Glove and Mitten Manufacturers recommended to the convention of manufacturers at Gloversville, N. Y., that proper attention be given this trend in the preparation of lines for next season. The loosely fitting type of gloves, known in the trade as "manlee" models, is designated as the style which meets the demands of a tailored mode. These gloves are of buckskin, cape or mocha leather with heavy P.I.X-seam stitching. They are made in one-button, single-clasp, clipon-shirre wrist or strap-wrist styles. It is planned to carry on a cooperative advertising campaign which will feature the "manlee" styles. The convention had its closing sessions yesterday.

Nations to Fix Cotton Standards.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—European and American cotton experts will meet here Monday at the invitation of the Department of Agriculture to prepare a limited number of "key" sets of the universal cotton standards for use in deciding all disputes. One set will be placed in reserve in the vaults of the Bank of England and another in vaults here. Each European cotton exchange maintaining an arbitration board will retain a "key" set, as will exchanges at the ten designated spot markets and the principal arbitration committees in this country, and the Cotton Exchange. Representatives of the European exchanges will include Liverpool, Manchester and Bremen.

$38,000 IN CHECKS FOUND ON ACCUSED

One for John D. Rockefeller Jr. for $36,700 From Mrs. Prentice in the Collection.

STOLEN FROM A MAIL BOX

Man Arrested as a Vagrant While Asleep in Empty House Admits Thefts, Police Say.

When David Foster, 32 years old, was arrested in Flatbush as a vagrant late Saturday night he had in his pockets thirty-four checks, totaling $38,000, it was made known yesterday. One of the checks, drawn on the Bankers Trust Company by Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice, is for $36,700 and is payable to John D. Rockefeller Jr., her brother. Another made out by Mrs. Prentice to Mr. Rockefeller is for $270. They were dated May 23, 1923.

Foster, according to Postal Inspector W. Cluth Jr., confessed taking letters containing the checks from a mail collecting box at the Prentice home, 5 West Fifty-third Street. He never tried to cash them, the inspector said, because the amounts were too large.

The other checks were for small amounts. Two were drawn on the National City Bank and are payable to William Malone of 122 West Forty-ninth Street. They were made out by the Consolidated Gas Company.

Detectives of the Parkville Station in Brooklyn and postal inspectors communicated with Mr. Malone, who said he had been expecting the checks from the gas company and had reported his failure to receive them.

Foster was arrested when Patrolman John Maxwell found him asleep in an empty house at 1,067 East Nineteenth Street. He was arraigned on the vagrancy charge before Magistrate Brown in the Flatbush Court on Sunday and will have a hearing this morning.

HOLD MISSING MESSENGER.

Man Who Left With $42,000 in Securities Arrested in Louisiana.

William Lebish, formerly a messenger for Minsch, Monell & Co., a brokerage firm at 115 Broadway, who disappeared on June 2 with $42,000 in securities belonging to his employers, got in telephonic communication yesterday with the brokerage firm from Morgan City, La., and soon after was arrested by the Chief of Police there and held for the New York authorities.

Lebish had been living at 149 Broome employed by the firm three weeks when he was sent to a bank with a certified check for the securities, which had been left as collateral for a loan. When he did not return within an hour the police were notified.

Lebish had been living at 149 Broome Street with a young woman he introduced as his wife up to the day before he obtained employment at the brokerage office, but both he and the young woman dropped out of sight after he left the bank with the securities. Apparently Lebish did not discover that the securities were not negotiable until he reached Morgan City, according to the police, who say that when he found he could not dispose of them he called up the brokerage firm and proposed that, if the firm would wire him his traveling expenses, he would return immediately with the securities.

Inspector Coughlin telegraphed to the Chief of Police of Morgan City to arrest Lebish. Later word of the arrest was received. The message said that Lebish declared he had been kidnapped by some men after he left the bank.

Two detectives will be sent to Morgan City for Lebish as soon as extradition papers can be arranged.

BOTTLE MESSAGE FOUND.

Police Are Unable to Trace Persons Drowned According to a Note.

"Good-bye, Mr. Bebbe. Your wife and I went to the bottom of Ambrose Channel. ROYAL WEIR."

That was the message found in a corked bottle yesterday afternoon on the beach near the Merritt-Chapman dock at Rosebank, S. I., and turned over to the police. The writing was in a big round hand and apparently had not been written very many days ago. The message was in ink and upon a piece of paper such as might have been used to wrap cigarettes.

There was a postscript which read, "Notify Tottenville," and then followed some letters which were not distinguishable to the police, but which looked like "parentec."

Detective Sergeant Graham said he had not been able to ascertain that any of the persons mentioned in the message were known in Tottenville, and he says also there are no persons with those names missing from Staten Island.

3 CLERKS WOUND WITH SILK.

Arrested as They Leave Work on Suspicion of $4,000 Thefts.

Three $16-a-week clerks were arrested yesterday as they left the wholesale branch establishment of Lane Bryant, Inc., at 529 West Forty-second Street, on suspicion that they had looted it of $4,000 worth of materials and dresses in the two months they have worked there. They were held in the West Side Court in bail of $2,000 each for examination Friday. The prisoner were Julius Shapiro of 37 Leonard Street, Brooklyn; Lawrence Siegel, 854 Hewitt Place, Brooklyn, and Abraham Greenfield, 271 Broome Street. Peter Misha of 226 Second Street, was arrested later on a charge of receiving stolen goods. He was arraigned in Jefferson Market Court.

The police said that the three clerks had seventy-four yards of silk worth $125 wrapped around their bodies when they were arrested.

NEW SUIT BY PRINCESS.

Sister's Statements in Alienation Case Said to Be the Basis.

Papers in a new suit for $100,000 were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Princess Elaine de Lippi-Lipsky against her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Schroeder. No complaint has been drawn, but it was said that the action grows out of statements made by Mrs. Schroeder in her application to set aside a $100,000 default judgment obtained against her by her sister in a suit for the alleged alienation of the affections of Prince Nicholas de Lippi-Lipsky. Mrs. Schroeder's plea was granted on condition that she pays costs to date.

Policewoman Honor Mrs. Sullivan.

Mrs. Mary A. Sullivan, President of the Policewomen's Benevolent Association, received a gold locket yesterday from the members in appreciation of her work. The presentation was made at a luncheon at the Hotel Astor. The locket bore a miniature reproduction of the police shield of New York, with a small diamond at the base.

BUILDING SURVEY.

New York City Continues to Lead the Rest of the Nation.

New York City continues to lead the rest of the nation in building activities, according to the national monthly building survey of S. W. Straus & Co. made public yesterday. Plans filed in the five boroughs in May amounted to $86,377,437, a gain of 64 per cent. over the same month in 1923.

Building permits issued throughout the country in May were of larger volume than for any previous May. The 226 leading cities and towns reported $382,000,000 permits issued in May, as compared with $307,000,000 in May, 1923, a gain of 8 per cent. New York City gained $25,000,000. The twenty-five most important cities reported gains of $29,000,000, or 16 per cent., over May, 1923, and $44,000,000, or 26 per cent., over May, 1922, thus showing that building operations in the larger cities of the country are still greatly in excess of any previous period.

The survey shows a general decline in building operations in the smaller cities and towns. The Far Western group of States showed declines of more than 25 per cent. The South and Central States reported substantially the same volume of permits as in May last year, while the Eastern States gained 30 per cent. Detroit, Washington, Seattle, Cincinnati, Dallas, St. Paul, Baltimore, Hartford and Newark reported substantial gains.

Further softening during May in the cost of some building material was reported, but no general tendency was shown toward any reduction in the cost of building labor.

MORTGAGE LOANS PLACED.

Building Loan of $500,000 on West Side Project.

Slawson & Hobbs have placed for the 905 West End Avenue Corporation (Joseph Paterno, President) a building and permanent loan in the amount of $500,000 at 6 per cent. and 5½ per cent. for a period of ten years on their property 332-338 West Eighty-sixth Street. The plot, size 80 by 102.2, is now being improved with a fifteen-story apartment.

Quinlan & Leland have placed a first mortgage loan of $165,000 on the new five-and-one-half-story apartment building at 990 Bronx Park South, southwest corner of Bryant Avenue, for the Galveston Building Company (Philip Hershowsky, President).

James Boyd has placed a first mortgage of $210,000 at 5½ per cent. for five years for the Zazera Realty Corporation on the six-story elevator apartment located at 70-78 Lenox Avenue, southeast corner of 114th Street. He recently placed $217,000 on the northeast corner of 113th Street. The combined properties, which are known as the Hudson Fulton, accommodate 116 families, also twelve stores on the ground floor, and are valued at over $1,000,000.

Dowdney & Richart have arranged for the Vinjoe Realty Company, Inc., a building and permanent loan of $50,000 on the premises, east side of Bainbridge Avenue, seventy-five feet north of 208th Street, running through to Reservoir Oval West.

NEW LABOR TEMPLE.

East Fourteenth Street Corner Is Leased to Building Corporation.

As a site for a six-story building the Labor Temple Building Corporation has leased from the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery of New York the church property at the southwest corner of Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street.

The lease is for twenty-one years, with two twenty-one-year renewal privileges. The property has a frontage of 77.6 feet on the avenue and 139 feet on the street.

The operation will involve a total outlay of close to $700,000. Work on the new structure will be started next week. Emery Roth is the architect.

First Sale Since 1862.

H. C. Kopp & Co. sold for the estate of Patrick Hannigan the old homestead at 218 East Fifty-first Street. This property has been occupied as the Hannigan residence since 1862 and the owners have also operated a milk distributing business at this address. The plot is 25 by 100 and was sold to the Beechnut Realty Company.

$250,000 Garage Project.

As a site for a four-story garage and service station the plot 100 by 100 feet at 58 to 330 West Fifty-seventh Street, between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, has been sold by the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America. The project involves $250,000. John A. Moran Jr. was the broker in the sale.

Columbia Enlarges Holdings.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company has sold to Columbia University an additional plot for the new stadium which is to be erected at Broadway and 218th Street. The plot, 123.3 by 116.3, is located on the west side of Broadway about 100 feet north of West 218th Street.

Buys East Side "L."

Julius Maier bought from Fannie Jurist the property known as 215 Second Avenue and 249 and 249½ East Thirteenth Street, forming an "L" around the southeast corner of these two thoroughfares. This is the first sale of this property since 1907 and it was held at $75,000.

Italian Seamen Desert in America.

ROME, June 10.—Italian shipowners have just published statistics showing that 1,562 Italian seamen deserted their vessels upon arrival in the United States up to December last, most of the deserters entering the American merchant marine because of the high wages and also to avoid the American immigration quota. Such desertions are said to be increasing daily.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

ACQUIRED BY OPERATORS

Trading in real estate was exceptionally light yesterday, there being no large deals reported. Tenement houses and private residences shared the centre of activity and were the only classes of property to be sold in any appreciable number. A half block of Harlem apartments passed to operators.

Benenson Realty Company has purchased the northeast corner of 129th Street and Eighth Avenue, known as 2,410 to 2,418 Eighth Avenue and 265 West 129th Street. The property measures 100 by 99.11 feet and is improved with four five-story buildings having stores and apartments renting in excess of $24,000 per year. The seller was Samuel Posner. Edgar & Feinberg were the brokers in the transaction.

John Newton Porter and Cyril A. Carroll have sold to Joseph G. Abramson, the operator, 549 Third Avenue, 23 by 80, a three-story brick tenement containing one large store and apartments. This parcel has been in the hands of the Dode estate for over seventy years. The property was held at $40,000. A resale is pending.

P. M. Clear & Co., have sold for Eva Ettenberg, 114 East 118th Street, the five-story, twenty-family tenement, 25 by 100, held at $85,000, to Charles Juster.

Joseph M. Levine bought from the estate of Augusta Deutsch, two tenements known as 427 and 429 East Seventy-ninth Street. A deal involving the resale of the property is now pending.

West End Avenue Resale.

Daniel H. Jackson, operator, resold to a client of Le Roy Coventry, 802 West End Avenue. The property, which the seller bought two weeks ago from Mrs. J. Hotaling, consists of a three-story dwelling on a lot 16 by 80 feet, located 53 feet south of Ninety-ninth Street. The buyer paid all cash. Mr. Jackson holding the property at $50,000.

William H. Hamilton sold his residence at 239 East Sixty-first Street, a remodeled four-story American basement house on a lot 20 by 100.5 to Sherburn M. Becker, who will occupy. Hamilton, Iselin & Co. were the brokers.

The Houghton Company resold the three-story dwelling at 43 West Ninety-sixth Street for Gladys Hoffman, operator. Three days ago the same brokers, through James P. Walden sold this property to Miss Hoffman, who now turns it over at a profit.

Excelsior Investors, Inc., sold to M. Subotsky 8 and 10 West 119th Street, two five-story apartment houses on a plot 60 by 100, accommodating twenty-two families, showing a rent roll of about $16,000, held at $110,000. Kaminsky & Parnes represented the seller. The broker was the Star Realty Company.

George Zauderer purchased from the Excelsior Investors, Inc., 343-345 West Eighty-fifth Street, a six-story elevator apartment house, on a plot 50 by 100, having a rent roll of $25,000 per annum, held at $150,000. Kaminsky & Parnes represented both parties. This parcel was recently purchased by the Excelsior Investors, Inc., from Broadway Long Beach Corporation.

THE BRONX MARKET.

New Owners for Apartment, Dwelling and Business Properties.

Moses H. Rothstein purchased from the Gotkol Realty Corporation for Dorothy S. Cohen and Ella Spiegel 2020 and 2022 Washington Avenue, a six-story modern apartment house on the northeast corner of Washington Avenue and 170th Street, being on a lot 60.40 by 74.23 feet. The rental is about $16,000, and the property was held at $110,000.

Shaw & Sanford have sold for Success Building Company, 1,738 Weeks Avenue, a two-family dwelling on a lot 28 by 95 feet.

Eugene J. Busher Company, Inc., sold for Raffaele Firoella 309 East 149th Street, size 25 by 80 feet, to Adolf C. Blechner, who will improve with a two-story business building.

Edward J. Gould and Jack Stein sold to Samuel Boyarsky a plot of land situated at the southwest corner of Fordham Road and Crotona Avenue, the dimensions of which are 52 by 209 by 89 by 204 feet, irregular, containing approximately six city lots. The purchaser is making plans for the erection of a moving picture theatre on this property.

Herman A. Acker Corporation sold for Phelan-Billingsley's, Inc., to a client, one of the two-family brick houses on Billingsley Terrace just south of Burnside Avenue, at a price of $30,000.

There is considerable activity in this territory at this time, and out of the seven houses nearing completion, the Phelan-Billingsley's, Inc., have sold four, and owing to the strong demand for this type of two-family house, they contemplate the erection of ten additional buildings.

John J. Reynolds sold for Joseph Goodman, 2,112 Chatterton Avenue, a two-family brick, lot 25 by 100 feet, to Anne Berger.

Ludwig Moser bought 2,872 Valentine Avenue, a two-family dwelling. Johanna Hermstadt was the broker.

A client of Kaminsky & Parnes sold 261 East 188th Street, a five-story apartment house on a plot 50 by 100, accommodating twenty families, with a rent roll of $15,000 per annum. The property was held at $90,000. The purchaser is Mark Nelson.

Sarah Gould purchased from Glaspol Construction Company, Inc., a two-family house situated at 1,656 Townsend Avenue. Kaminsky & Parnes represented the purchaser.

Auction Result.

By I. Lincoln Seide, Inc.

West 165th St, s s, 100 ft e of Amsterdam Av, 100x100, vacant; Harry Schiff against J. Bruce Thompson et al.; due, $51,055.09; taxes, &c., $300; to the plaintiff for $12,000.

FRENCH WAR BASE SALE.

Waterfront Acreage to Be Sold Today at Auction.

There is every prospect of some lively bidding by representatives of railroads, steamship lines and big corporations seeking New York City waterfront property when the French Government war base is offered at public auction today at noon in the Vesey Street Salesroom by William Kennelly, Inc.

The property to be sold is located opposite Manhattan, between Twenty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, at the junction of Newtown Creek with the East River. It consists of 24.4 acres, five of which are under water, with riparian rights, has a frontage of 1,548 feet, 401 feet on the East River and 1,147 feet on Newtown Creek.

A 250-foot pier extends into the East River. It is immediately adjacent to the Greenpoint terminal of the New York State Barge Canal, and practically equally distant from the Pennsylvania Terminal, Grand Central Terminal, Queensboro Plaza, Long Island Railroad and other Port of New York shipping facilities.

The French Government spent over $4,000,000 in acquiring and maintaining this war base, and it is the only piece of property owned by the French Government in the United States which was used for war purposes.

So far as is known its sale today will constitute the first auction of international property ever held in this country.

LOAN INTEREST RATES.

Variety of Rates Shown in Mortgages Aggregating $6,000,000.

Charles B. Van Valen, Inc., have negotiated mortgage loans aggregating $5,938,000. The loans furnish an interesting study of prevalent interest rates in the mortgage market. Forty-eight per cent. were placed at 6 per cent., 12 per cent. at 5½ per cent., 35 per cent. at 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. at split rates between 5 per cent. and 6 per cent. Among the loans were $330,000 covering 572 Fifth Avenue, $250,000 on 64-6 Nassau Street, $100,000 on 603-5 West 138th Street, $100,000 on 6 East Seventy-ninth Street, $57,000 on the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and 117th Street, $90,000 building loans on the west side of Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn; 250 feet north of Brighton Beach Avenue, Brooklyn; $150,000 on 130-32 Mangin Street through to Stanton Street, $190,000 covering 12 East Fifty-third Street, $252,000 covering 541 West 122d Street, $65,000 on the Asco Supply Company factory at Glendale, L. I.; $48,000 on the northwest corner of West Houston and Mercer Streets, $140,000 building and permanent loan on the northwest corner of University Avenue and 175th Street, $170,000 building and permanent loan covering 613-23 West 148th Street and $400,000 on 214 West Forty-second Street through to 207-19 West Forty-first Street.

Brett & Wyckoff have placed for the Hartot Realty Corporation a building loan of $600,000 on the nine-story and pent house apartment to be erected at 145 East Fifty-fourth Street.

BUYING IN THE SUBURBS.

Mrs. M. Theresa Minet Buys "Suncrest" at Malba-on-the-Sound.

Mrs. M. Theresa Minet, Chairman of the Delegations Committee of the Women's Democratic Club, of which her mother, Mrs. John Enos Quinn is President, has purchased "Suncrest," a new English studio manse at Malba-on-the-Sound, North Shore, L. I., from the Malba Estates Corporation, Champ & Dasey, Sales Directors. The property is located on Centre Drive.

Prince & Ripley announce the sale of a large house, with twelve rooms and three baths on half an acre of ground on Sterling Avenue, White Plains, for Robert Davey. The purchaser was Harry Richmond of White Plains, who will occupy the property immediately.

Chauncey B. Griffen sold the property of Dr. Nicholas Sabella, consisting of a stucco house with Spanish tile roof, on corner plot, situated at Reed Avenue and Wolfs Lane, Pelham Manor, to Richard E. Crowe of Pelham Manor. The property was held at $38,000.

Mrs. Lt Bradford Prince of Santa Fe, N. W., sold through the Halleran Agency the vacant plot, 100 by 100 feet, situated on the west side of Lawrence Street, 50 feet south of Sanford Avenue, Flushing, in association with Master Agency of Flushing. The purchaser is J. Kelly, who intends to improve the property with four dwellings.

Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Vought & Co. have sold for the estate of Hannah J. Blodgett 40 East Sixty-fourth Street, a four-story dwelling, 20 feet wide. The purchaser is Dr. Robert Lewis, who will Brooklyn Investors Active.

Clients of Gustave Posner sold to an investor three tax-exempt four-family houses recently completed, being on a plot 90 by 100 and situated on Bay Twenty-second Street, between Eighty-sixth Street and Benson Avenue, Bensonhurst.

The McInerney-Klinck Realty Company, as broker, sold the three-story brick and limestone business and apartment building located on the west side of Flatbush Avenue, 213 feet north of Newkirk Avenue. The premises have a frontage of 20 feet on Flatbush Avenue and a depth of 80 feet and were sold for John Wilkens to a client for investment.

Coney Island Apartment Project.

As a site for an apartment house, the Maynard Construction Company purchased the northwest corner of Brighton Beach and Coney Island Avenues, Brooklyn. The property was sold by the Silby Realty Corporation through Joseph Stumer, who also sold for L. Eisenberg the northeast corner of Avenue M and East Fourth Street.

Estate Sells Warehouse.

The estate of C. C. Schildwachter sold the warehouse, on a plot 50 by 80, at the northeast corner of 128th Street and Park Avenue, to Gristede Brothers, Inc. This is the first sale of the property in forty years. Schildwachter & Co. were the brokers.

Hotel Pasadena Sold.

James J. Crowe sold the Hotel Pasadena, 10 West Sixty-first Street, southwest corner Broadway, with the furnishings, for the Sixty-first Street Corporation, to Anto Abram, with a long-term lease.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

Joseph P. Day Auctioneer Inc.

Where Supply is Little and Demand is Great

THERE ARE VERY FEW LOTS ever offered to the Public at Absolute Auction, in Yonkers, for the simple reason that the people who live on the large estates want to keep on living there, for it is a delightful place to live.

ONE LARGE ESTATE (The Trevor Estate) I advertised for sale at auction, but the City of Yonkers took the whole place for a waterfront park the day it was offered. This sale took out of the market 400 Hudson River view lots.

THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND is carried out in places where land is closely held by big estates, as it is in Yonkers and where the demand is constantly increasing.

BUT THE JESUITS, who bought the magnificent Lilienthal Estate stretching from North Broadway to the River for a Novitiate, no longer need it and are offering it for sale in lots at Absolute Auction.

CAN'T YOU SEE the money-making opportunity offered in the purchase of a few of the "Best in Yonkers" lots, at your own price, at this great Auction Sale next Saturday even if you only want to make money and not to live there?

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—Pressure was high Tuesday night east of the Mississippi River, except in the extreme south and in the vicinity of Newfoundland. It was low over the western half of the country except along the Pacific Coast. There were no defined disturbances charted on Tuesday night's weather map. Showers have occurred within the last twenty-four hours in the Ohio and middle Mississippi Valleys, the Missouri Valley, the Plains States, Tennessee and the South Atlantic and East Gulf States. The temperature was lower Tuesday in Southern Virginia, the Carolinas and the North Pacific States, and it was higher in the lake region.

Local showers are probable in the extreme upper Ohio Valley, Western New York and the Atlantic and East Gulf States Wednesday or Wednesday night, and Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee and portions of the Southeastern States on Thursday. The temperature will not change materially during the next two days, although it will be slightly higher in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States Wednesday.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest and lowest from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the highest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

OIL AND ELECTRICITY IN NEW LOCOMOTIVE

Successful Test of a Power House on Wheels in New York Central Yards.

FIRST OF KIND IN AMERICA

Supplies Its Own Current at One-third the Cost of Steam—For Use in Switching.

The first practical test of a self-contained electric locomotive using oil as fuel was made yesterday by the New York Central Railroad in its freight yards on Eleventh Avenue. The locomotive, the first one of its kind made in America, was built jointly by the General Electric Company and the Ingersoll-Rand Co.

The locomotive is, in effect, a complete power house on wheels. It is independent of a third rail or any outside electric connections and was designed especially for switching service. In appearance like an electric locomotive on the outside, the inside of the new vehicle looks like a miniature power plant, containing an oil engine, power generator and fuel tanks.

In preliminary tests conducted by the Ingersoll-Rand Company at Phillipsburg, N. J., and in ordinary switching service, the new locomotive consumed between 12 and 15 cents of fuel an hour, approximately one-third the cost of fuel used by the ordinary steam locomotive in similar service.

James McCue, for thirty-two years an employe of the New York Central and driver of a steam locomotive since 1905, learned to operate the new type of locomotive after ten minutes' instruction. "It's the simplest locomotive in the world to operate," he said. "Cleaner and much better in every respect. Just what we have needed for such yards as this."

Makes a Quick Start.

What pleased the engineer most was that the moment he opened the throttle he had the full power of the plant at his command. There were no slow, preliminary starts like those in getting an ordinary steam locomotive under way.

The oil burning locomotive is practically a one-man affair. A fireman is required under the rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission but his sole duty apparently is to ring the bell. If an automatic bell is attached to the engine the fireman's duty will be nil.

In the absence of smoke and in the fact that it is necessary to operate the engine only when the locomotive is in use the new type of locomotive is much the same as an automobile.

The new engine weighs about sixty tons. Its power plant consists of a 300 horsepower Ingersoll-Rand oil engine directly connected to a 200 kilowatt G-E generator. The generator supplies electric current operating four fifty horsepower motors, one of which is geared to each of the four axles. Fuel can be carried for forty-eight hours of continuous switching service. On the roof is mounted a muffler for reducing the noise.

All parts of the cylinders, cylinder heads and combustion chambers are water cooled by means of a thermostatically controlled water supply. The water from these water jackets passes to a radiator located on the roof, and a thermostat maintains an even temperature regardless of weather conditions.

Engineers said that an unusual feature of the design was the use of a direct current generator supplying current to the motors without intervening accelerating resistance. This is accomplished by using a differential series field on the exciter which automatically reduces the generator voltage with the increase in the amount of current drawn by the motors, so that the speed of the locomotive automatically increases as the load is reduced, corresponding to the rise in impressed voltage. This control is said to completely eliminate the possibility of overloading the generator or motors or of stalling the engine.

"The General Electric Company has had very extensive experience during the last fifteen years in the construction of self-propelled motor cars and locomotives using gasoline as fuel," said a representative of the company yesterday. "About ninety equipments have been put into service during this period and most of them are still operating.

Fuel Economy Assured.

"In order to take advantage of a low priced fuel in the internal combustion engine an arrangement was made with the Ingersoll-Rand Company to build an engine designed for the use of fuel oil and having the characteristic of speed and weight that would be suitable for its use in a locomotive. The complete unit is, therefore, a combination of pieces of apparatus all of which are well tried and whose combination promises to result in a degree of fuel economy which is far in advance of anything that can be attained by the steam locomotive.

"The Ingersoll-Rand unit is a six-cylinder engine designed to burn fuel oil and having the features of the well-known Price system of direct fuel injection. This system avoids the use of high pressure injection and also effects a reduction in weight and improvement in mechanical efficiency and an increased simplicity and reliability. The fuel is injected into the various cylinders through a distributor by means of a single acting plunger type pump. The lubricating system is of the continuous filtration type by means of which the oil is returned from a crankcase through an oil filter before being returned to the system again."

Economical!

FLOORS

WISE economy is a sound business principle. Progressive concerns extend this principle to their floors, install Bonded Floors and save in many ways. These durable floors are easy to clean, never need expensive refinishing, and the cost of installation is exceedingly moderate.

But Bonded Floors have more than economy to recommend them. There's an appropriate Bonded Floor for every type of business—office, bank, shop, store, salesroom, hotel, restaurant, etc. Besides the sober, solid color floors there are others of innumerable color combinations and patterns. Their decorative charm is a distinct asset to the appearance of any business environment.

By choosing any one of the several types of Bonded Floors, you secure the cooperation of a nation-wide organization of flooring engineers, specializing in proper installation as well as in materials of the highest grade.

Let us discuss the advantages of Bonded Floors, without obligating you in the least. A letter or phone call will bring a representative to your office.

Every floor laid according to Bonded Floors specifications is backed by a Surety Bond. The Bond insures freedom from repair expense due to defects in materials or workmanship.
